The Nicholls Hospital Craduation Exercises

The graduation exercises of the Nicholls Hospital, for the classes of 1909 and 1910 were held at Collegiate Hall last evening. The rear of the platform was festooned in purple and gold, giving a very bright and cheerful effect. A row of potted palms decorated the front of the platform.

The opening remarks of the chairman, Richard Hall, Esq., were very brief and he called on Rev. Canon Davidson to address the graduates.

He congratulated them with having passed their examinations with honors and impressed upon them the great importance of the life work they had undertaken, and felt confident that they would reflect credit on themselves and the institution of which they are graduates.

He exhorted them to follow the path of duty wherever that path may lead to. It is a profession that often entails danger and is sometimes unpleasant, but whether pleasant or not, whether the pay be great or small do your duty. Nurses were occasionally called upon to act as ministers of religion in the supreme hour of need when no ordained ministers were at hand. Their most important work was to minister to others, not to be ministered unto.

He closed by saying that not so many years ago people used to dread the idea of introducing a trained nurse into the house as they thought that it only made one more to be waied on, but now find it is quite the reverse.

Dr. R. W. Bruce Smith of Toronto, superintendent of hospitals and charities for Ontario, remarked that Peterborough was no exception to the other cities of this Province in that on occasions of this kind the greater part of the audience were ladies, and he thought it right that they should take a deep interest in hospital work. Not so many years ago there were only nine public hospitals in Ontario, now there are seventy-five and most of the cities and towns contributed liberally to their support. The management of the Nicholls Hospital were to be congratulated on the fact that for the past 15 years the hospital had been self supporting. Public hospitals mark the advance of Christian spirit.

It requires intelligence, tact, kindness and firmness. Personal qualities are often of great importance, and the physician looks to the nurse for the effective results of his prescriptions.

Patients in the delirium of fever often reveal the skeleton in the closet, but all matters so revealed must be held sacred by the nurse.

It behooves the nurse to lead a clean and upright life. This is due to her sister nurses and the community. She must also be in physical condition to bear the unavoidable strain and hold high the torch of hope.

He concluded with the remarks that there was no greater happiness this side the grave than that knowledge of duty well done.

The musical part of the program was greatly enjoyed by the large and appreciative audience and all those who contributed in their share of the entertainment were heartily applauded.

We much regret that want of space forbids our giving the valedictories of Miss Ethel Davidson for the graduating class of 1909, and Miss Julia M. Hill for the class of 1910, in this issue.

1909 GRADUATING CLASS.

Miss Ethel Davidson.
Miss Charlotte L. Smith

1910 GRADUATING CLASS.

Miss Julia M. Hill.
Miss Pansy E. Roberts.
Miss Della I. McGill.
Miss Elsie M D Willison.
Miss Annie E. Allen
Miss Euna P. Kennedy.

All of whom were almost overwhelmed with beautiful bouquets and congratulations.

The proceedings closed with the singing of God Save the King by the audience.

Thoughts of a Busy Fellow

On Past, Current and Coming Events of Local and General Import.

INSPECTION OF ILLUMINATED SIGNS.

Now that the sign by-law is to be amended to allow of a little more lattitude—an extension of six feet and a half over the sidewalk, it is to be hoped all its provisions will be lived up to. The license fee is $2, fixed with the purpose of creating a revenue with which to defray the expense of inspecting illuminated signs. Let the many $2 not yet paid be collected and let some qualified official get busy and inspect such signs, and bring in a report as to their stability of structure. Signs have blown down in other cities, and Peterborough is not exempt from possibilities in this direction. The general public approve of illuminated signs; they lighten up a street, besides giving it an attractive appearance. The average business man does not begrudge the small license fee for a good advertising medium, but the city should not expect him to pay for a duty not performed—inspection. And to assure confidence in such signs being safe annual inspection is imperative.

SIGN BYLAW.

A writer in the Examiner—anonymous of course—complains that the City Council at its last meeting passed a resolution to force all owners of illuminated signs to pay a license fee. Our friend is not quite correct. What the City Fathers actually did was, on receipt of the city engineer's report that only five owners of overhanging signs had paid the license fee of $2, fixed by their predecessors, to authorize the collection of fees overdue. The signs in question were erected under the provisions of a by-law governing the same, and it is the duty of the council to enforce that bylaw. The fee of $2 is not actually in payment for an advertising medium, but is a provision for the inspection of structures that, if not substantially erected and securely maintained would prove a menace to the safety of pedestrians. Surely no fault can be found with the City Council for enforcing the bylaw and awakening up to their responsibility in arranging for the inspection of overhanging signs as is done in other municipalities. Providing the small license fee is collected, and the signs annually inspected, the bylaw is a good measure in the interests of both the general public and the owners of signs. The latter are responsible for all accidents that may arise from their maintenance of illuminated signs, and, if the bylaw is properly lived up to, the city undertakes to assure the stability of such signs by competent inspection—in return for a small payment of $2.

A GLARING INJUSTICE.

On Bethune street a certain property was either sold or rented to a junk dealer. In consequence of this the fire insurance on neighboring premises has been raised from 90c to $2.00. City Solicitor E. H. D. Hall quite properly contends that the building by-law should provide for such a contingency. A tax of an additional $1.10 per hundred is too much to pay for the privilege of living contingent to a junk shop.

VALUABLE DECORATIONS.

On October 9th, 1839, a box containing £5,000 in gold and notes was stolen from the boot of the coach running between Manchester and the Potteries, England. In "Pen and Ink Sketches," Boston (U.S.A.), 1845, under the head of "A Literary Breakfast at Samuel Rogers," we read:—"But there were two objects in the room (Rogers the poet's), which, more than any others, engrossed my attention, the one represented the enormous wealth of its possessor, and the other indicated his keen appreciation of the value of mind. These articles were simply two small pieces of paper in gold frames. One of them was a Bank of England note for One Million Pounds Sterling; and the other the original receipt of John Milton for five pounds (the sum received for the copyright of "Paradise Lost" from Simmonds the bookseller). The bank note was one of the only four which were ever struck from a plate which was afterwards destroyed. The Rothschilds have one impression, the late Mr. Coutts had another, the Bank of England the third; and as I have said, Mr. Rogers decorates his parlor with the remaining one. There it hangs, within anyone's reach—a fortune to many, but valueless to all excepting its owner. No one would think of stealing it, for it would be only as so much waste paper. It never could be

MRS. GLOVER SAYS SHE IS A MUCH HARASSED WOMAN

EVERYBODY SEEMS TO BE BUSY IN ADDING TO HER TROUBLE.

Wife of Dead Laundryman, for Whose Murder Young French-Canadian Girl is Now on Trial, Divides Public Sympathy With Lonely Prisoner.

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 2.—The immense crowd that gathered early today about the East Cambridge court house where Hattie Le Blanc, the seventeen-year-old French-Canadian girl is on trial charged with the murder of Clarence F. Glover of Waltham caused trouble to the police and showed the intense public interest in the tragic trial drama now being enacted before Judge Bond.

G. W. Kyte, M.P., of Richmond, N. S., uncle of the fair prisoner, has arrived here to assist in her defence.

Scores of women jostled and crowded about the doors trying to get in to the court room before the day's session opened. Public opinion seems to be evenly divided between the widow of the slain man and the girl on trial.

The promise that Mrs. Glover might resume the stand today and continue the tragic recital of her life added a new element of interest.

There were sturdy defenders of both women amongst the multitude which thronged the court room.

Woodstock, Dec. 2.—The crime of bells recently placed in new St. Paul's Anglican church was consecrated by the Lord Bishop of Montreal yesterday. A banquet followed.

NEW YORK IS A POLYCOT CITY

(Special to The Times.)

Remarkable Record of America's Greatest City.

New York, December 3.—The records of the various courts and city offices in New York give one an excellent idea of the polyglot composition of the city's population. The clerks in the marriage license bureau are quite accomplished linguists, yet they were nonplussed the other day when a Chinese couple came for a marriage license. On the same day a will written in Chinese, was offered for probate. It was the first will written in Chinese characters that had been seen filed with the Surrogate in the last twenty years and had much the appearance of a full grown laundry ticket.

QUEEN'S ALUMNI ANNUAL BANQUET

SECOND ANNUAL EVENT A GREAT SUCCESS.

Splendid Addresses By University Professors and Others—Election of Officers—Absence Through Illness of Principal Gordon Greatly Deplored.

The large dining hall in connection with the National Hotel was the scene last night of one of the most successful banquets ever held in Peterborough, when the Alumni Association of Queen's College met and elected officers, for the en-suing year, after listening to splendid addresses from professors belonging to the university and others. Mr J. E. Good will, the president of the association, occupied the chair, and delivered a short address. Everyone present deplored the absence of Principal Gordon, who was taken quite ill on Thursday, and was therefore unable to attend. The speakers of the evening were Professors Campbell, Dr. Knight, and Rev. Prof. Laird, all of Queen's.

Prof. Campbell and Hon. J. R. Stratton responded to the toast of "Canada," in eloquent and patriotic terms.

"Queen's" was acknowledged by Prof. Laird, in which he gave a brief history of the university from 1841, the date of its birth, to the present time, showing the truly marvellous growth of the university, especially during the past few years. It has now over 1600 students and an annual income of $211,000.

"Sister Universities," was proposed by Mr. Reid, and responded to by Mr. D. W. Deeble, for Victoria, Rev. Mr. Keith, for McGill; Rev. Mr. Webb, for McMaster, Judge Huycke, for Victoria, and Dr. Cameron, for Trinity.

Mr. J. H. Burnham moved, seconded by Mr. W. H. Collier, a vote of thanks to the speakers, which was carried unanimously.

Rev. Mr. Best, of Beaverton, proposed the toast of "The Graduates," which was responded to by Mr. Lees.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

President—Rev. Jas. Wallace, Lindsay.
2nd Vice-President—Mrs. Brown.
3rd Vice-President—Dr. Haig.
Secretary—R. J. Pettit.
Committee—Mr. Lawlor, Rev. Mr. Best, Dr. Amys, Mrs. Alford, W. H. Collier, Miss Teskey and Mr. G. D. Robertson.

The meeting broke up after singing the National Anthem.

NEW CATHOLIC HALL FOR COBOURG

Opening of New C.M.B.A. Hall On Thursday Night.

(Special to The Times.)

Cobourg, Dec. 2.—The opening of the new C.M.B.A. Hall took place here last evening. Reeve W. J. Maher occupied the chair. Addresses were made by Mr. J. J. Behan, Kingston, Grand Secretary of the C.M.B.A. of Canada, and Rev. Father Murray of Cobourg. It was expected that Dr. Ryan, Kingston, grand medical examiner, would have been present, but he was obliged to defer his visit. The fine new suite of rooms secured by the C.M.J.A. will also be used for Catholic club rooms.

The Church Janitor Denies Murder

GOES INTO WITNESS BOX AND SWEARS HE DID NOT KILL LITTLE ALMA KELLNER.

Said He Got Blood On His Clothes When He Shot Himself—Gives Explanation About the Knife Covered With Blood.

Louisville, Dec. 2.—Joseph Wendling, charged with the murder of little nine-year old Alma Kellner, today resumed the witness stand in his own defence.

In his direct examination, Wendling, speaking in broken English, detailed his coming to America, his employment in Louisville, and his duties around St. James church. He denied any knowledge of the murder of the girl, and said he got the blood on his clothes when he shot himself, and that the blood on the knife came when his brother-in-law used it to trim his horse's hoof.

On his direct testimony, he was unconcerned and calm. He frequently laughed. He denied the damaging remarks attributed to him by Detectives Burk and Carney.

BLACK HAND OPERATIONS IN NEW YORK

The Brotherhood Embraces a Large Percentage of the Italian Population.

New York, Dec. 3.—The brotherhood of the "Black Hand," which seems to embrace a considerable percentage of the Italian population of this city, is still doing a thriving business. In spite of the frequent police shake-ups, perhaps, because of them, the members of the brotherhood seem to enjoy perfect immunity and almost daily one or more children, usually of Italian parents, are kidnapped and held for ransom. The other day an effort was made to kidnap a little Italian girl in Bath Beach, a part of Brooklyn, and since then not only half a dozen detectives but nearly all the children of the school in Bath Beach, to which the girl goes, escort the girl home from school every afternoon.

INDIANS KILL MINK OUT OF SEASON

Mr. Thos. Trennum Finds Beaver on His Property Near Ball Lake.

Mr. Thos. Trennum, an old Peterboro boy, but now residing at Ball Lake, was in the city yesterday with a cart load of splendid spruce trees for use of the juvenile population. Mr. Trennum, who is posted on all classes of trees, which for planting decorative or Christmas use, has one of the finest lots of Christmas trees ever brought to Peterboro. Mr. Trennum, who makes part of his livelihood by trapping, complains bitterly of the way in which the Indians from Hagersville, trap fur bearing animals on Ball Lake, Squaw River and other tributaries of Ball Lake out of season. In response to a question put by The Times Mr. Trennum said "No, the Indians have no right or license to trap out of season. They can fish all the year round, but they must not trap out of season any more than can a white man. The Indians are killing out the mink at a season when the skins are practically worth nothing." Mr. Trennum also complained that there are nine brothers who come from Bobcaygeon and who, as claimed by him, go out deer hunting "all the year round." Mr. Trennum asserted that this Bobcaygeon bunch hunt deer during summer as well as winter. Mr. Trennum owns 1800 acres of land out in the district referred to. He says he has discovered beavers on his property, and is very anxious to have these fur bearing animals, that are now absolutely forbidden to be trapped or shot, fostered, as there will be a big industry in the future in their fur, if they are properly protected.

JUDGMENT RESERVED.

The legal case of Mr. G. W. Hatton vs. the City of Peterborough has been tried. The evidence is all in, and now, his Honor Judge Huycke has reserved judgment until some future date. Our readers will remember that full particulars were given of this case in the columns of The Times some weeks ago. Mr. Hatton seeks to recover $500 damages as a result of injuries he received in a runaway accident, alleged to have been caused by the negligence of the city in having both sides of the road on Concession street near Woodbine avenue, piled up with cement and gravel used in the construction of a sidewalk. O'Connell & Gordon appeared for the plaintiff and Hall, Hays and Hall for the Corporation of Peterborough.

CONNAUGHT ENDS A NOTABLE TOUR

Duke and Duchess Have Had Royal Time in Africa.

Durban, Dec. 3.—The reception here today of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and their party, marking the conclusion of their tour of the new South African Union, was a magnificent success. The Duke and Duchess were welcomed by the governor of Natal, the members of the provincial government, a committee of prominent residents representing the municipality of Durban, and a large number of naval and military officers. The populace turned out en masse and cheered the royal visitors. A popular reception was held in the City Park and addresses of welcome were presented at the Town Hall. The Duke of Connaught, who wore a field marshall's uniform, inspected the volunteers, and another feature of the day's programme was the laying of the foundation stone for the new Technical Institute. A municipal luncheon was served at the town hall, and shortly afterward the Duke and Duchess and their attendants boarded the steamship Balmoral Castle for the return trip to England.

Old Hastings Resident Gone.

One of the oldest residents of Hastings, Mr. George Wells, who lived there for over sixty years is dead. The late Mr. Wells was found dead in his cabin, near the wharf by Mr. John Armstrong. It seems that Mr. Armstrong had stopped at Well's cabin and finding the old man in bed put on a fire for him. He called next day, and finding the place still shut, forced the door open and found the old man lying on his bed with his hands folded across his breast. George Wells, or "Yankee George" as he was called, was an American by birth, and it is believed a member of the Wells family who founded the Wells-Fargo Express Co., his home originally being in the neighborhood of Ogdensburg, N.Y.

It is said that the labor council is going to take a strong and determined stand in selecting candidates for next year's council.

DEAN DIBB KILLED BOARDING TRAIN

Wife and Sister-in-Law Were on Board When He Rushed to Get On With Tickets.

Kingston, Dec. 2.—At noon, the Rev. Rural Dean F. W. Dibbs of Napanee, was killed on the G.T.R. at that place. He tried to get aboard the moving train, and was thrown under the wheels and crushed to death. His wife and sister-in law were on board the train coming to Kingston. He was getting tickets when the train started, and he rushed to get aboard.

The deceased was rector of Napanee and aged 45.

FAT FOLKS FAVOR

Home Mixture That Takes Off the Fat Rapidly—Causes No Wrinkles—No Stomach Ills and Requires Neither Dieting Nor Exercise.

Too much fat is both uncomfortable and dangerous, but usually fleshy people prefer to put up with its inconvenience rather than to punish themselvis with the tiresome exercising usually prescribed, or endanger their health by taking the so-called "cures" and patent fat "reducers."

This self-sacrifice of comfort and health to overabundant fat is entirely unnecessary, however, as Mrs. Luella Bigger tells us there is a home receipt that is far superior in every way to anything that money will buy for reducing superfluous flesh. It is said that this simple mixture will take the fat off of man or woman at the rate of at least a couple of pounds a week without even causing wrinkles. Moreover it does not disturb the stomach, but it is a good thing for the system, clearing away pimples, and, best of all, it does not interfere with the diet. You can use it and at the same time eat what you like. This receipt is as follows—½ ounce Marmola; 3 ounce fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 4½ ounces of Peppermint Water. Get these ingredients at any drug store, mix them together at home and take one teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

Mrs. Bigger, as is well known, is a famous beauty expert, and whatever she recommends is sure to be found satisfactory.

THE WOMEN IN FLIGHT TO HONG KONG HAVE BEEN CARRIED AWAY INTO THE MOUNTAINS.

A Detachment of Soldiers are Searching for the Bandits—Much Anxiety Felt By Monks Over Their Disappearance.

Hong Kong, Dec 2.—Thirty nuns who fled from Macao following the revolt of Republicans against the Portuguese Royal Government, have been captured by Chinese brigands. The nuns, who were in flight to the city, were carried into the mountains. A detachment of soldiers are searching for the bandits.

Great number of refugee monks and nuns are in this city, following the uprising in which monasteries and convents were seized.

The nuns and monks here express much anxiety over the missing women, and have asked the authorities to exert every endeavor to recover them at once, if they are still alive.

The brigand band is known as a dangerous clique of High-Binder caste. The men, under command of a bold leader, have long terrorized towns, and carried away women, holding them for ransom in open defiance of the law.

Death of Edward Holmes.

At an early hour yesterday morning, Edward Holmes, passed away, aged 69 years, at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. H. Hanwell, 308 Mark street, as the result of a paralytic stroke, sustained three days ago. The deceased was born in London and had only been in Canada about four years. He leaves to mourn his loss two daughters, Mrs. H. Hanwell, of this city, and Mrs. Holleman of London, England. The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon at half past two, from 308 Mark street, to the Little Lake cemetery.

Scenes of Horror Follow Big Battle

TURKS RATTLE WITH TRIBESMEN—CAPTURE THE TOWN OF KERAK IN SYRIA.

More Than 1,000 Slain—Turkish Soldiers Were Beheaded—Shot to Death or Tortured.

Constantinople, Dec. 2—Bloody fighting is going on today between Druse tribesmen and Turkish soldiers at Kerak, southern Syria, and more than 1,000 have fallen. Seven hundred of the tribesmen have been killed, the city of 3,000 has been captured by the first Druses and 200 of the Turkish garrison put to the sword.

The Turkish troops began an assault on the city at dawn today in an attempt to recapture it.

Ten thousand of the Druses are in revolt against the method of taxation pursued by the Turkish government. Two thousand more troops have been sent from Turkish posts in Palestine and Syria.

Scenes of horror followed the capture of Kerak. The Turkish soldiers were beheaded, shot to death or tortured in the famous old castle of Kerak which the Turkish authorities had converted into a fortress. The rebels with their cannon practically demolished the upper portion of the enormous stone structure before it fell.

The Boy Scouts met last night at the armories, and took in later the band concert at the Market Hall. All members wishing to join the Scouts, will kindly be at the armories tonight at 7 o'clock. Dr. McPherson will lecture tonight, from 9 to 9.30.

AN ANARCHIST.

The other day a middle-aged man with an unmistakeable expression of worry upon his features, entered the office of the Children's Court, in New York, to ask for advice. He informed the clerk that he was a teacher in an anarchistic Sunday school and had come to ask what to do with his 16 year-old son, who was absolutely unmanageable and incorrigible. Neither persuasion nor punishment seemed to have the slightest effect upon the boy. "But what can you expect," exclaimed the clerk, "here you are teaching revolt against law and order, and yet you expect your offspring to obey you." When the clerk suggested to the worried anarchist to bring his son to court and to submit the case to the judge, who would send the boy to some institution, the man inquired whether he would have the right to determine to which institution the boy should be sent, the anarchist became indignant. "That is nothing but tyranny," he said. "Only in a society like ours, when laws are regarded as more important than men, could such a thing be possible. I refuse to have the case conducted in such an arbitrary manner." With that he left in great haste.

CHEAPNESS AND MARKETS.

In his striking tariff reform address in the Free Trade Hall at Manchester, Mr. Bonar Law ridiculed the doctrinaires who blindly tie themselves to one particular fiscal system even more firmly than to the Ten Commandments. Science and common sense, he said, agreed that there is no real fiscal policy suited to all times and to all conditions. The fiscal system of any country is a question of business, and must depend upon the conditions which prevail not only in the country where it is imposed, but in the rest of the world with which that country desires to trade.

Cobden, the speaker proceeded, advocated free trade. The Cobden Club advocates free imports. These phrases are not different names for the same thing; they present a difference both in economic theory and in practical aims. To the free-importer cheapness on any terms is the one thing needful, to the free trader the one necessity is free exchange, to which everything else, even cheapness must be subordinated. The aim of the free traders was concisely, though not elegantly, described as the "Bagman's Paradise"—to buy in the cheapest market and to sell in the dearest. It was a very good idea, but that is neither the aim nor the effect of the present British system. The British people can still buy in the cheapest market, but they can no longer sell in the dearest market—scarcely even in their own.

Cobden stated that he did not recommend his proposals on the ground of cheapness. He said distinctly, "The object at which I aim is not cheapness, but the free interchange of commodities at their natural price." He was a business man, and he knew that cheapness in itself is not necessarily a good thing. He knew that the times when the commodities produced by British workmen are at the lowest price are the times when trade is most depressed, and when the want of employment is greatest.

"Surely, cheapness of this kind," said Mr. Law, "cannot be an advantage to the people of this country. Its immediate effect is to deprive our people of work which they ought to perform, but in addition to this temporary result it has a last effect which is far more disastrous. The constant menace also of these imports frightens the men who are engaged in industry, prevents the flow of new capital, and the competitive power of the country is permanently crippled not only in foreign markets but even in our home market. I do not indeed am a follower of Cobden. Far from it but I do claim that the object at which he aimed is the object at which we also aim. His object was, and ours is to increase the productive capacity of the country, and just as I believe that that result was attained by the adoption of his proposals in the conditions which prevailed in his time, so I firmly believe that the adoption of our proposals will have the same effect under the changed conditions of the world in which we live today."

That is the situation exactly, and under free trade the United Kingdom cannot successfully hold its own against a complete circle of protectionist countries, which shut out British goods and insist upon dumping their own into the British market. The constitutional conflict may delay the adoption of tariff reform, but ultimately that policy will help to put the nation on a favorable footing for competing with even its keenest industrial and commercial rivals.

Does Not Work Both Ways.

An Ontario clergyman cannot solemnize a marriage in Quebec, but a Quebec clergyman can perform the ceremony in Ontario. The motto about a poor rule not working both ways seems to be peculiarly appropriate in this particular instance.

Paquin has exceeded even his exquisite skill in the charming costume of his which is illustrated today. The gown is of blue chiffon, a bright dark tone draped over the same shade of satin. The striking hat is of blue satin, with a high pot crown, around which is draped a black band of feathers terminating in a wing set at an acute and modish angle.

Actress in an Airship.

Mr. Stanley Cooke, an English theatrical manager, was considerably perturbed recently by the contents of a letter received from Miss Ola Humphrey, his leading lady.

The letter stated that she proposed going from Munich to Oberammergau in order to witness the Passion play and that the first twenty-five miles would be accomplished in an airship, the remainder in a motor. The letter also contained instructions in case of an accident.

Mr. Cooke immediately telegraphed, begging Miss Humphrey not to attempt the flight, but it was too late. The adventurous young lady, accompanied by five gentlemen, had already started. The voyage proved a success, and Mr. Cooke's fears were allayed by the receipt of an enthusiastic telegram announcing the safe arrival of the party.

Miss Humphrey, when interviewed after her trip, admitted she felt very nervous as the time approached for the start, and as the airship rose and the earth apparently receded the whole of her past life flashed through her brain, but this soon gave place to a feeling of great exhilaration as the dirigible sailed majestically over an ever changing panorama.

Miss Ola Humphrey, who is a Californian actress new to London, is so enchanted with her experience that she has decided to take up aeroplaning directly after the run of "The Man From Mexico" and has already written to Mr. Grahame-White with a view to being instructed in the art of flying.

SENT TO JAIL.

Havelock Hotel Keeper Gets Four Months for Illict Sale of Liquor.

Larry Killorne, hotelkeeper, of Havelock, has been sentenced to four months in the county jail by Magistrate Edmison for the illict sale of liquor on October the twelfth. His worship gave judgment at noon yesterday, and the charge preferred against Killorne for selling liquor in September will stand adjourned. The evidence in this case was concluded a week ago Thursday, and was of such a complicated character that Magistrate Edmison reserved judgment. The chief witnesses for the prosecution in this case were detectives in the employ of the Ontario License Department. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the accused and the prosecution was conducted by Mr. J. H. Burnham. There was no option of a fine as this was Killorne's second offence

DEAR GERMAN FOOD

The Butchers Want All Importation Barriers Removed.

The prices of [illegible] continue to rise in a most alarming way in all the large cities of Germany with Berlin and Hamburg at the head. German housewives are in a state of growing anxiety, as to where all this is to end.

Another phase of the question is now opened up by the attitude of the butchers, who are actively petitioning the Government to "do something" if their trade is not to suffer seriously. In their petitions they state that the prohibition to import cattle from abroad does not enable home farmers to cope with the national demand, for oxen, sheep, and calves is practically stationary, and in some districts is even growing less, while the demand increases. They ask for the abolition of all frontier barriers to importation of live stock, and less drastic measures in dealing with cattle supposed to be affected with tuberculosis. This, they say, is carried to absurd lengths

A curious political coloring is lent to this movement of the German butchers by the threat that if the Government declines to remove their grievances they will, as a body, join the Social Democratic organization. The butchers have hitherto been among the most loyal of the Kaiser's subjects.

THE PREACHER'S BARREL.

The interesting question of the preacher's "barrel" comes forward again in a suit for damages against a railroad by a Minnesota clergyman. The clergyman shipped his sermons—an accumulation of twenty years and they never reached him in his new field. He wants the railroad to pay for them. One reason named as their value to him to preach again to other congregations. If the sermons are not recovered we hope the preacher will be able to collect—all they are worth. We should suppose the parishioners in his new charge would be willing to share with the railroad in paying the damages collected. Other churches that hear of this mishap will slyly advise their coming pastors to patronize this particular road. The preacher himself might find further compensation in observing the effect on himself of doing some original work.—Hom. Review.

WOOL IN SOUTH AFRICA.

The Exports Will Double and Amount to 800,000 Bales.

Since the conclusion of the South African war, says The Canadian Textile Journal, exports of wool from the Cape have more than doubled, and last year amounted to more than 400,000 Bales. The best judges are of opinion that within a decade the exports will double again, and amount to 800,000 bales. To reach this quantity it will [illegible] necessary to double the number of sheep pastured. The Boer has heretofore been among the most backward sheep farmers in the world, and millions of his sheep produce hardly any wool, and ought to be destroyed and replaced by well bred merinos. Owing to the wisdom of South African statesmen this is now being done on a big scale, and for some years past large imports have been made, both by the government and private people, of sheep from the finest studs in Australia. Lately the South African government has appointed a well-known Australian wool and sheep expert to superintend the breeding of sheep and the preparation of wool for the market.

GRAIN GROWING IN CANADA.

The Possibilities of the Western Prairies Stagger Estimation

A statement issued by the Department of the Interior shows that out of a total area of 334,000,000 acres in the Canadian West, the surveyed area is only 145,00,000 acres. The total area homesteaded is only 44,000,000 acres, and the total area under grain crop last year was less than 12,000,000 acres. Of this, less than 7,000,000 acres produced 147,000,000 bushels of wheat. The total area cultivated is only about 1-28th of the total land area. Yet upon this small area 147,000,000 bushels of wheat were produced. When 28 times this amount of land is cultivated and producing wheat, the output almost staggers estimation. It certainly goes to show that in the future grain growing and milling will be the greatest of all our industries.

NEW LONG-DISTANCE PHONE.

A new type of long-distance telephone was recently tested successfully over a circuit extending from New York to Chicago, by way of Pittsburg, and return. The distance was eighteen hundred and twenty-five miles. The system, which is the invention of Dr. Tardieu, of Arles, France, consists in raising the pitch of the message two octaves and a third by means of a combination of drums. At this high pitch the waves are sharp and short, and can be transmitted over a greater distance than is [illegible] with the sound waves of ordinary conversation. At the receiver the pitch is again restored to normal.—Scientific American.

Boys Must Cut Out Sleighs.

Chief of Police Thompson has received several complaints from Murray street citizens regarding conditions of the sidewalk on the hill at the Central School. The boys have been using the sidewalk as a sliding place, rendering it so slippery that the people find it difficult to walk on it. He herewith gives the boys warning to stop their sliding there.

Last night Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, rector of St. Luke's church gave an illustrated lecture on "A Trip Down the Rhine," in addition to the spirited address of the missioner, Rev. J. Bennett Anderson.

WHY JOHN SMITH DID NOT JOIN

An Analysis of the Broken Promise That He Would Go Into a Certain Scheme

Six men worked six hours to get John Smith to go into a scheme with them.

"All right," he said at last, "I'll come in with you. I'll send you a cheque in the morning."

A fine upstanding man was John Smith, with an eye like an eagle and a jaw like iron, and when he said that he would join the other six he hit the table such a blow that it rattled the inkwells.

But when the six congregated together the next morning to enjoy John Smith's cheque they found instead a letter from him stating that after further reflection he had decided not to go into the scheme after all.

Whereupon the six communed together and sought for whys and wherefores.

Said the first, the youngest, and the most impassioned:

"We didn't appeal enough to his enthusiasm. Hang it all, that's the thing enthusiasm. We confined ourselves too much to facts and figures. The multiplication table's all right, but it never set the world on fire. Hereafter we must put a little more excitement into the game. Carry them off their feet, sweep them along with us—that's the thing to do."

"We ought to have made it clearer that he couldn't lose. A man can go into business every hour of the day. That's easy. But what he is looking for is a proposition where he can't lose. Make him think it's an opportunity instead of a risk. People aren't taking risks, but they are grasping opportunities."

Said the third, a cynic:

"The trouble is this: We didn't show him plainly enough he was going to make a nothing out of nothing. That's the only thing that hits them. We all have the same streak in us. We are trying to do the same thing ourselves. We put the thing forward plain as a legitimate business proposition. Well, that isn't good enough. We've got to look sly and crafty, and make him think we can get money for nothing. Then we've got to tap our nose and wink and say, 'Want to come in and get some of it?' That's the only thing they'll fall for."

Said the fourth, a facetious member: "The whole thing was pitched in too serious a key. We went at him too seriously. We kept him under a tension all the time, and as soon as he got away the tension broke and the whole thing was off. After this we must get up a laugh once in a while to relieve the strain. Tell 'em a few stories, tell 'em a few stories, make 'em think we're all a lot of good fellows enjoying ourselves. No more funereal stuff for us, or we'll lose them all, just the same as we lost Smith. You mark my words."

Said the fifth, the optimist:

"Perhaps it's just as well that Smith didn't come in. He's such a big, domineering sort of man that he might have given us a lot of trouble. Still, for future guidance, I think we dwelt too much upon the dark side of things. We thought we were covering all possible contingencies, but, as a matter of fact, we were only suggesting unpleasant thoughts to his mind. We told how we could beat our competitors. Instead of reassuring him this only raised the fact that we would meet with competition. We told him how we could handle the shop-worn stuff. Instead of encouraging him, this only suggested to his mind the fact that there would be shop-worn stuff. And so on. All the same, I must say that I thought we had him sure."

Said the sixth, a man of years and wisdom:

"No, gentlemen, you're all wrong. We had him all right till he got home. Our trouble is this: We are arguing with the wrong man. We ought to have taken the matter up with MRS. John Smith, that's all."—New York Sun.

WHEN THE BABY CRIES

It Is Trying to Speak, and Parents Should Try to Understand

A vigorous protest against treating the baby "as if he were an unmitigated fool" is entered by Florence Hull Winterburn in the July number of The American Baby. "We assume," she says, "that when the baby cries he needs to be hushed, just as if the noise he makes were a sort of automatic creaking from loosened screws. He is taken up, and jerked up and down or rocked to distract his attention, and fairly bullied into silence. It really seems as if we might give baby credit for a little sense; his note of trouble may mean something after all."

The baby's cries, Mrs. Winterburn asserts, are the baby's language, and we ought to take some pains to learn what it means. "A lusty, vigorous cry," she asserts, "indicates temper and willfulness," and is never heard until the baby has learned to be angry, either through seeing signs of ill-temper in others or through being unnecessarily thwarted in his natural impulses. Suffering has its characteristic notes, and there is the sharp cry of pain, varying from the full, loud cry of colic to the terrible, sharp, sudden shriek indicating brain trouble. Catching, breathless, cries, accompanied with a flushed face and hurried breathing, indicate some trouble of the [illegible] Whimpering and fretfulness [illegible] at intestinal disorders."

DEATH AFFECTS FAIR

Jack Stewart, the twelve-year-old and only son of Mrs. W. R. Stewart, of the Stewart ranch, Alberta, died suddenly recently of heart failure. Thirty-five horses brought in from the ranch for Claresholm Fair did not, owing to [illegible] accident, compete.

Engineer Murray on New Run.

Mr. D. Murray, a well known G.T.R. engineer, who runs from Lindsay to Midland on the way-freight has been promoted to engineer on the Port Hope-Toronto express. Mr. Murray succeeds Mr. George Mimms, who made his last trip, and commenced to draw his pension, as he has reached the age limit, 65 years. Engineer Murray's many friends will be pleased to learn of his promotion. He will in all probability live in Toronto.

New Marriage Certificate.

A new form of marriage license is to be issued by the Department for use on and after January 1st. All the old forms are being called in. Provision, however, has been made for any wishing a license in December as the issuers have authority to keep as many as they think they will require for that month. Perhaps the marriage issuer has saved one out for you, if so reward his thoughtfulness by interviewing him at once.

Observed on Monday.

Christmas falling on Sunday this year will be observed on Monday following. The date fixed by statute for holding municipal nominations is the last Monday in December, except when this is Christmas Day, when the nominations are held on the previous Friday. But there is no provision made when the day is observed on Monday, and this year there appears to be nothing for it but to hold the nominations, which is unfortunate.

"Stung" Said the Youth.

Yesterday a local clergyman of the Anglican church, saw a sleigh drawn by a team of horses proceeding along a local street with no driver in command. The church militant arose to the occasion. The clergyman rushed out and grabbed the horses by their halters. Just then a small boy rose from the sleigh box and said "Stung."

Boys Must Not Throw Snowballs.

Chief Thompson, of the police department, has issued a fiat that boys must stop their innocent amusement of plugging the ear of a pedestrian or driver with snowballs thrown by hand, catapult or gatling gun. Windows in the city have been broken by these concentrated globes of congealed vapor. It may seem hard on the boys, but windows cost money to replace, and the man getting a nice hard snow ball in the ear, thrown by a well muscled arm uses language that is, to say the least unparliamentary, and that certainly endangers his, the speaker's chances, for harp and halo.

Dog Killed in Runaway.

Yesterday afternoon a runaway horse dragging an overturned cutter, dashed west on Hunter street. He was simply mixed up in the runaway and went to that bourne whence no barking dog returns.

THE RED YEAR

—By—

LOUIS TRACY.

(CONLINUED.)

murder and destruction. They had no leader. Each man emulated his neighbor in ferocity. Like a pack of wolves on the trail they followed the scent of blood.

The rapid spread of the revolt was not a whit less marvelous than its lack of method or cohesion. Many writers have put forward the theory that, by accident, the mutiny broke out half an hour too soon, and that the rebels meant to surprise the unarmed white garrison while in church.

In reality, nothing was further from their thoughts. If, in a nebulous way, a date was fixed for a combined rising of the native army, it was Sunday, May 31, three weeks later than the day of the outbreak. The soldiers, helped by the scum of the bazaar, after indulging in an orgy of bloodshed and plunder, dispersed and ran for their lives, fearing that the avenging British were hot on their heels. And that was all. There was no plan, no settled purpose. Hate and greed nerved men's hands, but head there was none.

Malcolm's ride towards the centre of the station gave proof in plenty that the mutineers were a disorganized rabble, inspired only by unreasoning rancor against all Europeans, and, like every mob, eager for pillage. At first, he met but few native soldiers. The rioters were budmashes, the predatory class which any city in the world can produce in the twinkling of an eye when the strong arm of the law is paralyzed. Armed with swords and clubs, gangs of men rushed from house to house, murdering the helpless inmates, mostly women and children, seizing such valuables as they could find, and setting the buildings on fire. These ghouls practised the most unheard-of atrocities. They spared no one. Finding a woman lying ill in bed, they poured oil over the bed clothes, and thus started, with a human holocaust, the fire that destroyed the bungalow.

They were rank cowards, too. Another Englishwoman, also an invalid, was fortunate in possessing a devoted ayah. This faithful creature saved her mistress by her quick-witted shriek that the mem-sahib must be avoided at all costs, as she was suffering from smallpox! The destroyers fled in terror, not waiting even to fire the house.

It was not until days later that Malcolm knew the real nature of the scene through which he rode. He saw the flames he heard the Mohammedan yell of "Ali! Ali!" and the Hindu shriek of "Jail Jail!" but the quick fall of night, its growing dusk deepened by the spreading clouds of smoke, annd his own desperate haste to reach the cavalry lines, prevented him from appreciating the full extent of the horrors surrounding his path.

Arrived at the parade ground, he met Craigie and Melville Clarke, with the one troop that remained of the regiment of which he was so proud. There were no other officers to be seen, so these three held a consultation. They were sure that the white troops would soon put an end to the prevalent disorder, and they decided to do what they could, within a limited area, to save lifea nd property. Riding towards his own bungalow to obtain a sword and a couple of revolvers, Malcolm came upon a howling mob in the act of swarming into the compound of Craigie's house. Some score of troopers heard his fierce cry for help, and fell upon the would-be murderers, for Mrs. Craigie and her children were alone in the bungalow. The riff raff were soon driven off, and Malcolm not yet realizing the gravity of the emeute told the men to safeguard the mem-sahib until they received further orders, while he went to join his senior officer.

Incredible as it may seem, the tiny detachment obeyed him to the letter. They held the compound against repeated assaults, and lost several men in hand to-hand fighting.

The history of that terrible hour is brightened by many such instances of native fealty. The Treasury Guard, composed of men of the 8th Irregular Cavalry, not only refused to join the rebels but defended their charge boldly. A week later, of their own free will, they escorted the treasure and records from Meerut to Agra, the transfer being made for greater saftey, and beat off several attacks by insurgents on the way. They were well rewarded for their fidelity, yet, such was the power of fanaticism, within less than two months they deserted to a man!

The acting Commissioner of Meerut, Mr. Greathed, whose residence was in the centre of the sacked area, took his wife to the flat roof of his house when he found that escape was impossible. A gang of ruffians ransacked every room, and, piling the furniture, set it alight, but a trustworthy servant, named Golab Khan, told them that he would reveal the hiding-place of the sahib and mem-sahib if they followed quickly. He thus decoyed them away, and the fortunate couple were enabled to reach the British lines under cover of the darkness.

And, while the sky flamed red over a thousand fires, and the blood of unhappy Europeans, either civilian families or the wives and children of military officers, was being spilt like water, where were the two regiments of white troops who, by prompt action, could have saved Meerut and prevented the siege of Delhi?

That obvious question must receive a strange answer. They were bivouacked on their parade-ground, doing nothing. The General in command of the station was a feeble old man, suffering from senile decay. His Brigadier, Archdale Wilson, issued orders that were foolish. He sent the Dragoons to guard the empty gaol! After a long delay in issuing ammunition to the Rifles, he marched them and the gunners to the deserted parade-ground of the native infantry. They found a few bolated sowars of the 3rd Cavalry, who took refuge in a wood, and the artillery opened fire at the trees! News came that the rebels were plundering the British quarters, and the infantry went there in hot haste. And then they halted, those the mutineers were crying, "Quick, brother, quick! The white men are coming!" and the scared suggestion went round: "To Delhi! That is our only chance!"

The moon rose on a terrified mu-

"THE KLONDYKE'S MOTHER LODE"

The storehouse from which the famous placer creeks, Bonanza and Eldorado, receive their fabulous wealth, have been uncovered on the claims of The Victoria Gulch Mines, situated on the ridge at the head of Victoria and Gay gulches. The company's holdings consist of four quartz claims and about 200 acres 14 miles from Dawson, on a good wagon road and two miles from the Klondyke Mines R.R. There are two true quartz veins, between perfect walls 6 and 10 feet wide on the property, the free milling ore from which is literally encrusted with the yellow metal. Read what some of the world's greatest authorities say:

R. G. McConnell, B.A., of the Geological Survey, says in his report on the Klondyke Goldfields.

"A sample in which no free gold could be detected with the naked eye, or an ordinary magnifying glass, was assayed in the laboratory of the survey and gave 2,625 oz. of gold and 3,267 oz. of silver to the ton."

Pro. Henry A. Meirs, D. Sc. F.R.S., Waynflete, Professor of Mineralogy in the University of Oxford, in collaboration with Professor A. P. Coleman in a report to the Minister of the Interior, says: "At the head of Victoria Gulch which runs into Bonanza, a creek opposite Gay Gulch, a tributary of Eldorado, and at a height of about 2,300 feet above Dawson, has been opened, what appears to be a true quartz vein, showing nuggety gold in abundance. The gold is distinctly crystalline in character, and the crystals are of a peculiar form having a triangular outline due to the fact that they are octahedra, and in particular a remarkable variety known as "spinel twins." Now it is significant that the gold found in Victoria gulch is also crystalline and has the same characteristic outline, here then we have fairly convincing evidence that the gold found in a stream gravel is identical with that found in situ in a quartz at the head of the valley and in this instance there can be little doubt as to the origin of the gold."

Dr. Eugene Haanel, Director of Mines, a noted authority on mineralogy in a report to the department in 1902, says: "Masses of quartz were seen protruding from the surface all about the locality, and it needed only to wet the surface of the quartz with water to reveal the bright specks of gold adhering to their surface.

"Gay gulch and Victoria gulch, the former a tributary of Eldorado creek, the latter of Bonanza creeks, limit Victoria Hill toward the sources of Bonanza and Eldorado creeks. Above Victoria and Gay gulches, Bonanza and Eldorado creeks respectively are unproductive, below these gulches the creeks are rich. It seems a reasonable conclusion that the gold in these creeks, at least as far as they flank the side of Victoria Hill, was derived from Victoria Hill."

Mr. R. W. Brock, Director Geological Survey, says: "The district is not glaciated. Gold in the recent gravel freshly derived from its original source is similar to gold in the corresponding White Channel gravel. Many of the gold grains and most of the nuggets, enclose quartz. Quartz pebbles are found containing gold, some at least very rich in gold. The quartz of the boulders is similar to the quartz of the veins, and gold of the veins to gold of the gravels. From the foregoing and other facts, it is obvious that the gold is absolutely local in origin, derived from the basins of the pay gulches and creeks."

Fred. T. Congdon, Member for the Yukon, stated on the floor of the House of Commons last January that some of the richest gold quartz in the world was being mined close to Dawson.

Just stop and think of the immense possibilities of rich returns from the development of the claims of The Victoria Gulch mines, when two miles of the Mother Lode runs through the property from which the $55,000,000 in placer gold has been already won from Eldorado and Bonanza creeks, the one-third the Klondyke's entire output. 100,000 shares of treasury stock of the par value of $1 is now offered for public subscription at 25 cents per share fully paid and non-assessable.

No further issue of treasury stock will have to be made at this price.

THOUGHTS OF A BUSY FELLOW

negotiated without detection, and were it destroyed by fire, from its peculiar character, no loss would ensue to Mr. Rogers." Query: was this not probably a fac-simile of the note?

ROBERT LORD CLIVE.

On November 22nd, 1774, Robert, Lord Clive, died by his own hand. He had just completed his 49th year. "Some lineaments of the character of the man," says Lord Macaulay, "were early discerned in the child. There remain letters written by his relations when he was in his seventh year; and by these letters it appears that, even at that early age, his strong will and his fiery passions had begun to cause great uneasiness in his family. 'Fighting,' says one of his uncles, 'to which he is out of measure addicted, gives his temper such a fierceness and imperiousness, that he flies out on every trifling occasion.' The old people of the neighborhood still remember to have heard from their parents how Bob Clive climbed to the top of the lofty steeple of Market Drayton, and with what terror the inhabitants saw him seated on a stone spout near the summit. They also relate how he formed all the idle lads of the town into a kind of predatory army, and compelled the shop-keepers to submit to a tribute of apples and half pence, in consideration of which he guaranteed the security of their windows. He was sent from school to school, making very little progress in his learning, and gaining for himself everywhere the character of an exceedingly naughty boy."

ENGLAND'S BOXING DAY.

The Dyers and Cleaners Association of London, England, has resolved that all dyers' and cleaners' branch shops shall close December 26th and 27th. This means that they will observe Monday as Christmas Day. The day following Christmas is always a holiday in England, and is known as Boxing Day, when general jollification prevails. While Canadian theatres are open Christmas afternoon and evening, those in England are shut up tight. On Boxing Night, however, English theatres start a new season, as it were, some with a pantomime of costly procuction. A pantomime is an extravaganza, or absurdity, usually created out of a fairy tale, and staged regardless of expense. Such a piece gives unlimited opportunity for introducing original scenic offerings, and something new and novel in this direction is looked for every Boxing Night. From the pantomime evolved the burlesque or musical extravaganza. The first burlesque was named "The Forty Thieves," and was presented at the Gaiety Theatre, London, Eng., some thirty odd years ago. Its cast included Terry and Royce, two of London's then famous comedians, ranking next to Toole, and Arthur Roberts, a popular music hall star. "The Forty Thieves" took London by storm with its originality and comedy, and ran two seasons to capacity houses.

WHERE SOCIALISM IS AT FAULT

The ideal condition toward which they are striving is that the workman, having become the master of all the means of production, are to obtain all the comforts and pleasures now possessed by well-to-do people. They will all be well clothed and housed and well nourished and will all walk on electrically lighted, asphalted streets and frequent concert and theatres and read papers and books and ride in automobiles.

But that everybody may have certain things, the production of those things must be apportioned, and consequently it must be decided how long each workman is to work.

How is that to be decided? Statistics may show what people require in a society fettered by capital, by competition and by want. But no statistics can show how much is wanted and what articles are needed to satisfy the demands in a society where the means of production will belong to the society itself—that is, where the people will be free.

The demands in such a society cannot be defined, and they will always infinitely exceed the possibility of satisfying them. Everybody will wish to have all the riches now possessed and, therefore, it is quite impossible to define the quantity of goods that such a society will require.

Furthermore, how are people to be induced to work at articles which some consider necessary and others unnecessary or even harmful?

If it be found necessary for every one to work, say six hours a day, in order to satisfy the requirements of the society, who in a free society can compel a man to work those six hours, if he knows that part of the time is spent in producing things he considers unnecessary or even harmful?

It is understood that under the present state of things most varied articles are produced with great economy of exertion, thanks to machinery and thanks especially to the division of labor, which has been brought to an extreme nicety and carried to the highest perfection, and that those articles are profitable to the manufacturers, and that we find them convenient and pleasant to use. But the fact that these articles are well made and produced with little expenditure of strength, that they are profitable to the capitalists and convenient for us, does not prove that free men would, without compulsion, continue to produce.

There is now doubt that Krupp's, with the present division of labor, makes admirabl cannons very quickly and artfully.

N. M. very quickly and artfully produces silk goods. X., Y. and Z. produces toilet scents, powder to preserve the complexion, or glazed packs of cards, and K. produces whiskey of choice flavor.

But cannons and scents and whiskey are wanted by those who wish to obtain control of the Chinese market or who like to get drunk or are concerned about their complexions, but there will always be some who will consider these articles very harmful and who will refuse to make them.

But besides this, there is another question.

The now existing question of labor is conditioned by the necessity of the workers. A worker only agrees to live all his life under ground, or to make the one-hundredth part of an article all his life because he will otherwise not have the means to live.

But it will not be by compulsion that a workman owing the means of production and not suffering want can be induced to accept such stupefying and soul destroying conditions of labor as those in which people now work.

Division if labor is undoubtedly very profitable and natural to people, but if people are free, division of labor is only possible up to a certain very limited extent, which has been far overstepped by our society.

Rodbertus says that communal division of labor unites mankind. That is true, but it is only free division, such as people voluntarily adopt, that unites.

To suppose that with communalized means of production there would be such an abundance of things as is now produced by compulsory division of labor is like supposing that after the emancipation of the serf the domestic orchestras and theatres and the home-made carpets and laces and the elaborate gardens which depended on serf labor would continue to exist as before.

The supposition that when the Socialist ideal is realized every one will be free and will at the same time have at his disposal everything or almost everything that is now made use of by the well-to-do classes involves an obvious self-contradiction.

The foregoing was written by Count Leo Tolstoy some years ago, and is replete with sound reasoning. Equality of the human race is an utter impossibility. Nature has decreed that each created being shall possess an individuality of his or her own—in physique, tastes, thought, expression and deed. Divide the world's wealth up to-morrow, and in a short time the present order of things will again prevail—the few will have once more acquired riches, whilst the many will have squandered their substance or proven constitutionally incompetent to avail themselves of opportunities afforded them.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for additions and alterations to the Public Building, Peterborough Ontario," will be received at this office until 4.00 p.m., on Wednesday December 21, 1910, for work mentioned.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at this Department, and on application to Wm. Blackwell, Esq., Architect, Peterborough, Ont.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent. (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS,

Lecture to Boy Scouts at the Armouries

On Saturday evening Dr. A. W. McPherson delivered a most interesting and instructive lecture to the Boy Scouts belonging to the brigade of Scout-Master Neal, vice-principal of the central school, on "First Aid to the Wounded."

While termed a lecture, the instruction was imparted in conversational form, the doctor stating a case and then asking the boys what they would do under the circumstances.

For instance, said he, suppose you had a patient with a broken leg and another with a nasty gash, which would you attend to first?

The general answer was "the cut."

Why? asked the doctor.

To stop the bleeding, came in chorus.

Right!

As a severe wound causes shock to the system, weakening the action of the heart and lungs, the doctor impressed upon his hearers the importance of plenty of fresh air. People must not be allowed to crowd round the patient, preventing the free circulation of air.

In most cases stimulants were necessary and the boys suggested hot coffee, tea, or alcohol. Dr. McPherson told them hot coffee was one of the best to use.

The patient should always be kept warm and at rest.

The doctor then enquired how the boys would remove the clothing from a badly wounded case, and gained a number of very practical replies.

In poison cases, the boys recommended a number of emetics which received the endorsement of the doctor. He told them that in the case of a burning poison, such as carbolic acid, it would be advisable to make the patient drink copiously to dilute the poison and prevent again burning the passages on its being ejected.

The evident interest in the subject shown by the boy Scouts and the intelligence evidenced by their answers and questions must have been very gratifying to the lecturer, who received a hearty ovation at the conclusion of his remarks, and a vote of thanks, proposed by Mr. Neal, was tendered him.

The lecture was well attended by the boys, and another lecture will be given them at the Armories next Saturday evening.

Young Lady Expired Suddenly on Sunday

Yesterday morning, a Miss Flaherty of Brantford, who was visiting her sister, Mrs. Andrews, at 675 George street, collapsed suddenly and falling over the breakfast table, expired almost immediately.

The young lady, who was only 20 years of age, had been suffering from tuberculosis for some time, one lung being completely gone. Her sudden demise will be a great shock to her relatives and friends.

T.A.S. Ask For Exemption From Taxes

The Finance Committee met on Friday afternoon, there being present Ald. Bradburn, chairman; Mayor Morrow and Ald. Phelan.

Mr. D. O'Connell was heard in a request of St. Peter's T.A.S. that legislation be obtained to exempt the society's property from taxation and that the taxes on the rooms formerly occupied by the society be remitted for half of 1910.

It was moved by Mayor Morrow and seconded by Ald. Phelan that the request of St. Peter's T.A.S. for legislation to exempt their property from taxation and for the usual remission of half of the year's taxes on the rooms formerly occupied by them be granted, it being understood that no fraternal society will benefit by their exemption.

It was moved by Mayor Morrow and seconded by Ald. Phelan, that the offer of the Bank of Toronto to carry the city's account for 1911 on the same terms as this year, be accepted, namely the bank to allow on all credit balances 3½ per cent., and to charge 4½ per cent. on all debit balances up to the amount of the combined credit balances, and 5 per cent. on all debit balances in excess of the combined credit balances.

It was decided on motion that the County of Peterborough be paid $64.68 on account of witness fees in the case of King vs. Gorham.

A by law was ordered to be prepared to confirm the award of the arbitrators in the arbitration between the County of Peterborough and the city in regard to the expenses of the administration of justice.

The chairman was authorized to pay the Public Library Board a balance of $100 of the appropriations for Public Library purposes.

A number of accounts were ordered to be paid

The Dickson Co. of Peterborough Now Own the Entire Waterpower at Lakefield.

The "Lakefield News."—By purchasing the water power from Mr. S. R. Leggott, the Dickson Co. of Peterborough, now own the entire water power in Lakefield. The deal was put through last week and ended what might have resulted in serious complications. Mr. Leggott, who some time ago, purchased the old Griffin planing mill and water power, decided to build a new power house for his electric light plant, and last week commenced blasting out the old tail race of the water power. The Dickson Co. objected to the proceedings and on Friday sent men up from Peterborough to stop the work, and to use force if necessary. The men saw how things were and refused to work, which was a lucky thing for them, as a large number of men in the village were ready to back Mr. Leggott up with any assistance he might require. Peaceful negotiations were then commenced, with the result that Mr. Leggott sold his water power and mill to the Dickson Co. for a good figure.

CANADA'S FIRE LOSS IN NOVEMBER.

Canada's fire loss for November is estimated at $1,943,708, an increase of $1,008,517 over November, 1909, but a decrease of $4,676,730 from the month of October, says the Monetary Times in a late issue.

Peterborough seems to have been one of the fortunate places, for in a list of 35 fires, where the loss was $10,000 or over, this city does not appear.

Brandon, Man., heads the list with a loss of $250,000, through the destruction of the asylum.

Orillia Gets a New Industry.

The Canada Keg and Barrel Company will locate their factory in Orillia, occupying five acres adjoining the smelter lots. The company will erect four buildings, two of which will be 100 x 80 feet, one 80 x 60 and an office building. The concern will employ from 80 to 100 hands at the start. Plans for the buildings are to be asked for at once. The company expects to break ground for the building within ten days.

COASTING ON SIDEWALKS.

One of the things that should be checked in this town is children sleighriding on the sidewalks, and particularly after night. The walks are made in a tremendous slippery condition and unsafe to walk on, besides the danger of running on to some person and breaking their legs, or otherwise injuring them. It is to be hoped the authorities will look into this matter.

ALERTS WIN THE JR. CHAMIONSHIP

(Special to The Times.)

Hamilton, Dec. 3.—Before a large crowd at Britania Park, the Alerts and Petrolea met this afternoon to decide the junior championship of the O.R.F.U. It was very cold and the grounds were as hard as a rock. At Petrolea last Saturday, in the first of the home-and-home series, the game ended in favor of the home team by 13 to 4. The Petrolea bunch brought down a silver band and rooters' club, three hundred strong. The Alerts were supported by the band of the 91st Highlanders and a rooters' club of large dimensions, which marched through the city from the Gore.

Twenty-Six Japanese Found Guilty of Plot and Will Get Extreme Penalty.

(Special to The Times.)

Tokio, Dec. 3.—Twenty-six Japanese who were charged with being concerned in the plot to assassinate the emperor while visiting the military school outside Tokio, have been found guilty by the special secret court which was constituted to try the case.

The court recommended the infliction of the severest penalty under the law—namely, capital punishment.

RELIGION MAY DETHRONE ALFONSO

Spain Will Follow Portugal Should Cortes Not Accept Canalejas' Reform Proposals.

(Special to The Times.)

Madrid, Dec. 3.—An intimate friend of the present Spanish premier in the course of conversation a few evenings ago, predicted that Spain would follow Portugal's lead in regard to dispensing with the monarchy should the Cortes not accept the reform proposals laid down by Senor Canalejas.

These include the alteration of the form of religious oath and the passing into law of the "el candado" (padlock) decree, under which no more religious establishments can enter Spain without special permission from the government.

BELGIAN KING WAS BOMBARDED

Also Universal Suffrage—Albert was Greatly Annoyed—Was a Protest Against His Ministers.

Brussels, Dec. 3.—While King Albert and the Queen were driving to the Parliament Building on the opening of the session, they were pelted with leaflets demanding a dissolution and universal suffrage. Four arrests were made.

The King appeared to be greatly annoyed, especially in the Chamber of Deputies, where he was again pelted with Socialist leaflets and prevented for ten minutes by the persistent shouts of the Socialists from delivering his speech from the throne.

It is reported that the monarch was much surprised and offended by this disloyal demonstration, despite the loyal counter-demonstrations in the streets, and the fact that in Parliament the Socialist leader, M. Vandervelde, exclaimed: "We are not clamoring against you, but against your ministers."

The occurrences are interpreted as foreshadowing a somewhat violent political agitation

RAISED $700,000 TO MEET BANK'S DEFICIT

Call on Shareholders of Ontario Bank Meeting With Results.

The Royal Trust Company, liquidators of the Ontario Bank, have received nearly $700,000 as a result of the call of 95 per cent. issued to the shareholders under the double liability provision. The deficit to be met is $600,000, and it is expected that in a day or two more the remaining $100,000 will be realized.

Should this call and the asset net more than the required sum to meet the liabilities, there will be a return made to the shareholders, but this is not to be looked for within the next two years.

The bank suspended payment in 1906, and on Sept. 28, 1908, the winding-up order was made. It is expected that at least two years more will be needed to realize upon the assets, which consist of Fort William and other real estate, stocks, etc. A 10 per cent. dividend will shortly be declared to the creditors, who will ultimately be paid in full.

She Denounced Her Murdered Husband

STARTLING EVIDENCE GIVEN BY A WITNESS AGAINST MRS. LILLIAN M. GLOVER.

Miss LeBlanc Cheerful—Why Did Wife of Murdered Man Pay Over $4,131 to Lawyer a Few Days After the Murder.

Cambridge, Mass. Dec. 3.—With the startling revelation of Goel Freeman to the effect that Mrs. William M. Glover denounced her husband, Clarence F. Glover as he lay dead in the Waltham home, fresh in their minds, a great crowd gathered early today to fight for entrance to the trial of Hattie Le Blanc, who is charged with Glover's murder.

Of almost equal interest, it was said, would be the cross examination of Lawyer Samuel D. Elmore who resumed the witness stand today.

Elmore has figured prominently in the Glover affairs since the tragedy. Mrs. Glover testified that she paid him $4,131 a few days after the murder. She could give no reason for the payment of the money futher than that he needed it.

The fact that some of the women left the court room with burning cheeks at some of the testimony, the day previous, did not prevent a great line forming shortly after daylight most of whom were women.

The trial is attracting the widest attention because of the dramatic developments and the youth of the accused. Hattie Le Blanc looked more cheerful today, than any day since the trial began. She smiled, showing rows of white even teeth at times.

One thing was noticeable—that her eyes and the eyes of Mrs. Glover, her former employer, never met so far as close observers could tell while Mrs. Glover was in the court room.

Grand Trunk Pacific Dining Cars.

The volume of business which has offered on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway since their passenger service was put into effect last July, has necessitated the early increase of equipment, and the Canada Car Co. have turned out for the Grand Trunk Pacific three new dining cars, which are models of elegance and beauty.

The exterior length of the car is 82 feet, and the length of the dining room 32 feet 6 inches, the balance of the interior of the car being taken up by the modern kitchen, refrigerators and pantry. They are mounted on standard six-wheel trucks. The platforms are of steel and the vestibule of the Pullman type. They are equipped with high speed quick action Westinghouse air brakes. The interior of the car is finished in plain and figured mahogany with a harmony of colors that is pleasing to the eye. The cars are heated by steam, and lighted with electric light.

The dining room accommodates 30 people at one sitting. The floors are covered with handsome carpets of an exclusive design, and with a pattern conforming to the general color scheme of the interior. These cars are equipped with all the improvements and safety appliances that are known to modern skill and are the handsomest dining cars that have been turned out from Canadian shops.

They will leave for the West in a day or two, and will be objects of interest as well as supplying comfort to Western travellers, and will be an addition to the already well known service that is being operated by the Grand Trunk Pacific in Wester Canada

U. S. Would Spend Every Man, Every Ship and Every Dollar

London, Dec. 3.—Sir Thomas Vesey Strong, the lord mayor, and corporation of the City of London today gave a luncheon at Guildhall to 750 American sailors from the visiting fleet at Gravesend and Weymouth.

The blue jackets arrived by train at Charing Cross, headed by Commander Sims of the Minnesota and the officers of his staff, and accompanied by the band of the Coldstream Guards, which the war office had ordered out for the occasion, marched through the streets in the west end of the city to the ancient hall, where so many famous guests have been honored.

The dining was followed first by formal toasts to King George and President Taft. Sir Thomas then welcomed the sailors.

Replying Commander Sims spoke with enthusiasm of the friendly manner in which the men of the fleet had been received in London. This, he said, could not happen in any other country, but was made possible by the strong ties of blood between the two countries. Speaking for himself, he believed that if the time ever came when the British Empire was menaced by an external enemy they might count upon every man, every drop of blood, every ship and every dollar of their kindred across the sea.

Chief Boatswain's Mate, E. L. Benson, of the Battleship Minnesata replied on behalf of the men, expressing thanks for the entertainment in a neat speech, which was frequently interrupted by the guests with spontaneous cheers for the Lord Mayor and the City of London.

Thirty Thousand Coming to Canada

UNPRECEDENTED RUSH FROM SCOTLAND SCHEDULED FOR NEXT YEAR.

Many British Teachers Want to Come—Scotland is Being Drained of All the Best Elements in Rural Population.

London, Dec. 3.—Obed Smith, the Dominion Emigration Commissioner, tells me that the pressure upon the correspondence department is so great—though it is the winter season—that he has had to take additional office room near his headquarters in Charing Cross.

From Scotland we hear that 30,000 of the very best type of agricultural laborers are expected to go to Canada next year, and travelling lecturers and officials of the Commonwealth as well as of the Dominion are busy urging the claims of their respective areas. The Outlook in alluding to this matter says:

The latest statistics of Canadian immigration will be disquieting to anyone who has faith in a genuine revival of British agriculture. Scotland, especially, is being drained of all the best elements in its rural population. Formerly the man who could not get on at home drifted to the colonies in search of a situation. Now, it is the small farmer with capital who is seizing the wider opportunity for investment offered by the Dominion.

There is a volume of enquiry through the educational departments in London from school teachers who are dissatisfied with their prospects here, and who want to ascertain just how far they would be welcomed in Canada, and to what extent their certificates will be recognized. It is estimated that to produce a teacher costs the state $1000 at least, and as there is a dearth of teachers in Canada, the argument is made that the Dominion would be making a good bargain even if it had to pay the fares of the English teachers, many of whom are in poor circumstances.

The statement of The Globe, Toronto, reprinted in London papers that teachers are starving in England, while Ontario needs them, and that the London staff of the Ontario government might find useful occupation in striking the balance has occasioned comment, and resulted in many enquiries being made. The agent general of the province informs me that he has no power to assist teachers in this direction, and that the policy of the government was clearly defined by Dr. Pyne, minister of education, when he was in London last August.

ASSESSMENT FAVORS.

With almost every municipal election the question comes up, in some form or other for the consideration of the electorate, of fixed assessments and exemptions for industries. There are always circumstances under which manufacturers can claim a privilege of this kind and, often with good reason and public support.

The principle of granting fixed assessments and exemptions is, in a broad sense, contrary to the law of equity and should be prohibited by provincial legislation, but while the law permits municipalities to extend favors of this character each applicant has to be considered in relation to the circumstances that immediately effect it. Two outstanding arguments may well be used to justify individual favors with respect to assessment or exemption is to hold an industry which is an asset to a city, whereas to withold is to lose it, give the exemption or fixed assessment, providing the industry is sufficient.

Second, a manufacturing concern or an industry is only valuable to itself and to a community while it remains a going concern. It is not like real estate. When industry ceases it depreciates, usually to a quarter or at best a third of its former value.

Ordinarily it is not a sound banking principle to lend capital to a manufacturer except what is needed from time to time for specific business purposes. The advances are usually short date loans which can be quickly called in. The reason is the one stated. While factories are running and producing they can make money, but concerns that are worth $100,000 as going concerns may sell for only $25,000 when adversity comes. In certain instances, consequently, it is good business to encourage an industry until it can get on its feet. When it is able to declare dividends or spend large sums on improvements it should pay a proportionate rate of taxes with other businesses. The voting public should weigh carefully the cases of each by-law of this kind as presented and not hurriedly condemn all applicants because in a general sense the principle of assessment privileges is bad.

TIRED OF BONUS HUNTERS.

Bobcaygeon Independent: Sick and tired with the unsuccessful experience with big bonus hunting industries, the city of Guelph is taking a new course. A nursery for industries, a sort of incubator for the hatching of factories, is to be established where promising manufacturers can start in a small way, and be assisted as their efforts to stand and establish big factories that will ultimately mean the employment of many hands and the building up of the city industrially.

The idea originated with Chairman Sam Carter of the light and heat commission who stated to the Board of Trade that the commission was contemplating buying an old turned out furniture factory, that belongs to the commission, remodelling it and putting it to a profitable condition. They will rent rates on manufacturing apartments to promising, though small manufacturing concerns, giving them room and power at actual cost. They will only make sure that the people they help are really ambitious to establish larger industries when they can. The commission might spend $5,000 fitting up the building and putting in motors for the tenants he said.

The main scheme for which the special meeting of the board was called, however was the establishment of a co-operative furniture factory in a vacant building which the city has had on its hands as the result of a failure of the Morlock Co. The scheme met with approval. The co-operative company is to be organized and the necessary $10,000 capital raised by stock subscriptions right away. The city is giving the building and machinery in it almost free of rent, or at least at a nominal figure.

Miss Violet Hedley and Miss Estella Hogg of Fraserville, were in the city yesterday.

THE RED YEAR

—By—

LOUIS TRACY.

(CONLINUED.)

trudging or riding the forty miles of road between Meerut and the Mogul capital. All night long they expected to hear the roar of the pursuing guns, to find the sabers of the Dragoons flashing over their heads. But they were quite safe. Archdale Wilson had ordered his men to bivouac, and they obeyed, though it is within the bounds of probability that had the rank and file known what the morrow's sun would reveal, there might have been another Mutiny in Meerut that night, a Mutiny of Revenge and Reprisal.

It was not that wise and courageous counsel was lacking. Captain Rosser offered to cut off the flight of the rebels to Delhi if one squadron of his Dragoons and a few guns were given to him. Lieutenant Moller of the 11th Native Infantry, appealed to General Hewitt for permission to ride alone to Delhi, and warn the authorities there of the outbreak. Sanction was refused in both cases. The bivouac was evidently deemed a masterpiece of strategy.

That Moller would have saved Delhi cannot be doubted. Next day, finding that the wife of a brother officer had been killed, he sought and obtained evidence of the identity of the poor lady's murderer, traced the man, followed him, arrested him single-handed and brought him before a drumhead court-martial, by whose orders he was hanged forthwith.

Craigie, Rosser, Moller, and a few other brave spirits showed what could have been done. But negligence and apathy were stronger that night than courage or self-reliance. For good or ill, the torrent of rebellion was suffered to break loose, and it soon engulfed a continent.

Malcolm failed to find Craigie, who had taken his troop in the direction of some heavy firing. Passing a bungalow that was blazing furiously, he saw in the compound the corpses of two women. A little farther on, he discovered the bodies of a man and four children in the centre of the road and he recognized, in the man, a well known Scotch trader whose shop was the largest and best in Meerut.

Then, for the first time, he understood what this appalling thing meant. He thought of Winifred, and his blood went cold. She and her uncle were alone in that remote house, far away on the Aligarh Road, and completely cut off from the comparative safe northerly side of the station.

Giving heed to nought save this new horror of his immagination, he wheeled Nejdi and rode at top speed towards Mr. Mayne's bungalow. As he neared it his worst fears were confirmed. One wing was on fire, but the flames had almost burnt themselves out. Charred beams and blackened walls showed stark and gaunt in the glow of a smouldering mass of wreckage. Twice he rode round the ruined house calling he knew not what in his agony, and looking with the eyes of one on the verge of lunacy for some dread token of the fate that had overtaken the inmates.

He came across several bodies. They were all natives. One of two were servants, he fancied, but the rest were marauders from the city. Calming himself, with the coolness of utter despair, he dismounted, and examined the slain. Their injuries had been inflicted with some sharp, heavy instrument. None of them bore gunshot wounds. That was strange. If there was a fight, and Mayne, perhaps even Winifred, had taken part in the defense, they must have used the sporting rifles in the house. And that suggested an examination of the dark interior. He dreaded the task, but it must not be shirked.

The porch was intact, and he hung Nejdi's bridle on the hook where he had placed it little more than an hour ago. The spacious drawing-room had been gutted. The doors (Indian bungalows have hardly any windows, each door being half glass) were open front and back. The room was empty, thank Heaven! He was about to enter and search the remaining apartments which had escaped the fire, when a curiously cracked voice hailed him from the foot of the garden.

"Halt! Who go dare?" it cried, in the queer jargon of the native regiments.

Malcolm saw a man hurrying towards him. He recognized him as a pensioner named Syed Mir Khan, an Afghan. The old man a born fire-eater, insisted on speaking English to the sahib-log, unless, by rare chance, he encountered some person acquainted with Pushtu, his native language.

"I come quick, sahib," he shouted. "I know all things. I save sahib and miss-sahib. Yes, by dam, I slewed the cut-heads."

As he came nearer, he brandished a huge tulwar, and the split skulls and severed vertebrae of certain sentry lying in the garden became explicable. He delighted in having a sahib to listen, so went on.

The mob appearing, I attacked with great ferocity—yes, like cruel lion, by George. My fighting was outrageous. I had my actions with the pigs."

At last he quieted down sufficiently to tell Malcolm what had happened. He, with others, thinking the miss-sahib had gone to church, was smoking the hookah of gossip in a neighboring compound. It was an instance of the amazing rapidity with which the rioters spread over the station that a number of them reached the Maynes' bungalow five minutes after the first alarm was given. It should be explained here that Mr. Mayne, being a commissioner of Oudh, was only visiting Meerut in order to learn the details of a system of revenue collection which it was proposed to adopt in the sequestered estates of the Oudh zamindars. He had rented one of the best houses in the place, the owner being in Delhi, and Syed Mir Khan held a position akin to that of caretaker in a British household. The looters knew how valuable were the contents of such an important residence, and the earliest contingent thought they would have matters entirely their own way.

Some one shouted, however, Mr Mayne loaded all his guns, while Winifred made more successful search for the servants. The Afghan was true to his salt, and their own retainers, who had come with them from Lucknow, remained steadfast at this crisis. Hence the mob received a warm reception, but the fighting had

PRETTY CLOTHES CAUSE OF MURDER

WAS RICH WIDOW STRANGLED TO DEATH?

Evidences of Desparate Struggle in the Home of Aged and Affluent Woman.

Canton, O., Dec. 5.—Did Katie Manz, a 16-year-old Massillon girl, deliberately poison her sister Elizabeth, three years her senior, with strychnine because she was jealous over her sister's wardrobe, more brilliant than her own.

This is the problem which has been the staple of discussion among the people of Stark county and its vicinity ever since the body of Elizabeth Manz was found in her home one night last March, and which is expected to be solved, with the aid of alienists, when the younger sister is placed on trial here to-day on the charge of murder. The case has attracted wide attention and everyone—with the possible exception of the young girl accused of the crime—is looking forward to the trial with much interest. As for Katie her only anxiety in regards to the trial appears to be a fear that the clothes she has may not make her look quite stunning enough when she faces the judge and jury, and the court room filled with curious spectators.

The prosecution believes it has sufficient evidence to convict the young girl of first degree murder. It has been established that immediately following the mysterious death of Elizabeth Manz, her sister Katie fled from the home in Massillon, taking with her the best of her sister's clothes. The next day she was found in Akron, where she had applied for work under an assumed name. She faced her accusers calmly, and told them that her sister was dead before she left the house.

The most damaging admission made by the girl is the fact that she purchased strychnine at a Massillon drug store shortly before her sister's death and also bought a small quantity of chloroform. The girl declared she bought the strychnine for a man, whose name she could not give. This man, she declared, subsequently handed her two capsules, which she believed to contain quinine. One of these tablets she laid on the table beside her sister when she left the house on the day of the tragedy. The chloroform, she said, was bought for cleaning house.

According to the statements of mutual friends Katie had for a long time harbored a grudge against her elder sister. The ill feeling is said to have had its origin in the fact that Katie had run away from home and after an absence of some time had been located in New Philadelphia and forced to return home through the efforts of her sister Elizabeth. In consequence of this Katie is said to have often made threats to "get even" with her sister. This feeling of animosity combined with jealousy of her sister's good looks and pretty clothes, is believed by the authorities to have been the motive of the alleged murder.

The family of the accused girl have hired able lawyers to defend her. It is believed that a plea of insanity will be made in her defense. The mother of the two girls has been dead for many years, and according to the father, Katie grew up headstrong and absolutely beyond his control.

Despite the fact that she is far from being beautiful, Katie Manz, undoubtedly possesses peculiar powers of fascination. So pronounced is her attractiveness that the county authorities fear the effects of it upon the jury of twelve men when she faces trial evidences of her powers of fascination have been numerous and striking during the eight or nine months she has been confined in the Stark county jail.

Only a short time ago the authorities discovered the existence of a clandestine love affair between the accused girl and a young man living in Saginaw, Mich. Though the two had never met they had corresponded regularly and it was found that the young man had sent her money to buy books and candy and some new clothes that she might look "stunning" when brought into court.

Ceteus Willaman, awaiting execution in Stark county jail for murder, became fascinated with the girl and presented her with the jewelry which had belonged to his murdered wife. Warden Isaac Slusser was ousted by the Sheriff on the ground that Katie had worked on Slusser's sympathies and had been accorded unwarranted privileges. Slusser promptly retaliated by declaring that the Sheriff, who is married and 45 years old, had been very familiar with Katie since her confinement in jail and on several occasions had taken the girl out riding in his automobile. Altogether, the sixteen-year-old girl has succeeded in throwing the usual stern discipline of the county jail into utter confusion during the period of her residence there and the authorities express the hope that they may soon get her off their hands.

DRY FARM POINTERS

In a recent bulletin on dry farm crops issued by the Experiment Station of Montana Agricultural College, the following pointers for the dry farmer are given:

1. Science and diligence will quadruple the harvest.
2. Water is of first importance. Use all possible means to prevent its waste.
3. From seven to ten inches of water can be saved for the crop by timely cultivation.
4. Disc after the harvester, as early in the spring as possible and immediately after plowing.
5. Harrow after every rain and whenever a crust begins to form.
6. Do not let weeds grow on summer tilled land—they use up the water.
7. Harrow the grain in the spring until it is six inches high.
8. Pack the sub-surface before seeding.
9. Use drills that pack the earth about the seed.
10. Use only the best seed, selected varieties and well cleaned.
11. Two or three pecks to an acre is enough.
12. Early ripening crops and early seeding are best for the dry farm. Late crops must be intertilled.
13. More can be produced in one crop after summer tillage than in two or three consecutive crops.
15. Market concentrated products; meat and butter pay better than forage.
16. Garden crops and shrubbery, as well as grain, may be made to thrive by thorough tillage.

CANADA THE PRODUCER.

J. J. Hill Believes the States will Soon be Importing Our Wheat and Flour

James J. Hill, perhaps the best authority on farming and railroading on this continent, has stated that within a very few years the United States will be compelled to import wheat and flour. He quotes statistics to show that the ratio of the population is increasing much faster than the production of foodstuffs, and draws the conclusion that in a very few years the United States will be importing. He also states that Canada will be the great producing country of the 20th century, and that much of the grain and flour which the United States will import will be secured in the Canadian West. In this connection it is interesting to notice that from 100,000 to 200,000 American farmers are crossing into the Canadian West every year and securing land which will yet grow wheat that is to supply their neighbors to the south.

PRINCE RUPERT.

Total of 273 Steamers Called at that Port in Three Months.

In the month of August this year no less than 84 steamers arrived at Prince Rupert, B.C., in September 92 and in October 84. A total of 273 steamers calling at this new port in three months is the measure of the business up to date.

In the last reports from Western Canada regarding the progress on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway announce that the grading, fencing, telegraph lines and track laying has been completed on the Yorkton branch running north of Melville, the distance being 25½ miles.

Track laying has also been completed in Canora, a distance of four miles from Yorkton, and the end of this extension.

On the Melville to Regina branch, a distance of 25 miles, the track laying fencing and telegraph lines has been completed to Balcarres, and from that point to Regina is now under construction, also 90 miles of the branch from Regina towards the boundary are now under construction.

On the Battleford branch a distance of 48 miles, approximately 45 per cent. of the total grading has been completed.

The grading on the Prince Albert branch now under construction from a point west of Watrous on the main line is 85 per cent. completed, and track laying has been started.

On the Calgary branch the track is laid to mile 47, and fence completed to the same point. The grade north of Red Deer is now ready for track laying.

On the Melville Canora branch, reports show that the soil is very rich with no sloughs in the entire distance. The district is well settled and has every evidence of prosperity.

At Yorkton the town have already appointed a Publicity Commissioner, and some rapid development is looked for.

Canora has five hotels, two banks and is a busy grain shipping place. It is claimed that 1,000,000 bushels of grain were shipped from this point last year.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for additions and alterations to the Public Building, Peterborough Ontario," will be received at this office until 4.00 p.m., on Wednesday, December 21, 1910, for work mentioned.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at this Department, and on application to Wm. Blackwell Esq., Architect, Peterborough, Ont.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent. (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary.

Obituary.

On Saturday morning, November 26th, one of the oldest residents of this vicinity, Sarah Groves, widow of the late Richard Carew, passed away. The deceased was in her 99th year, having been born in Ireland in 1811, she came to this country in 1825. Shortly after her arrival in this country, she was united in marriage to the late Richard Carew, who pre-deceased her some twenty years.

The late Mrs. Carew was a member of St. James' Anglican Church, Emily, and by her lovable and charitable disposition won for herself numerous friends. She is survived by one daughter.

Clarence Lillico.

On Saturday morning, Clarence Everette Lillico, the six weeks old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Lillico, of this city, passed away. The burial took place at the Little Lake Cemetery.

THE LATE WILLIAM SMITH.

Loss of a Highly Respected and Well Known Citizen.

We record with regret, the death of Mr. William Smith, which occurred on Friday evening at the late residence, 30 Aberdeen Avenue.

The late Mr. Smith was forced through illness to resign last midsummer from the principalship of the Central School, a position he filled for some twenty-five years. His condition at times improved, but only temporary. Some time ago he was confined to his home and then to his bed, gradually sinking until the end came.

The deceased was born in Cavan township sixty-three years ago, and he received his early education in the Central School, of which in 1879 he was appointed principal. He was a teacher highly regarded by his pupils, and many of those who are now successful men and women can look back to happy school days spent under the tuition of the late William Smith. He was valued as a principal and teacher by the Board of Education, and that body received his resignation with deep regret. In religion the deceased was a Presbyterian and a member of St. Paul's Church.

Surviving him besides his bereaved widow, is a family of six daughters and three sons.

POLICE COURT.

On Saturday morning Magistrate Dumble reserved judgment in a blacklist case for a week.

The accused pleaded guilty to a violation of the act on Wednesday last, and gave the names of two men who had furnished liquor to him. Witness was not sure they knew him to be listed, but neither had procured liquor for him between July 5th and November 17th, at which time he was off the list.

Alfred Meakins was accused of breaking into the premises of Alex Elliott, on October 24th, and pleaded "not guilty."

As the Chief was not ready to go on with the case, a remand to next Friday was entered.

Harry Waters finished a term on Friday, and once clear of the stone walls, partook of the flowing bowl. Quite naturally the police copped him and he was sent up for three months this time.

WON ORATORICAL CONTEST.

Miss Hurley was the Winner at St. Peter's Literary Society.

St. Peter's Ladies' Literary Society, provided a very enjoyable programme, at the St. Alphonsus Lyceum on Friday evening.

The Misses McGrath, Holland, Hurley and Pilcard took part in the oratorical contest, taking present day subjects for their speeches, and acquitting themselves in a highly creditable manner.

The judges who were Rev. Father McColl and Messrs. L. M. Hayes, K.C., and W. J. O'Brien, decided Miss Florence Hurley as the winner. Miss Hurley spoke on the natural resources of Canada, and Mr. Hayes, in returning the decision of the judges and presenting the prize, complimented Miss Hurley and also the other speakers. Mr. O'Brien, too, passed commendary remarks and Rev. Father McColl, as critic of the society, referred to the points brought out in each of the speeches.

Miss Kane presided and was assisted by Rev. Father Casey.

Other numbers on the programme were as follows:

Song—"Spanish Cavalier," Master Dick Coughlin.

While the judges were deciding as to the winner of the contest, Master Coughlin sang "Silver Bells," and as an encore, "What's the Matter with Father?"

The meeting was brought to a close by the singing of God Save the King. At the next meeting a Dicken's evening will be observed.

"THE KLONDYKE'S MOTHER LODE"

The storehouse from which the famous placer creeks, Bonanza and Eldorado, receive their fabulous wealth, have been uncovered on the claims of The Victoria Gulch Mines, situated on the ridge at the head of Victoria and Gay gulches. The company's holdings consist of four quartz claims and about 200 acres 14 miles from Dawson, on a good wagon road and two miles from the Klondyke Mines R.R. There are two true quartz veins, between perfect walls 6 and 10 feet wide on the property, the free milling ore from which is literally encrusted with the yellow metal. Read what some of the world's greatest authorities say:

R. G. McConnell, B.A., of the Geological Survey, says in his report on the Klondyke Goldfields.

"A sample in which no free gold could be detected with the naked eye, or an ordinary magnifying glass, was assayed in the laboratory of the survey and gave 2,625 oz. of gold and 3,267 oz. of silver to the ton."

Pro. Henry A. Mairs, D. Sc. F.R.S., Wayniete, Professor of Mineralogy in the University of Oxford, in collaboration with Professor A. P. Coleman in a report to the Minister of the Interior, says: "At the head of Victoria Gulch which runs into Bonanza, a creek opposite Gay Gulch, a tributary of Eldorado, and at a height of about 2,300 feet above Dawson, has been opened, what appears to be a true quartz vein, showing nuggety gold in abundance. The gold is distinctly crystalline in character, and the crystals are of a peculiar form having a triangular outline due to the fact that they are octahedra, and in particular a remarkable variety known as "spinal twins." Now it is significant that the gold found in Victoria gulch is also crystalline and has the same characteristic outline, here then we have fairly convincing evidence that the gold found in a stream gravel is identical with that found in situ in a quartz at the head of the valley and in this instance there can be little doubt as to the origin of the gold."

Dr. Eugene Haanel, Director of Mines, a noted authority on mineralogy in a report to the department in 1902, says: "Masses of quartz were seen protruding from the surface all about the locality, and it needed only to wet the surface of the quartz with water to reveal the bright specks of gold adhering to their surface.

"Gay gulch and Victoria gulch, the former a tributary of Eldorado creek, the latter of Bonanza creeks, limit Victoria Hill toward the sources of Bonanza and Eldorado creeks. Above Victoria and Gay gulches, Bonanza and Eldorado creeks respectively are unproductive, below these gulches the creeks are rich. It seems a reasonable conclusion that the gold in these creeks, at least as far as they flank the side of Victoria Hill, was derived from Victoria Hill."

Mr. R. W. Brock, Director Geological Survey, says: "The district is not glaciated. Gold in the recent gravel freshly derived from its original source is similar to gold in the corresponding White Channel gravel. Many of the gold grains and most of the nuggets enclose quartz. Quartz pebbles are found containing gold, some at least very rich in gold. The quartz of the boulders is similar to the quartz of the veins, and gold of the veins to gold of the gravels. From the foregoing and other facts, it is obvious that the gold is absolutely local in origin, derived from the basins of the pay gulches and creeks."

Fred. T. Congdon, Member for the Yukon, stated on the floor of the House of Commons last January that some of the richest gold quartz in the world was being mined close to Dawson.

Just stop and think of the immense possibilities of rich returns from the development of the claims of The Victoria Gulch mines, when two miles of the Mother Lode runs through the property from which the $55,000,000 in placer gold has been already won from Eldorado and Bonanza creeks, the one-third the Klondyke's entire output. 100,000 shares of treasury stock of the par value of $1 is now offered for public subscription at 25 cents per share fully paid and non-assessable.

No further issue of treasury stock will have to be made at this price.

VOL. XXXIII NO. 277 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO TUESDAY DECEMBER 6 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

A NEW INDUSTRY FOR PETERBOROUGH

The Bonner-Worth Co., Limited, Manufacturers of Woollen Yarn, Have Agreed to Locate Here in Consideration of a Certain Amount of Aid.

The new concern is known as the Bonner-Worth Co., Limited, manufacturers of woolen yarn. The promoters, Messrs. Bonner and Worth, have been with the Penman people of Paris for some years, and are highly qualified for the successful conduction of the industry they propose to establish.

The proposed aid is that the company purchase a site and erect a building, at a cost not exceeding $12,000. When their building is completed the city is to advance them 50 per cent. of the capital invested, and on $18,000 worth of machinery being installed, they are to receive another loan of 50 per cent. of the cost of building and site, $10,000 or $12,000. These loans are to be paid back at the rate of $1,000 a year, without interest, the city being secured by the building and machinery. The company is to employ not less than 30 hands. No exemption is asked.

The by law will be published in these columns at an early date. Space will not permit of extended reference this morning, but the matter will be referred to at length in another issue.

The by-law governing this deal passed its second reading last night, and the measure is now in the ratepayers' hands.

City Fathers in Final Session This Year

The City Fathers met in their last regular meeting for 1910 last night. There were present Mayor Morrow, Aldermen Hicks, Duffus, Duncan, Morgan, Buller, Bradburn, Gillespie, Metheral, Graham, Batten and Phelan.

Ex Mayor Rush was present, and cheerfully responded to Mayor Morrow's courteous invitation to take a seat beside him on the dais.

The Council Chamber was filled with spectators, interested in the question of exempting the T.A.S. and other similar bodies, pro and con.

The application of the Teachers' Association for their annual grant of $25 was referred to the Finance Committee.

J. H. McClellan, supt. T.V.C. wrote that the government have agreed to the construction of a wharf at the foot of Mark street. On motion of Ald. Bradburn, seconded by Ald. Phelan, Mr. McClellan will be requested to have this wharf constructed.

A QUESTION OF SEWAGE.

The Reeve and Council of South Monaghan was present in the interest of purifying the waters of the Otonabee.

The Reeve of South Monaghan said he and his colleagues represented South and North Monaghan and Otonabee in requesting that the city cease polluting the river with sewage. Since 1905, when the act of discharging sewage into the Otonbee was acquiesced on by the aforementioned townships, the city has doubled its population, and said pollution has grown to be a menace to public health.

Councillor Deyell supplemented his reeve's remarks with the statement that he attributed the death of four horses of his to sewage. A large tract of land is flooded in the spring, and when the water recedes, conditions are alarming: the pasture along the river is then so contaminated by sewage that stock refuse to eat it. The township, he said, are asking that all sewage be treated by means of a septic tank, or otherwise, before being discharged into the river. They asked an early reply from the city in this question for report to the Provincial Board of Health.

His worship promised that this matter shall be taken up early next year. Present council can do nothing in the matter.

Ald. Hicks offered that he had heard that these townships might assume a share of the cost of a septic tank—No reply from the delegation.

REPORTS.

The usual committee reports were here submitted and adopted.

ILLUMINATING SIGNS

Ald. Buller contended that it was hardly fair to tax the merchants $2 for advertising their business.

Ald. Bradburn, "They should not be taxed if they undertake liability for any accidents that may occur."

Ald. Hicks—"The annual fee of $2 is for a yearly inspection to assure the safety of the public. Owners of the signs are liable under the by-law."

Ald. Duffus—"The City Engineer is supposed to inspect the signs every year, which entails a certain amount of time and expense. The signs are a private property, and it would not be fair for ratepayers to pay for their inspection." He did not think the merchants objected to the small license fee of $2.

AMENDED SIGN BY LAW ADOPTED

The sign by-law, amended to permit of illuminated signs projecting 6 feet and a half from buildings, was adopted. The license fee remains at $2.

THE DITTMAN BY-LAW.

A by-law granting Chas, E. Dittman a 10 years' exclusive street franchise for the conveyance of natural gas to consumers passed it first and second reading. Mr. Dittman, in consideration of the proposed franchise, guarantees to expend $6,000 in drilling for gas. Gas is to be supplied domestic consumers at a price not exceeding 50c per thousand cubic feet and at 25c per thousand cubic feet to manufacturers.

This by-law will go to the people at the January elections.

Ald. Morgan would like this thing left open, so that anybody can bring gas to the boundary and the city take it from there. The worthy ald erman's wish was not conceded to.

CITY TRUST COMMISSION APPOINTED.

Mr. James Kendry was appointed City Trust Commissioner to fill the vacancy on the Board occasioned by the death of the late Mr. James Stevenson

MISCELLANEOUS BY LAWS.

By-laws to authorize the execution of contracts for snow-ploughing, and the construction of sewers and sidewalks passed their several readings.

A by-law to appoint polling places and deputy returning officers for the next election was adopted.

A by-law authorizing the execution of an agreement with the Library Bureau for furnishing the public library with book stacks, desk, chairs and tables, at the price of their tender, $1,068, was adopted

A by-law to amend the by-law to allow Mr. Gillespie making additions to his creamery on Aylmer street, passed its reading

CLAIMS SETTLED.

The claim of H. Edwards for $28 damages, and that of Miss Phelan for $75 damages, by reason of defective sewer on London street, was allowed. Hereafter, however, no one must attempt to open a blocked sewer, but must at once report the matter to the Engineer.

THE WELLAND CANAL.

Mayer Geaty's, (Toronto) request for co-operation in sending a deputation to Ottawa re the Welland Canal was referred to the Mayor and Ald Gillespie, with power to act.

TO MAKE CONNECTIONS.

Ald. Phelan moved, seconded by Ald. Hicks, that the Engineer be instructed to make the connections on Romaine street that have been severed in constructing the new sewer and drainage system.—Carried.

STONE FOR NEXT YEAR.

Moved by Ald. Hicks, seconded by Ald. Duffus, that the chairman of the Board of Works and the Street Commissioner be authorized to procure the necessary stone for crushing in preparation for next year's street work.—Carried.

BALANCE FOR EXTRAS.

Moved by Ald. Duncan, seconded by Ald. Graham, that Rutherford Brose be paid the full balance of their account for extras in connection with the public library, excepting $300 to be held in hand till the faulty pilasters are rectified. Carried.

On motion of Ald. Duncan, Mr. Ferber will be paid $16. in full of his account for levelling the grounds of the public library.

JANITOR FOR HOSPITAL

Moved by Ald. Duncan, seconded by Ald. Graham, that the Property Commissioner have authority to appoint a janitor for the Isolation Hospital.—Carried. Also that Architect Blackwell be paid the $200 due him for work in connection with the same institution.—Carried.

Moved by Ald. Duffus, seconded by Ald. Hicks, that an arc lamp be placed at the corner of Wolsley and Benson streets.

Ald. Graham moved in amendment, seconded by Ald. Buller, that this matter be referred to the fire, Water and Light Committee, Carried and the motion was lost.

HOUSE OF REFUGE.

His Worship reported that the Protestant Home Board offer that if the city give a free site and $10,000, they will build a House of Refuge to cost not less than $20,000, and furnish same. The Board are willing that a representative from each of the churches and the Mayor and city's Finance Minister be represented in their Board. They are also willing to become incorporated. A charge to be made for every inmate sent to the institution by the city.

The council was disposed to accept this proposition, and special legislation will be sought to carry through the project, which has already been freely explained in these columns.

GARBAGE BY-LAW.

Ald. Duffus thought council had been negligent in regard to a garbage by-law, and urged that this question be taken up by the Property Committee at once.

Ald. Bradburn—"What's the use of taking this matter up at the council's last meeting. It should be left over for the incoming council to deal with."

Ald Duffus here moved, that the City Solicitor be instructed to draw up a by-law to provide for the collecting and disposing of rubbish, ashes, etc. No seconder was forthcoming however.

VOTE OF THANKS.

Ald. Phelan moved, seconded by Ald. Buller, that a heart vote of thanks be extended his worship for the careful and efficient manner in which he had conducted this year's business, and his courtesy to the aldermen.

This was passed by a standing vote.

Mayor Morrow responded in fitting terms. It had been a pleasure for him to preside over the council, and he heartily thanked all members for their studied courtesy on every occasion. His worship expressed his unqualified satisfaction at the way this year's business had been conducted.

REQUEST OF T.A.S. FOR EXEMPTION WAS TURNED DOWN LAST NIGHT BY COUNCIL

The Vote Stood 6 to 5---No Action Taken Regarding Application of Other Societies for Freedom from Taxes---Ald. Batten and Metheral Say Tax All Property, Including Churches

The request of the St. Peter's Total Abstinanence Society for legislation to exempt their property from taxation, and for the usual remission of half of this year's taxes on the rooms formerly occupied by them, was turned down by the City Fathers last night on a vote of 6 to 5.

Against the request Aldermen Duncan, Morgan, Bradburn, Metheral, Batten and Graham.

A communication was to hand from Mr. J. H. Burnham, asking for exemption for the Sons of England, Orangemen and the Knights of Pythias, under any general principle adopted by the council in dealing with any similar requests. And no action was taken regarding the matter.

Mr. Burnham spoke at length in the interests of his clients, whom he contended must in all fairness be accorded the same privileges enjoyed by similar bodies. However, concluded the speaker, all questions of exemption should go to the ratepayers, who are directly interested. I represent fully 1,000 ratepayers and the feeling is that exemption has gone too far, and the whole scheme should be rooted out.

Mr Dan O'Connell ably represented the T.A.S. and urged that their request be granted as had been customary the past 10 years without a protest.

The privilege of exemption enjoyed by this society in the past has only been in keeping with the same principle upon which the Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A. have been accorded exemption

Our space is very limited this morning, but we shall present both Mr. Burnham's and Mr. O'Connell's arguments more freely in an early issue.

Ald. Hicks offered that if the T.A.S. is to Roman Catholics what the M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. are to Protestants he had no grounds upon which to oppose the T.A.S.'s request.

Ald. Phelan spoke in the interests of the T.A.S., whose request he thought but just and fair.

Ald. Metheral—"I am opposed to exemptions in all cases. If people who can pay, don't pay, then the burden of taxation falls upon the working man. Other societies are doing just as good work as that of temperance, and are not seeking exemption. The T.A.S. has been nursed in its infancy until now it has acquired a big mansion across the street, and they should be able to pay their own taxes. The property recently bought by the Catholics from the Bradburn estate is exempted by law, and if we grant exemptions to this new home of the T.A.S., which heretofore brought a revenue to this city, higher will go the rates, and others will have to pay the taxes."

Ald. Duffus—"What would you do regarding the Y.M.C.A.?"

Ald. Metheral—"If the law would permit, cut their exemption off."

Ald. Duffus—"What would you do with the other——"

Ald Metheral—"Cut them all off—churches as well."

Ald. Batten was opposed to exempting any society or church. They should all pay their taxes. Only one church—the Park Street Baptist—is paying taxes, and that should be the proudest church in Peterborough. Should the city continue its policy of exemption, one third the property owners will shortly be paying no taxes, and the working man will have to suffer in consequence. "I am opposed to exemption, and always shall be."

The Finance Committee's report recommended that the request of the T.A.S. be granted: but Ald. Buchburn moved, seconded by Ald. Morgan, that the report be amended by striking out the clause acquiescing in the exemption asked for. It was on the carrying of this amendment that the request was refused.

At a late hour Ald. Duffus raised the question of what action the council would now take regarding the exemption of the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A.—whether Ald. Batten and Metheral would be willing to levy taxes on those institutions again. Nothing definite in this respect was reached, however.

English Farm Laborer Committed Suicide

Springville, Dec. 5. The lifeless body of a young man, a stranger in this district, who had been employed on the farm of Mr. James O'Hara, Cavan, was found hanging from the branches of an elm tree on the road, about a mile and one half from this village this morning.

Your correspondent was unable to learn the name of the man who had taken his own life. He had only come to this part of the country a few days ago. He was apparently an Englishman of about thirty years of age, fair complexion and about five feet eight inches in height. He succeeded in securing work with Mr. O'Hara, who lives on Lot 21, Concession 9, Cavan

Last night about eight o'clock he left the house presumably to go to the barn. He failed to return and when Mr. O'Hara went to look for him, could not find no trace of him. This morning however, Mr. O'Hara found the stranger hanging with a rope around his neck from the branches of a tree, about half a mile from the house. He had evidently climbed up into the tree, placed the noose round his neck and then jumped off.

No reason is known for the suicide. Mr. O'Hara did not approach the body, but hurried into Springville and telephoned the coroner at Millbrook.

Child's Dress Afire, She Died from Burns

The Daughter of Herbert Winch of Belhaven, York, County, Was Fatally Burned.

Sutton West, Dec. 5.—A particularly sad accident occurred at the village of Belhaven, about five miles from here, on Friday night, which resulted in the death of Emma, the oldest daughter of Herbert Winch.

While playing about the house the child's clothes caught fire, and she ran into the open air, where the wind fanned the flames so vigorously that before they could be extinguished by the neighbors, the little girl's body was terribly burned. After much suffering death followed on Saturday. The child was a favorite in the neighborhood.

Sweep of Typhoon Causes Big Loss

Manila, Dec. 5.—Nearly a million dollars damage has been done and more than one hundred natives killed by a typhoon which has been sweeping over the province of Zamboago for two days. Report of the disaster was made to military headquarters from the city of Zamboago today. American soldiers have been dispatched to do relief duty.

Queen's Students Made a "Rush"

They Attempted to Put Theatres of Kingston on the Rough.

Kingston, Dec. 5.—A thousand Queen's students rushed the business sections here on Saturday after the results of the Alma Mater elections. Princess street was the chief object of their attack, and several of the small theatres were captured. A number of stalwart policemen with their clubs out brought the students to a halt in the lobby of the Grand Opera House. The damage done this year was small.

NEW CURLING CLUB.

Ladies to Use Curling Stones as Well as Curling Irons.

A meeting of the ladies of Peterborough to join a real curling club, will be held in the Y.W.C.A. parlors tomorrow afternoon at 3.30 o'clock.

The object of the organization is to enable this old and noble game to be played by the ladies in true orthodox style, and we wish them every success.

FORTY INJURED IN LONDON WRECK

Number of Them Fatally—One Section of Train Ploughed Into the Other.

London, Dec. 5.—Some forty persons were seriously injured, a number of them fatally, in a collision on the London, Northwestern Railroad at Willensden Junction to-day. The second section of a train from Watford ploughed into the first section, which was standing at the junct on.

The train was occupied chiefly by clerks who were coming into their offices in the city. The three rear coaches of the standing train were wrecked.

Many persons suffered broken limbs and there were several fractured skulls. In many instances the victims were so pinned beneath the wreckage that there was difficulty in extricating them.

STATED CASE FAILED.

Five Judges of the Court of Appeal Are Unanimous That Trial Was Fair.

Toronto, Dec. 6.—The death sentence on Thomas McNulty, of Uptergrove, at present in Barrie jail, has been confirmed by the Court of Appeal.

The penalty to be exacted on December 14, was imposed by Mr. Justice Britton for McNulty's share in the killing of the infant, of which he was the father, and Mary Dolan, who is also under sentence of death, the mother.

All that can now save McNulty from walking to the gallows is executive clemency.

Yesterday's Elections in Great Britain

Joseph Martin Has Hard Fight in East St. Pancras—More Unionists Returned by Acclamation—Liberals Put up a Hard Fight.

London, Dec. 5.—The returns at four o'clock today showed:

Liberal	59
Nationalists	15
Laborites	8
Unionists	81

Polling was resumed in the general elections today in seventeen London and forty-nine provincial constituencies. The returns from the last election gave the Unionists a lead of two seats in the same constituencies.

FLOODS IN WORCESTER.

In Worcester hundreds of electors were cut off from the polls by floods and were unable to vote. Torrential rains which have fallen in that district caused the overflow of rivers and the consequent flooding of many towns. Candidates supplied boats and many of the electors were carried from their homes in skiffs. In some instances whole families were marooned in their homes and skiffs of opposing candidates raced each other to reach the imprisoned men first.

In the inundated sections the candidates had prepared automobiles which they were unable to use. Thousands of acres in Worcester and the immediate vicinity are under water.

At 2 p.m. it was announced that seven more Unionists had been returned unopposed, five more Liberals and three Irish Nationalists.

WORKERS BROUGHT OUT

The second day's polling in the Parliamentary elections opened with more spirit and under improved weather conditions. The closeness of the results already announced brought out a greater number of voters and workers today. In some divisions voters who had removed since the last register was made up, spent the night in their old constituencies in order to vote early and get back to their work.

INTEREST IN LONDON

The rush at many booths was great. Interest centred largely in the seventeen contests in London boroughs. Of these seats nine voted Unionists and eight Liberals last January. Most of the Unionists' seats are quite safe being held by large majorities. The Liberals, however, have a hard fight to hold their own, notably in East Finsbury, the four divisions of Islington and in the east division of St. Pancras, where Joseph Martin, former Premier of British Columbia, has a woman suffragist as well as the Unionist candidate against him, and in West St. Pancras, where Sir William Collins, Liberal, won by ten votes over R. E. Dickenson, Unionist in the last elections.

The Unionists are also making a great fight in Liverpool, and expect to win the only Liberal seat there, that of the Exchange division. They have no hope, however, of defeating T. P. O'Connor, who has a strong hold in the Scotland division. Most of the other seats polling today are held by good majorities by the sitting members.

James Corham Received Death Sentence

James Gorham, who was found guilty of having murdered his mother in May last, at the fall assizes here in October, was sentenced yesterday morning by Chancellor Sir John Boyd to be hanged on January 31st.

Chancellor Boyd arrived here at half-past eleven and drove immediately to the court house.

Without the usual custom of donning a black cap, his Lord-ship passed sentence. In doing so he stated that, when the verdict was returned, he had hopes that the Department of Justice would interfere and that the usual sentence would be changed to imprisonment.

LAYING THE DUST AT OWEN SOUND

INTERESTING INFORMATION REGARDING CITY STREETS.

Oil Has Proved a Success Where Water Has Failed.

The following article has been forwarded to the Times by the good Roads Publicities' Association:

The sandy lake shore soil, upon which Owen Sound is located, results in very dusty streets. No matter how much rain falls, or how much water is sprinkled on the streets, in an hour thereafter the dust becomes a nuisance and a menace to health. To overcome this the municipal authorities, early in the spring, experimented with oil, which proved such a success that now all the principal streets in the centre of the town are oiled. These thoroughfares are macadamized and, as a preparation for oiling, are first swept clean, and oil put on immediately after the sprinkler.

The objection at first was that the odor from the crude oil was offensive but in a day or two this disappeared, and the change for the better to dustless streets was recognized by all. The first application of oil lasted six weeks, and the second application was put on the other day, and what were some of the dustiest streets are now perfectly dustless.

The town officials state that it over the old water system, and that it will be an annual saving of $2,000 the same time give much better results. It did another good thing in banishing mosquitoes, heretofore a great annoyance, gone being now in evidence where the streets are oiled.

FARMERS' CLUB.

Mr. H. C. Duff, of Norwood, attended the closing meeting at the Lakehurst Cheese Factory last week, and while there succeeded in having a Farmers' Club organized. The officers elected were as follows:

President, Mr. H. D. Coons.

Vice-President, Mr. Wilbert Elliott

Secretary-Treasurer, Mr. William Thompson.

Directors, Messrs. George Weir and James Wilson.

The officers are all young men and the club starts out with a membership of thirty-three. The first meeting will be held next Saturday, when a paper will be read on "Growing corn for the Silo."

MALE SUFFRAGISTS GET SIX WEEKS

For Attempting to Horsewhip Home Secretary, Mr. Winston Churchill.

London, Dec. 5.—The first "Male Suffragette" ever arranged in the "Votes for Women" campaign, faced the tribunal at Bow street court today, charged with attempting to horsewhip Home Secretary Winston Churchill. His name was Hugh Franklin, and he was found guilty of assault after Mr. Churchill had testified in person. He was sentenced to serve six weeks in jail. The attempted assault took place upon a train. There were many women in the court room and as Franklin was led to a cell he gave the well known battle-cry, "Votes for Women."

THE ISSUE JOINED IN ENGLAND.

Dissolution of parliament is now unavoidable. The lords have ignored the anti-veto bill of the liberal ministry and have adopted instead the Lansdowne resolutions favoring reorganization of the upper house, surrendering the hereditary principle and providing for joint sessions of the two houses, as well as for a referendum, to settle inter-chamber differences. It is understood that what these resolutions offer is the maximum which the tory members of the recent conference were willing to grant. As that maximum is deemed utterly inadequate, if not illusory and insignificant, by the liberal leaders, the issue is ripe for submission to the electorate. Negotiation and compromise having failed, the only appeal is to the constituencies.

The voters have now the two alternative plans before them. The peers are humble and willing to accept considerable "mending," but they are not willing to give up any degree of their legislative power save as regards "pure" finance bills. The action on the budget was a blunder, and they fully recognize that act by expressly abandoning the claim to the right to suspend budgets again. But the liberals insist that no reform is real and sincere which does not make the commons dominant, which does not limit the power of the second chamber, and which does not insure the carrying out of the mandate of the electors, as voiced by their representatives, without undue delay and obstruction.

What do the electors think? What proportion of them are in sympathy with the liberal attitude? The balloting is to answer these questions—and to raise new ones, perhaps equally momentous. These are stirring, soul-trying days in Great Britain.

High School Progress.

High School progress in Ontario is well brought out by some figures given in the Toronto Star, which show the growing appreciation of secondary education. The attendance at these secondary schools has increased nearly sixfold since 1867, while Public School attendance has not increased much above 18 per cent in the same period. In 1867 there were 5696 pupils, in 1887 there were 17,450, on 1908 there were 31,912. Some indication of the palatial character of the collegiate institute and High School now being erected is gained from the amounts expended for sites and buildings, which were $193,000 in 1907 and $272,900 in 1908. In 1892, for instance, the expenditure for this purpose was $91,108. Another indication of progress is the sum paid by the pupils for fees. In 1867 $15,600 was obtained from fees, while in 1908 the school fees yielded over $145,000. The revenue for school purposes has greatly increased in forty years—from $139,500 to over $2,000,000.

Our Growing Trade.

Canada's trade during the first seven months of the present fiscal year has increased at the rate of nearly ten million dollars a month, the total increase being $69,489,552. For October the increase was $10,602,561. Imports and exports for the seven months totalled $433,247,034 an increase over last year of $66,489,142 or about nineteen per cent. Imports totalled $262,685,148, an increase of $58,010,756, or twenty-seven per cent. Exports totalled $170,611,886, an increase of $8,468,107. For October imports amounted to $49,138,501 and exports to $33,801,255, increases respectively of $7,744,541 and $2,857,824.

The French Population.

The French-speaking population is increasing and the English-speaking decreasing in the Eastern Townships. This was shown very conclusively at Bedford, Que., when the school commissioners of the township sold three buildings that had formly been used as English-speaking schools. The reason for disposing of them was that there were no scholars. The English-speaking farmers are selling out to the French and going West. The section of the township refered to was formerly wholly occupied by English-speaking people.

THE RED YEAR

—By—

LOUIS TRACY.

(CONLINUED.)

Taken place outside the bungalow, the defenders lining a wall at the edge of the compound. Indeed, a score of bodies lying there had not been seen by Malcolm during his first frenzied examination of the house.

Then an official of the Salt Department, driving past with his wife and child, shouted to Mr. Mayne that he must not lose an instant if he would save his niece and himself.

"The sepoys have risen," was the horrifying message he brought. "They have surprised and killed all the white troops. They are sacking the whole station. You see the fires there? That is their work. This road is clear, but the Delhi road is blocked."

Some distant yelling caused the man to flog his horse into a fast trot again; and he and his weeping companions vanished into the gloom.

Mayne could not choose but believe. Indeed, many days elapsed before a large part of India would credit the fact that the British regiments in Meerut had not been massacred. A carriage and pair were harnessed. Several servants were mounted on all the available horses and ponies, and Mr. Mayne and Winifred had gone down the Grand Trunk Road towards Bulandshahr and Aligarh.

"Going half an hour," said Syed Mir Khan, volubly. "I stand fast, slaying budmashes. They make rush in thousands, and I retreat with great glory. Then they put blazes in bungalow."

Now, Malcolm also might have accepted the sensational story of the Salt Department inspector, if, at that instant, the boom of a heavy gun had not come from the direction of the sepoy parade-ground. Another followed, and another, in the steady sequence of a trained battery. As he had just ridden from that very spot, which was then almost deserted, he was sure that the British troops had come from their cantonment. The discovery that Winifred was yet living, and in comparative safety, cleared his brain as though he had partaken of some magic elixir. He knew that Meerut itself was now the safest refuge within a hundred miles. Probably the bulk of the mutineers would strive to reach Delhi, and, of course, the dragoons and artillery would cut them off during the night. But he had seen many squads of rebels, mounted and on foot, hastening along the Grand Trunk Road, and it was no secret that detachments of the 9th Native Infantry at Bulandshahr and Aligarh were seething with Brahminical hatred of the abhorred cartridges.

Each second he became more convinced that Winifred and her uncle were being carried into a peril far greater than that which they had escaped. Decision and action were the same things where he was concerned. Bidding the Afghan endeavor to find Captain Craigie, who might be trusted to send a portion of his troop to scour the road for some miles, and assuring the man of a big reward for his services, Frank mounted and galloped south. He counted on overtaking the fugitives in an hour, and persuading them to return with him. He rode with drawn sword, lest he might be attacked on the way, but it was a remarkable tribute to Moller's wisdom in offering to ride to Delhi that no man molested him, and such sepoys as he passed skulked off into the fields where they saw the glint of his sabre and recognised him as a British officer. They had no difficulty in that respect. A glorious full moon was flooding the peaceful plain with light. The trunks of the tall trees lining the road barred its white riband with black shadows, but Nejdi, good horse that he was, felt that this was no time for skittishness, and repressed the inclination to jump these impalpable obstacles.

And he made excellent progress. Eight miles from Meerut, in a tiny village of mud hovels which horse and rider had every reason to remember, they suddenly dashed into a large company of mounted men and a motley collection of vehicles. There were voices raised, too, in heated dispute, and a small crowd was gathered near a lumbering carriage, whose tawdry trappings and display of gold work belokened the state equipage of some native dignitary.

Drawn up by its side was a European travelling barouche, empty, but Malcolm's keen eyes soon picked out the figures of Winifred and her uncle, standing in the midst of an excited crowd of natives. So great was the hubbub that he was not noticed until he pulled up.

"I have come to bring you back to Meerut, Mr. Mayne," he cried. "The mutiny has been quelled. Our troops are in command of the station and of all the main roads. You can return without the slightest risk, I assure you."

He spoke clearly and slowly, well knowing that some among the natives would understand him. His appearance, no less than his words, created a rare stir. The clamor of tongues was stilled. Men looked at him as though he had fallen from the sky. He could not be certain, but he guessed, that he had arrived at a critical moment. Indeed, the lives of his friends were actually in deadliest jeopardy, and there was no knowing what turn the events of the next minute might have taken. But a glance at Winifred's distraught face told him a good deal. He must be bold, with the careless boldness of the man who has the means of making his will respected.

"Stand aside there!" he said in Hindustani. "And you had better clear the roadway. A troop of cavalry is riding fast behind."

He dismounted, drew Nejdi's bridle over his left arm, and went towards Winifred. The girl looked at him with a wistfulness that was pitiful. Hope was struggling in her soul against the fear of grim death.

"Oh, Frank!" she sighed, holding out both her hands. "Oh, Frank, I am so frightened. We had a dreadful time at the bungalow, and these men look so fierce and cruel! Have you [illegible]

"Yes," he said confidently. "You need have no further anxiety. Please get into your carriage."

Mr. Mayne said something, but Malcolm never knew what it was, for Winifred fainted, and would have fallen had he not caught her.

CHILD SEIZED FOR DEBT.

English Magistrate is Puzzled by a Curious Case.

London Dec 5—A distressed mother told the Willesden magistrate on Saturday that another woman had taken possession of her child because she owed her a sum of money.

"She had no right to detain your child," the magistrate stated, "but I don't under what act I can grant you a summons."

He sent for a number of law books and after searching them through said he could not find anything bearing on that particular case.

He suggested that the women should employ a solicitor to instruct counsel with a view to making a application to a judge, but the mother said she has no money to take this course.

The magistrate decided to go into the matter immediately.

Real Mining Pays Better Than Anything Else

Here is an opportunity to invest in a Real Mine. Property developed. Plenty of pay ore in sight to guarantee the success of the enterprise. Mill and equipment are all paid for in full. Small amount still needed to install the equipment for which

A limited number of shares is now offered at 35c per Share.

This is a bonafide gold mine and will yield big returns on the investment and can be put on a paying basis immediately.

For a short time we will offer this stock at the following prices and terms:

$35.00 buys	100 shares.	$10.00 cash, $5.00 per mo.	for 5 months
50.00 buys	150 shares.	15.00 cash, 7.00 per mo.	for 5 months
100.00 buys	325 shares.	25.00 cash, 15.00 per mo.	for 5 months
275.00 buys	1000 shares.	50.000 cash 32.00 per mo.	for 5 months
200.00 buys	700 shares.	40.00 cash, 40.00 per mo.	for 5 months
500.00 buys	2000 shares.	80,000 cash, 84.00 per mo.	for 5 months

An additional discount of 5 per cent. where all cash accompanies the order. Certificates issued when final payment is made. The above prices are very low when the small capitalization is considered. Stock is all one class. Issued fully paid and non-assessable.

Capital stock, $400,000. Shares 400,000. Capacity of the mill, 50 tons per day. Average value of ore, $15.00 per ton. Cost of mining and milling, less than $4.75 per ton. Net profits per ton, $10.25.

Property consists of three mining claims or 62 acres, over three-quarters of a mile in length, with a vein running the entire length; with an average width of from 3½ to 4 ft. Vein proves to a depth of from 75 to 200 ft. at different points and no indication of the vein running out, but grows deeper with depth.

Don't let this opportunity go by.

Frenchman Takes Boy From School and Shoots Him to Revenge Unfaithful Wife.

Paris, Dec. 3.—A man named Emile Lapierre murdered his son, aged 12 years, at Marseilles the other day solely by way of revenge against his wife, whom he suspected of unfaithfulness.

The father called at the boy's school and took him for a walk along the shore. When he found a lonely spot he drew a revolver and shot the lad dead.

LADY OF TITLE IN LOVE WITH WAITER

Meanwhile Trusting Hubby Accepts Her Reason for Long Trips Abroad.

London, Dec. 3.—There is a curious story in circulation about a well-known society lady of title who, it is alleged, fell violently in love with the head waiter at one of the principal west end restaurants. The waiter has since received an appointment in New York. It certainly is curious why a distinguished society lady should spend so much time on the other side of the water. Her own explanation is that she finds it the best place for a "rest cure." The indulgent husband has, up to the present, fully accepted her statement.

Receive Four Awards.

1 Grand Prix to Grand Trunk Railway System.

1 Grand Prix to Grand Trunk Pacific Railway.

1 Diploma of Honor to S. W. Cummings who was in charge of the exhibits.

1 Gold Medal to the Architect of the Building.

This exposition was a most successful one and the publicity Canada received through the Grand Trunk building was very noticeable.

During the life of the exposition no less than 645,100 people visited the Grand Trunk building, and nearly 300,000 pieces of literature printed in English, German French and Flemish were distributed amongst the visitors.

The exhibition closed on November 7th.

GROWTH OF TOWNS.

There is one plain inference to be drawn from this increase in the populations of towns and minor cities, which is that the trend of new manufacturing enterprises has been more largely toward the towns and small cities than formerly.

KAISER GETS INTO MORE TROUBLE

TOLD BENEDICTINE MONK THAT THE THRONE AND ALTAR MUST STAND TOGETHER.

Protestants are Angry—Say Roman Hierarchy is Only Loyal so Long as it Pays—Bitter Criticism.

Berlin, Dec. 3. The German Emperor's address to the Benedictine monks at Bouron, in which he said that the throne and the altar must stand together, has caused much excitement among the different political parties in Germany. These words uttered in a Roman Cathalic monastry have naturally been hailed with delight by the Clerical and Centre parties, but they have drawn some sharp remarks from the organs of other groups. The Reichsbote says:

"The Kaiser would be better advised to show more reserve in speaking of the loyalty of Benedictine monks, particularly as the Roman Hierarchy, which keeps its own interests before its eyes, is only loyal to the state so long as it pays."

Herr Hussmann, a member of the Reichstag, writing in the Frankfurter Zeitung, says:

"Does the German Emperor stand in need of the protection of monks in the cloister? Is it right that a newspaper should be able to issue a special sheet announcing that the Kaiser placed himself under the protection of a monastry, and declared that the throne and the altar—in fact, a Roman Catholic altar—stand together? Did Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, as a responsible statesman, agree to this utterance of the Kaiser's in a monastry?"

The Morgenpost thus expresses itself:

"The Kaiser once declared himself able to deal with the Social Democrats single-handed. 'Just leave the Social Democrats to me,' he said. Now he is convinced that the help of heaven is necessary to deal with these twentieth century ideas. It seems not to be so easy as he thought."

BOY SHOT A SHERIFF FLEES WITH MOTHER.

Officer on Premises to Arrest Father Is Seriously Hurt—Mob Aids Escape.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 3.—Benjamin Goveyar, 14 years old, this morning shot and probably fatally wounded Sheriff Mathews, of MacSomb County when the sheriff tried to force an entrance into the father's farm house to arrest the father on a charge of cruelty to animals.

The boy and his mother who prompted him to fire, were hastened to Detroit, to escape an angry mob which was forming around the jail here.

ARMADA TREASURE

Diver Brings Up Mass of Metal at Tobermory

The search for treasure, which may or may not exist in a sunken Spanish galleon at Tobermory, is being rigorously prosecuted, and interesting relics are being recovered daily. Among the finds are a stiletto, in a good state of preservation, an ointment box of very fine wire, set in a metal casing, and a very curious form of spokeshave and scabbard, with the sword worn very thin. The diver brought up two masses of metal, the larger of which weighed about 80 lbs., and was rectangular in shape, with a sunk handle. The other was of the same metal, but circular in shape, with a finely bevelled hand grip all around the inside. The anxious question arose naturally: "Are these masses of silver or galena? Are they the first masses of the sunken treasure, or where they part of the ballast of the ship?" Excitement spread among those interested as they hurried off to behold the blocks of metal, so soft that they could be cut with a bronze coin, and blackened the fingers as silver does. Part of the larger block was sent off to a firm of assayers in London, to obtain their verdict.

AERONAUTS' ADVENTURE

Balloon Caught by the Wind Falls Into the Thames

Captain Disney and Lieutenant H. M. Maitland, of the Essex Regiment, England, had a narrow escape from drowning at the end of a balloon voyage. They ascended from Warley Barracks at three o'clock, and rose rapidly. At an altitude of 8,000 feet the clouds blotted out all view of the land, and the wind was blowing at the rate of thirty miles an hour. The occupants knew that by the direction in which the balloon was travelling the sea would soon be reached. The valve was opened, and the balloon descend d rapidly until the Thames was in sight. It was then found to be too late to stay her progress, and a sea anchor was thrown out. This caught in the basket, which touched water, and the rope was cut. The incident occurred in mid-Channel, between Southend and the Kentish side, and provided much excitement for those on shore. Captain Disney and Lieutenant Maitland managed to extricate themselves from the basket, and were preparing to swim ashore, when a boat from a barge arrived and picked them up.

ODDFELLOW'S FUNERAL WISHES

Left a Rough Drawing of the Kind of Coffin He Wished

Mr. Edward Lawrence, who died at Wellington, Shropshire, recently, at the age of 71, left a rough drawing of the kind of coffin in which he was to be buried. He directed that his body should be taken from his house to the cemetery on a bier from the local workhouse, "six staid inmates of the house to act as bearers." The letters "E.L." only are to be printed on the coffin plate, funeral attire is not to be worn, there are to be no flowers, and no hearse or mourning coaches, with the exception of a carriage for his widow. Mr. Lawrence was for many years a member of the Manchester Unity of Oddfellows, but in his written instructions for the funeral he expressed a wish that the funeral oration of the Order be not read at the graveside—"only a brief and simple service for the burial of the dead, to conclude with the Lord's Prayer."

MISS MA. YOHE

She Was Stricken with Paralysis in Cafe Chantant

London's footlight favorite of twenty years ago, Miss May Yohe, has been stricken with paralysis. For the last few weeks she had been engaged at one of the city restaurants of San Francisco singing popular songs at lunch and dinner. As is the custom at many of the Bohemian cafes in the United States, the artists sit and dine at the tables like ordinary patrons, and at this particular restaurant the singer has had many popular welcomes. She was singing the pathetic song from "The Arcadians," "Bring me a rose," and had reached the words, "I'm so tired of violets, take them all away," when her utterance failed, and she fell forward from her chair. Physicians hastened to her aid, and it was found that she had been seized with partial paralysis.

THE NEW STAMP ISSUE

The One Ready for Issue When Edward Died Will Be Destroyed

It will interest the postage stamp collectors to learn that the twopenny stamp of the new design which was ready for issue at the time of the death of King Edward VII., but not placed on sale, is not to be circulated for use. The Post Office authorities have decided, a correspondent is informed, to destroy the entire stock of the new stamps, of which large numbers have been printed. Perhaps a few copies may be retained in the Post Office Museum or sent to the British Museum, but in any case the particular stamp is likely to rank among the great philatelic rarities, and will probably be considered as the scarcest of all the British stamps.

POOR ANIMAL

"Little boy," asked the well-meaning reformer, "is that your mamma over yonder with the beautiful set of furs?"

"Yes, sir," answered the bright lad.

"Well, do you know what poor animal it is that has been—er—killed in order that your mamma may be the furs with which she is—er—so proudly?"

"Yes, sir. It's—"

WAS SHE STRANGLED.

Sistersville, W. Va., Dec. 3.—Mrs. Elizabeth Allen, aged 87 years, a wealthy widow, was found dead this afternoon at her home at Shirley, near here. Three thousand dollars, which she had in the house, is missing and the coroner believes that she was strangled to death, after which the robbery was committed. The house showed evidence of a fierce struggle.

This migration is not so extravagant as it might appear as they more than save their passage money in the very small cost of living in their own country.

Killoran is Missing.

A dispatch from Norwood says:—Larry Killoran, charged with illegal sale of liquor during last October, and was convicted and sentenced by Magistrate Edmison to four months in the county jail, is missing. A warrant was issued for his arrest, but when the officer tried to put it into effect the accused could not be found.

Election of Officers.

Hon. Director, Mr. J. Bell.
Director, Mr. F. Pidgeon.
Vice-Director, Mr. A. Horsfield.
Secretary Treasurer, Mr. K. Brown

After the election a lunch was served.

St. Peter's T.A.S. Nominations.

At the meeting of the St. Peter's T.A.S. on Sunday, Mr. F. Lehane, financial secretary, and Mr. Joseph Primeau, treasurer, were re-elected by acclamation. Nominations for the other offices were made, and the elections will be held a week from next Sunday. The meeting was largely attended and several new members joined the Association.

A Great Railway System.

Hardly a town, village or city in Ontario that does not receive daily benefit from the operations of the Grand Trunk Railway System, and considering the net work of Branch line connections, it is wonderful with what regularity trains are run. Not only is a good service provided between points in Ontario, but this line also reaches nearly all the important cities of Michigan, viz: Flint, Saginaw, Bay City, Lansing, Battle Creek, Jackson, Grand Rapids and Muskegon, South Bend, Ind., and the second city in America, viz: Chicago Ill., the gateway to the Northwest, West and South, bringing Ontario in close connection. On the East, the Grand Trunk connects Ontario with Montreal, Quebec, the Maritime Provinces and Boston, Mass.

With a double track line all the way from Chicago to Montreal, and also to Niagara Falls, connecting with Lehigh Valley from New York, the Grand Trunk reaches out in all directions for you patronage, and well deserves it, for its vestibule coaches, parlor and dining cars and modern Pullmans, give the service desired.

Death of Mr. Henry Johnson.

Hastings, Dec. 5.—Henry Johnson one of the oldest and best known residents of Hastings, died suddenly at 5 o'clock last evening. The late Mr. Johnson had lived in Hastings for many years and was known to everybody in the district. He was eighty-six years of age, and was in good health until a short time ago. Yesterday morning he was walking about his room, apparently better than he had been for some time but he was suddenly attacked 'fo the afternoon, and passed away shortly after. He was reeve of Hastings some years ago. The funeral will take place in Prince Edward County.

Obituary.

Mr. John Tomlinson, who had been employed at Noble's temperance Hotel for some time, died at the Nicholl's Hospital at five o'clock Sunday afternoon. Mr. Tomlinson was fifty years of age and had been in this country only about six months. From papers in his possession it would appear that he had some friends in the old country, but none here as far as known.

Heart failure was the immediate cause of death.

The funeral will take place this afternoon at 2.30, from Comstock's undertaking parlors to Little Lake Cemetery.

JOHN VINCENT KELLY.

The sympathy of their many friends will be extended to Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Kelly, 264 King street, who mourn the death of their youngest son, John Vincent Kelly, aged seven months. The child passed away yesterday morning at nine o'clock.

The funeral will take place this morning at 9.30 o'clock.

CRICKET PLAYER DEAD

George Palmer. One of Australia's Greatest Bowlers

The death has taken place in Australia of George Palmer, who was one of the finest Colonial bowlers ever seen on a cricket field. He came to England with the 1880 team, and was here also in 1882, 1884, and 1886. Born on February 22, 1861, he was in his fiftieth year. No bowler ever won fame at an earlier age. As a lad of eighteen he met with marked success for Victoria against Lord Harris's eleven at Melbourne, and was soon regarded as second only to Spofford. During his first three visits to England he was a great bowler, but in 1886, having in the meantime come on very much as a batsman, he was not up to his previous standard. At his best he had nearly every good quality that a bowler of his style could possess. His delivery was the easiest and most natural that can be recalled—it seemed part of himself—and he had in combination with remarkable spin a good variety of pace. No one ever bowled a better "yorker." In addition to his other gifts he had a more telling leg-break than any bowler of his speed. Looking back upon his career in England as a whole, he must be placed with Spofford and Charles Turner. Many famous batsmen have declared that they never met a bowler who could be more difficult on a perfect wicket, his resources being so varied. For the great team of 1882 he took 138 wickets, and in 1884 132 wickets.

ALL NIGHT IN A BOG

Story of a Brutal Attack on an Irish Farmer

The Killarney police are scouring the district in search of the perpetrators of an outrage on a farmer named John Clifford, of Glencar. The latter had cattle grazing on an evicted farm. Failing to dispose of them at Killorglin Fair, he sent a man named Rahilly to drive them back. Rahilly was attacked by three men, and was so terrified that he ran away, leaving the cattle on the roadside, but reported what had occurred to the owner, who at once went in search of his cattle. Observing them in a field he entered with the object of driving them home. He was driven out by the men, one of whom brandished a revolver in his face and threatened to shoot him. Clifford sought refuge in a public-house, where a large crowd collected and denounced him for grazing his cattle on an evicted farm. After some time the crowd got him out of the house, and knocking him down savagely maltreated him, and left him on the roadside. The unfortunate man, fearing further molestation, hid all night in a bog. In the morning he struggled to the house of a man named Teahan, Castlemaine, where his wounds were attended to. Later on he again entered the field where his cattle were to take them home. He was attacked by seven men, who knocked him down and gave him another beating. His pockets were rifled, and $5.80, all the money in his possession, was taken from him. Ultimately he managed to get his eight head of cattle, and drive them to Killorglin. His assailants were strangers to him.

SHOWER OF FROGS

Came by Thunderstorm and Cried Like Rabbits

After a violent thunderstorm Mr. Jack Ayre, Devonshire, found a long stretch of road covered with thousands of frogs, which, it is declared, "cried like rabbits." Mr. Ayre expresses the opinion that the frogs came down from the sky, and he is supported in his view by another resident of the district, who has had experience of monsoons abroad.

This expert says that in the stillness which precedes monsoons in tropical regions all sorts of creeping things come out of their hiding places and croak. They are often carried up into the air by whirlwinds, and when the monsoon breaks down they come again.

It was midnight when Mr. Ayre made his discovery. In the morning there were still a number of frogs left, but many were dead. On the other hand it is suggested that the frogs may have been washed out of a wood by the heavy rains.

A GILBERT WHITE STORY

Thomas Hoar, the devoted servant upon whom Gilbert White, the naturalist, depended to carry out his garden plans and to look after his comfort in many ways, was noted for his exactness. H. C. Shelley, in "Gilbert White and Selbourne," gives an amusing illustration.—

There was one occasion when Thomas came to report, "Please, sir, I've been and broke a glass."

"Broke a glass, Thomas! How did you do that?"

"I'll show you, sir," he rejoined, as he disappeared for a moment. Returning with a glass in his hand, he let it fall on the floor, remarking:

"That's how I broke it, sir."

"There, go along, Thomas; you are a great goose," said his master, adding to himself, "and I was as great a one for asking such a foolish question."—Youth's Companion.

WATCHMAN'S TERRIBLE DEATH

A fatal explosion, the cause of which is a mystery, occurred at the Prospect Mills of Messrs. Joseph Hoyle and Son, woollen manufacturers, Longwood, England. An engine tender, named Bray, had arrived at midnight to see that all was right with the boilers, when there was a terrific explosion and Bray had to flee from steam and boiling water. An investigation disclosed the dead body of the night watchman Heeley, terribly scalded, one of the coupling pipes of the boiler having burst.

The town of Wainwright on the Grand Trunk Pacific is forging ahead. The new $18,000 brick school-house will be occupied on December 1st, and it is believed that at the present rate of growth of the town, the school will have to be enlarged within a year.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

"IT HEALED MY SORES WHEN ALL ELSE HAD FAILED!"

This is what Mr. Edward Bingham, of 118 Brant Ave., Brantford, says of Zam-Buk. After an attack of typhoid fever, ulcers broke out on his right foot and ankle. "The foot and leg were terribly inflamed," he says, "and the pain was very acute. I could not wear boot or shoe, and could not move about at all! I used all kinds of lotions, salves and ointments, yet nothing seemed able to heal the ulcers until Zam-Buk was tried.

"The very first application of Zam-Buk relieved the intense pain, and as I kept on using Zam-Buk the ulcers began to look healthier and were less painful.

"By use of this healing balm the discharging was reduced and healing commenced. After a few weeks' treatment, the swelling and inflammation were banished, and the sores were entirely healed. I am so grateful for my cure through Zam-Buk that I consider it my duty to let others know of the merits of this great balm."

What Zam-Buk should be used for.

Zam-Buk will be found a sure cure for cold sores, chapped hands, frost bites, ulcers, eczema, blood poison, varicose sores, piles, scalp sores, ringworm, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions and chapped places, cuts, burns, bruises, and skin injuries and diseases generally. All druggists and stores sell at 50c box, or post free from Zam Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. You are warned against harmful imitations and substitutes. CANVASS FOR NEW CHURCH.

Charlotte Street Methodists to Have New Building—A Splendid Sum Already Subscribed—Great Interest Displayed.

The official Board and their helpers of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church will make a complete canvass of the congregation during this week for funds for their new church.

A meeting will be held each evening at which reports will be received and plans laid for the day following. The programme of meetings is as follows:

Monday, 8 p.m.—In the Guild room.

"THE SWEETEST OF ALL THE CHARITIES."

Will You Help It In Its Hour of Need.... ?

THE HOSPITAL FOR SICK CHILDREN

COLLEGE STREET, TORONTO

READY FOR MOTHER.

This Institution did more work in 1910 than ever before. Total In-Patients 1,224. Of these, 783 were from the city and 441 from the country.

Since its organization, the Hospital has treated in its cots and beds 16,837 children; 12,370 of these were unable to pay and were treated free.

There were 60 cases of club feet corrected last year.

THE HOSPITAL IS A PROVINCIAL CHARITY.

The sick child from the most remote corner of Ontario has the same claim as the child living within sight of the great House of Mercy in College Street, Toronto. Our cause is the children's cause. Could there be one that has a stronger claim on the people of this Province?

Perfect results in Harelip cases. 10 infants were relieved of this terrible deformity last year.

If the Hospital is to continue its great work, it must appeal to your pocketbook as well as to your heart. Let your Dollars be messages of mercy to the suffering little children of Ontario.

Please send your contribution to J. Ross Robertson, Chairman, or to Douglas Davidson, Secretary-Treasurer. The Hospital for Sick Children, College St., Toronto.

Tuesday, 6.30 p.m.—Tea with the Ladies' Aid in the school room, and meeting of the board after.

Wednesday, 8 to 9 p.m.—The meeting for prayer, followed by board meeting.

Thursday and Friday The Ladies' Aid will serve supper to members of the board and their helpers at 6.30, after which board meeting will be held.

Friday, 8 p.m.—A grand rally of the whole congregation in the school room to receive final reports. Special music and addresses—a sort of jubilee service.

The friends of the church will be encouraged by the fact that we begin the week's canvas with over $25,000 already subscribed.

William Kearney got a jag on in Peterborough on Thursday and was arrested. Last night at 11.20 he was found intoxicated in Belleville. All his money being fairly gone, he could not pay a fine of $5. The next ten days he will spend as the guest of honor of Goaler Ketcheson. No receptions have as yet been announced.—Belleville Ontario.

"THE KLONDYKE'S MOTHER LODE"

The storehouse from which the famous placer creeks, Bonanza and Eldorado, receive their fabulous wealth, have been uncovered on the claims of The Victoria Gulch Mines, situated on the ridge at the head of Victoria and Gay gulches. The company's holdings consist of four quartz claims and about 200 acres 14 miles from Dawson, on a good wagon road and two miles from the Klondyke Mines R.R. There are two true quartz veins, between perfect walls 6 and 10 feet wide on the property, the free milling ore from which is literally encrusted with the yellow metal. Read what some of the world's greatest authorities say:

R. G. McConnell, B.A., of the Geological Survey, says in his report on the Klondyke Goldfields.

"A sample in which no free gold could be detected with the naked eye, or an ordinary magnifying glass, was assayed in the laboratory of the survey and gave 2,625 oz. of gold and 3,267 oz. of silver to the ton."

Pro. Henry A. Mairs, D. Sc. F.R.S., Waynflete, Professor of Mineralogy in the University of Oxford, in collaboration with Professor A. P. Coleman in a report to the Minister of the Interior, says: "At the head of Victoria Gulch which runs into Bonanza, a creek opposite Gay Gulch, a tributary of Eldorado, and at a height of about 2,300 feet above Dawson, has been opened, what appears to be a true quartz vein, showing nuggety gold in abundance. The gold is distinctly crystalline in character, and the crystals are of a peculiar form having a triangular outline due to the fact that they are octahedra, and in particular a remarkable variety known as "spinel twins." Now it is significant that the gold found in Victoria gulch is also crystalline and has the same characteristic outline, here then we have fairly convincing evidence that the gold found in a stream gravel is identical with that found in situ in a quartz at the head of the valley and in this instance there can be little doubt as to the origin of the gold."

Dr. Eugene Haanel, Director of Mines, a noted authority on mineralogy in a report to the department in 1902, says: "Masses of quartz were seen protruding from the surface all about the locality, and it needed only to wet the surface of the quartz with water to reveal the bright specks of gold adhering to their surface.

"Gay gulch and Victoria gulch, the former a tributary of Eldorado creek, the latter of Bonanza creeks, limit Victoria Hill toward the sources of Bonanza and Eldorado creeks. Above Victoria and Gay gulches, Bonanza and Eldorado creeks respectively are unproductive, below these gulches the creeks are rich. It seems a reasonable conclusion that the gold in these creeks, at least as far as they flank the side of Victoria Hill, was derived from Victoria Hill."

Mr. R. W. Brock, Director Geological Survey, says: "The district is not glaciated. Gold in the recent gravel freshly derived from its original source is similar to gold in the corresponding White Channel gravel. Many of the gold grains and most of the nuggets, enclose quartz. Quartz pebbles are found containing gold, some at least very rich in gold. The quartz of the boulders is similar to the quartz of the veins, and gold of the veins to gold of the gravels. From the foregoing and other facts, it is obvious that the gold is absolutely local in origin, derived from the basins of the pay gulches and creeks."

Fred. T. Congdon, Member for the Yukon, stated on the floor of the House of Commons last January that some of the richest gold quartz in the world was being mined close to Dawson.

Just stop and think of the immense possibilities of rich returns from the development of the claims of The Victoria Gulch mines, when two miles of the Mother Lode runs through the property from which the $55,000,000 in placer gold has been already won from Eldorado and Bonanza creeks, the one-third the Klondyke's entire output. 100,000 shares of treasury stock of the par value of $1 is now offered for public subscription at 25 cents per share fully paid and non-assessable.

No further issue of treasury stock will have to be made at this price.

USE OF RIFLE RANGES FOR CADETS.

The Board acquiesced in Lieut.-Col. Stevenson's proposal that the Cadets use the regimental rifle ranges for target practice. The regimental rifles will be available to the youthful soldiers, the corps to furnish its own ammunition. The Board will assume all responsibility in case of accident, and appoint some one in charge of the boys while shooting.

Mr. H. R. H. Kennee here offered that the boys will be under the control of Mr. Hodgson.

This was quite satisfactory to the Board, who referred the matter to the supervision committee, with power to act.

APPROVED OF TEXT BOOKS.

On motion of Mr. Hill, seconded by Mr. Fair, Inspector Mowat's choice of Mr. Pickering as a substitute in place of Mr. Kelly, as principal of the East City school, until the arrival of Mr. Park in January, was endorsed.

FOR CONSUMPTIVE HOSPITAL.

On motion of Mr. Fair, seconded by Mr. Miller, permission was given teachers to accept envelopes containing stamps to be sold to pupils in aid of the Muskoka Consumptive Hospital.

A GRACEFUL ACT ACKNOWLEDGED.

On motion of Mr. Crane, seconded by Mr. Miller, the secretary was instructed to extend the thanks of the Board to the executive of the Collegiate Institute Literary Society for their donation of $40 with which to decorate the classrooms with pictures

A MODEL COMMITTEE

Property Committee of the School Board Has to Its Credit $811 Saved from an Appropriation of $1,600

The Property Committee of the School Board presented a highly satisfactory statement last night, when its efficient chairman, Mr. Robert Fair, reported that out of an appropriation of $1,600 they had to their credit a balance of $811. This committee is responsible for the up-keep of all school property, and during the year that is closing has met all demands made upon it for repairs, improvements, etc. The annual appropriation is always based upon past experiences in this way of school property maintenance; and, to say the least, considerable credit is due the Property Committee of 1910 for its businesslike and conservative conduction of a department that, generally speaking, offers much opportunity for an overdraft on its appropriation in place of a substantial credit balance. In public life it is seldom that a board effects much saving, if any, out of its appropriation, but in this instance, the commendable example has been set of the possibility an important committee keeping well within its available means.

The regular monthly meeting of the Peterborough Poultry Association was held in their hall, Simcoe street.

The minutes of last meeting were read and received.

The prize list has been handed to the printers and a list of eighty-six specials have been placed on the different varieties of birds for the annual show, January 10, 11 and 12, 1911. A cheque for $25.00 from the County Council was received.

The new coops have been completed. Birds on exhibition were then judged by H. S. Lash:

Brahamas, 7.—Cock, 1, hen 1 and 3, pullet 2, to C. B. Tucker.

Cockerel, 1; pullets, 2 and 3, to J. J. Cunningham.

CHILDREN ARE GETTING SCHOOL SUPPLIES AND TEXT BOOKS AT LESS THAN ACTUAL COST

Secretary Thompson's Statement of the Fee's Fund Shows a Deficit in all Years but One Since Incipiency of Present School Supplies System

At the last regular meeting of the Board of Education, Dr. Burnham raised the question of whether the fees collected from public school scholars allowed of any credit balance after furnishing necessary text books and supplies. Also if any monies so collected had been applied in any other direction than that of supplies and text books. It was admitted that some wall maps had been purchased out of the fees fund, and Dr. Burnham asked that a statement of the condition of this fund since its incipiency be prepared.

Last night Secretary Thompson submitted to the Board the following statement which shows the results of the system:—

1904—Fees Received		$ 884.64
To Paid for Text Books and Supplies	$1,041.42
Deficit	156.78	156.78
1905—Fees Received		2,281.99
To Paid for Text Books and Supplies	2,565.50
Deficit	283.51	283.51
1906—Fees Received		2,340.17
To Paid for Text Books and Supplies	2,365.34
Deficit	25.17	25.17
1907—Fees Received		2,365.54
To Paid for Text Books and Supplies	2,444.43
Deficit	78.89	78.89
1908—Fees Received		2,369.89
To Paid for—Text Books and Supplies	2,530.69
Deficit	160.80	160.80
		$705.15
1909—Fees Received		2,455.17
To Paid for Text Books and Supplies	2,235.99
Surplus	199.18
By Surplus in 1909		199.18
		$505.97
Estimated Deficit in 1910		175.00
Aggregate Deficit since adoption of system		$680.97

By the foregoing it will be noticed that from this fund a deficit has generally prevailed with an aggregate deficit, including this year, of $680.-97. And it must be a source of gratification to all concerned to learn that the fees collected for text books and supplies, although not sufficient to meet the demand made upon it, has been supplemented from the common fund to the advantage of public school supporters.

On motion of Mr. Dumble, seconded by Mr. W. H. Hill, the Board expressed its unqualified gratification that the people had not been overcharged for text books and supplies, but on the contrary, the children are getting the same really at less than cost.

MRS. M'WILLIAMS GETS AN ADDRESS

And a Beautiful Manicure Set From Lady Friends.

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. R. F. McWilliams, B.A., who with her husband has taken up her residence in Winnipeg, was presented with an address accompanied by a beautiful manicure set. The presentation took place at the residence of Mr. W. J. Hopwood, Simcoe street (Mrs. McWilliam's former home), in the presence of a large number of lady friends. The address was read by Mrs. Goodwill on behalf of the Sewing Circle of the Children's Shelter, of which Mrs. McWilliams was a valued member.

The manicure set was of solid sterling silver, and was the gift of the Circle and a number of warm personal friends.

At the conclusion of the presentation dainty refreshments were served.

YOUNG LADY WAS TERRIBLY BURNED

Kingston Girl Met Death From Throwing Grease in Fire.

Kingston, Dec. 6.—Helen Main, 18 years of age, daughter of the late Adam Main, Princess street, died this morning from burns which she sustained yesterday afternoon. Miss Main threw some grease drippings into the fire. Immediately the flames shot up and enveloping her set fire to her clothing. Friends rushed to her assistance, but before the fire was subdued, she was terribly burned about the upper parts of the body and the lower part of her face. Richard Main of Toronto, is a brother.

MR. FIELDING IS SLIGHTLY IMPROVED

Facial Paralysis Slightly Improved, But His Friends are Anxious.

Ottawa, Dec. 6.—A letter received today from Virginia Hot Springs, states that Hon. W. S. Fielding's general health is good and his facial paralysis is slightly improved. While hoping for his speedy recovery, Mr. Fielding's friends display considerable solicitude having regard to his age under any condition. He may not return to Ottawa this session though his absence will be severely felt inasmuch as the leading of the House in the late sittings has always devolved upon the Minister of Finance.

CLAY PIPE WAS HIS BEST FRIEND

James Gallagher Dies at Age of 105—Smoked All His Life, But Never Drank.

Ebensburg, Pa., Dec. 6.—James Gallagher, who died here yesterday, was 105 years old. He never touched liquor and a clay pipe was his constant companion. Death was due to a stroke of apoplexy. He never had been sick before.

Gallagher was born in Donegal, Ireland, February 2nd, 1805, came to this country in 1840, and became one of the pioneers of the little mountain town in which he died. For many years he was a railroad contractor and acquired a fortune in that business, retiring thirty years ago. He superintended the building of some of the first railroads in South America. At the age of 100 he built a fine mansion for his home. He is survived by one daughter, two grand-daughters and seven great grand children.

Murdered Man's Wife Wore The Comb

BIG SURPRISE IN THE LEBLANC CASE OVER ARTICLE FOUND IN THE LAUNDRY.

Belonged to Prisoner, Said the Murdered Man's Wife—Supt. of Laundry To-day Told Different Tale.

East Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 6.—One of the biggest surprises of the trial of Hattie LeBlanc on the charge of having murdered Clarence F. Glover came today, when Wm. H. McCall superintendent of the Glover Laundry testified that the lady's comb found in the laundry the next day after the tragedy was that of Mrs. Lillian M. Glover.

The comb was introduced into the case by the state and Mrs. Glover testified that it belonged to Hattie LeBlanc. Mr. McCall swore that he often visited the Glover home and that he saw the comb in question or one just like it. He said that it was being worn by a woman when he saw it.

"Who was wearing it?" Lawyer Melvin M. Johnson asked.

"Mrs. Glover," replied the witness.

Described by the Rev. Dr. O'Brien at St. Alphonsus Lyceum.

A most interesting lecture on "Pagan and Christian Monuments in Rome," was delivered at the T.A.S. St. Alphonsus Lyceum, on Monday evening by the Rev. Dr. O'Brien, rector of the Church of the Sacred Heart.

The lecture was profusely illustrated and made more real by stereoptic con. slides, operated by Mr. H. O. Fiske.

The historic places of ancient Rome the beautiful architecture of the famous structures which are now crumbled to ruins, were all shown and described.

Such spots as the famous Forum, the Appian Way, the Arcade, the palaces of the Emperors, the famous Amphitheatre and the Catacombs, made notable by their past historical connections, were thrown on the can vas and explained in a lucid manner. "Rome," said the lecturer, was inhabited by a luxury loving people, who finally degenerated into an iniquitous and sensual minded race, eventually leading to its downfall.

Several musical numbers were also contributed. Miss Gertrude Clancy and Miss Verna Devlin each gave a vocal solo in good voice. Both these young ladies have excellent voices, which displayed training and control and their numbers were much enjoyed.

Mr. Joseph Marcel also sang in a very pleasing manner.

Accepts Call to St. Andrew's

London, Dec. 6.—At the meeting of the London Presbytery held yesterday afternoon, the call of St. Andrew's church, Peterborough, to Rev. James Rollins, of London, was sustained. His induction into his new charge will take place on December 20th.

A LITTLE DANISH SCHOONER LOST

The Hamlet, With Her Crew of Five Unaccounted for and Believed to be Wrecked.

St. John's, Nfld., Dec. 6.—Hope is abandoned here for the safety of the little Danish schooner Hamlet, with its crew of five men which has been unaccounted for a month on a voyage taking ordinarily three days. She was bound from this port for Lamaline to load fish for a Spanish port. Terrible storms swept the coast the day after she departed.

THE LADY TYPISTS HAVE TO LEAVE

Young Men Will Fill Their Places in the Commons—Decision of Committee.

Ottawa, Dec. 6.—Young woman employed around the House of Commons as typists for members of Parliament have got to leave as the result of a decision by the committee on internal economy. An anti-suffragette movement has set in. For some sessions about thirty young ladies have been employed for the purpose, but there is no adequate accommodation for them. They are seen tapping machines in the upper corridors or recesses. The committee thinks that young men are better suited for the work. The plan is to have one male typist for each ten members. The members themselves to name the typist. The change will be made soon be made as soon as the House approves it.

MONEY FOR MINORS.

Another Eastern judge has taken up the problem of suitable allowance for the children of the rich. Last week a claim was made on behalf of a girl of 16 for an allowance of $17,000 a year. This week application has been made for an annual allowance of $25,000 for a boy of 10. The two cases are interesting as showing how money is piling up in New York and how early the children of the wealthy begin to hit the pace.

In the case of the girl it was ruled that $6,000 a year would suffice. In the other case the judge held that $2,500 a year ought to be enough for the needs of a boy of 10, even though the sum of his fortune rose to $1,-000,000.

Most people will sympathize with these judicial views. Nothing is better for after life than a simple and wholesome childhood. If the friends and relatives of the young people involved are inclined to be irked by what may appear to be the narrow ideas of the bench, the young people themselves, in after years, will be likely to find little cause for complaint.

Priest Gave Last Rites To a Dying Protestant

Quebec, Dec. 6.—A very peculiar case of religious interest arose on the eve of the death of Mr. Jacques Faure, the French aeronaut. When Faure's condition was considered hopeless on Thursday last, Mr. J. E. Vincent, agent of Mumm's champagne was informed of the sad news by the Jeffrey Hales hospital authorities. As Faure was a Frenchman everybody believed he was a Roman Catholic. So Mr. Vincent called the Catholic priest, who came to the hospital and administered to Mr. Faure the last rites of the Catholic Church. Mr. Faure was then unconscious. It was only after his death that it was known by his friends that Mr. Faure was a Protestant, and descendent of an old Huguenot family. He was then given a funeral service at the English Cathedral.

It has been erroneously announced that the late Mr. Jacques Faure was a nephew of the ex President of the French Republic. His relationship to the ex-President was distant, his grandfather having been a cousin to the father of the late President.

WILL STILL SHAPE CHURCH DESTINIES

Affairs of Christian Science Will Go On as Though Governed by Living Head of Founder.

Boston, Dec. 6.—Even in death Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy will shape the destinies of the Christian Science Church, and after her body is laid to rest on Thursday, the affairs of the greatest of new schools of thought and religion will go on as though governed by the living hand of the founder.

Through the written commandments of Mrs. Eddy the board of directors of the mother church will continue the work. A meeting of the directors with Archibald McClellan, chairman, presiding, was called for today when, it was said, it would be definitely decided where Mrs. Eddy's body will be buried. It was also to be decided whether or not a sculptor would be allowed to take a death mask of the dead leader.

Great crowds gathered about the Eddy mansion on Chestnut Hill this morning but the grounds were patrolled by detectives and no one was allowed to enter except on showing authority.

CONFESSION DROVE HUSBAND INSANE

Vincennes, Ind., Dec. 6.—That the confession of Mrs. Moore of her relations with Chas. Edward Gibson drove Menloe Moore insane, is the basis of the plea on which Moore hopes to escape the gallows for the murder of Gibson, in the railway station here recently.

Insanity experts still have the field in the testimony and will give answers to hypothetical questions today. The questions recite all the details of the killing.

Dr. W. H. Davenport, the principal alienist, declared that Moore suffered from impulsive insanity. He said that when Moore saw Gibson he was unable to no anything but kill him.

Mrs. Moore's testimony has not ceased to be a sensation. She was well known here and at Washington, Ind.

UNIONISTS PAPERS BLAME PREMIER ASQUITH FOR RUSHING THE ELECTIONS ON OLD REGISTER.

John Dillon Returned Unopposed—Battle Royal in Cork Between Wm. Redmond and Wm. O'Brien.

London, Dec. 6.—At four p.m. the returns showed today one Liberal and four Nationalists returned unopposed, making the totals at that hour as follows:

Unionists	127
Liberals	91
Laborites	16
Nationalists	28

The prominent feature in today's early returns in the Parliamentary elections was the capture of Sunderland by the coalition parties. T. Hamar Greenwood, the Canadian Liberal, who returns to the House of Commons after an absence of less than a year, and Frank Goldstone, the Laborite, turned out the two Unionist members, Story, independent tariff reformer, and J. Knott, who were elected last January by majorities of 741 and 1,212 respectively.

The polling took place in Sunderland yesterday, but the results were not announced until today. Greenwood received a majority of 1,697, and Goldstone had a margin of 991 votes.

The turnover is attributed in part at least to the bitterness of the boiler makers in Sunderland district, who were locked out six months back.

The results in Newcastle-on-Tyne were also made known for the first time today. They show no change, the Liberal and Laborite candidates being returned by slightly reduced majorities. Unopposed returns, however, placed the Unionists again in the front today with a total of 129 seats, against 125 secured by the coalition.

WARSAW.

The funeral of the late Mr. McClure of North Drummer, took place Saturday afternoon. Many friends of the surrounding district were present to pay their last respects to the deceased.

Misses. Allen and Dewellen Dobson, of Smith, spent Sunday with Mr. Davis.

The birthday of the Queen mother was truly recognized by the school flag being hoisted on high.

Quite a number of the local residents took advantage of the good sleighing to make their trip to Peterborough.

The mill is enjoying a busy season, as the farmers are able to haul their grain easily.

The local trade is picking up with the quick approach of Christmas.

A number of skaters spent Saturday afternoon on the pond, including several ladies. This is the first skating there has been yet. We hope the rink committee will get a move on.

Mr. Cooper is still in St. Mark's.

The usual Christmas concerts are under preparation.

DESERTED AT ALTAR GETS SPOUSE ANYWAY.

Old Suitor Steps Forward When Scheduled Bridegroom Fails to Appear and Ceremony Goes With Slight Delay.

Marinette, Wis., Dec. 6.—After hundreds of guests had assembled today for the wedding of Mary Louise Gardner of Sycamore, Ill., to Benjamin Nelson of Lena, Wis., and after the wedding march had been played and the bride had been escorted to the altar and awaited the appearance of her intended husband, there came a lull in the ceremony, for no groom appeared upon the scene, and diligent search upon the part of friends of both the contracting parties failed to reveal his whereabouts. What might have been a distressing dismissal of the assemblage by the bride and her relatives was forestalled when Karl Johnson, one of the invited guests and a former sweetheart of the fair bride, stepped forward and said:

"I'll take his place right here and now."

The bride somewhat abashed by the sudden declaration of her former suitor, blushed and then said, "I always liked you the best, anyway, Karl," and the ceremony was performed without regard to the absence of the scheduled groom.

In the short pause caused by the embarrassment of the bride at the declaration of her unexpected would-be husband's proposal various telephones and quick messengers devices were pressed into service to get the marriage licenses straightened out in a legal manner.

The pair were joined in wedlock by the marrying parson of Menominee, Justice Vanderberg, and the bride and groom later entertained hundreds of friends and relatives at a wedding feast. Mrs. Johnson stated to night that she believed she had the best husband in the world, and that the absence of her intended spouse was the most fortunate thing which could have happened to her.

"I do not believe that there is any other medicine so good for whooping cough as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," writes Mrs. Francis Turpin, Juneton City, Ore. This remedy is also unsurpassed for colds and croup. For sale by all dealers.

AN EXCELLENT OPENING AT WAINWRIGHT.

Advices received at the Grand Trunk Pacific offices state that there is an excellent opening at Wainwright, Alberta for a flour mill. The local consumption of flour is a carload a week. There is plenty of water and cheap fuel, and the district produces the best hard wheat.

To show the growth of a town in Western Canada it is stated that Wainwright, Alberta, which is not more than two years old, are negotiating for $5,000 steam fire engine. They have also authorized the employment of an engineer to run the level of the entire town preparatory to the installation of a complete drainage system.

STRUCK BY CAR, YOUNG BOY DEAD.

Philip Copeland, Seven Years Old, Killed on the Gerrard Street Bridge.

Toronto, Dec. 6.—"I'm going to meet my daddy," said seven year old Philip Copeland at six o'clock last night, when Mrs. Denyer, of 45 Blackburn street, with whom the Copelands were staying, went to her front door to see where the little chap was going.

"Come back," cried Mrs. Denyer, but Philip was on his way to Gerrard street, and a minute or so later he was crushed to death by a west bound street car.

HISTORY OF MANKIND.

There is no such proof that "hope springs eternal in the human breast" as the history of mankind itself. We go on age by age, working out, with what we hope to be improvements, the same experiences in government and social organization as did our fathers in all history and their fathers before history began. And he must be hard to convince indeed who is not able thankfully to believe that these centuries of effort and struggle have brought some good results. We have settled, at least for a time, some fundamentals, as, for instance, that war is not the necessary rule of conduct between nations, and that to be either a slave owner or a slave is not the only choice that can be offered to the individual. Even slow progress in the past is ground for hope that we shall continue to move forward for the future.

And so long as progress is hoped for, the effort to attain it will naturally take the line of plan and co-operation. But there are those who tell us that, for our own time, effort is useless. To these people the political parties are merely predatory organizations, the churches, as Burn's Beggar says, "built to please the priest," the people dupes and rascals. The healthy optimism of the common people usually disregards such talk. But that is no excuse for those who are guilty of these utterances. They are like fools who hang weights on the safety valve—no thanks to them if no explosion takes place.

It is right for the man who disbelieves in the existing parties to say so plainly. It is right for any man who thinks the Church inefficient, decadent or corrupt to call upon others to disregard or defy the Church. It is well to have every organization thoroughly criticized by those who think that criticism will help. But when a man criticises and yet tells us that there is no use in trying to improve conditions, only one conclusion is possible, and that is that he desires to see the orderly effort for reform cease and the turbulence and anarchy of mere selfishness begin.

The hopeless and not helpful may have no hope, but they may have no influence. Those critics whose criticism is such desire in fact. They may be talking merely to display that foolish vanity that makes one think himself clever if he can pick flaws in the work of others. But if their talk have any effect beyond themselves, that effect can be in no other direction than that of spreading despair. People will not despair utterly, but action than that of breeding despair when they reach the conclusion that the existing order has no health in it and cannot be worked out to advantage, they take the quick and sure method of anarchy and revolution to effect reform. He who preaches despair, preaches the abandonment of the existing order.

RURAL POPULATION DECREASING

The census just taken shows that the State of Iowa has decreased in population during the past decade. This is accounted for by the fact that Iowa has no large cities to attract population, and that many of the farms have become so large in acreage as to [illegible]

GREATEST SAFETY FOR MONEY.

While there is no method or device for the protection of property in this world that impregnable adopted by the Bank of England to protect its treasure against the depredations of robbers exhibit almost the limit of human ingenuity. Its vaults doors are now so finely balanced that a clerk, by pressing a knob under his desk can close them instantly, and they cannot be opened again except by a special mechanism. The bullion department of this great British banking institution is nightly submerged in several feet of water by the action of machinery. In some of the London banks the bullion departments are connected with the manager's sleeping rooms, and an entrance cannot be effected without setting off an alarm near this person's head. If, in the Bank of England, a dishonest officer during the day or night should take even one from a pile of 1,000 sovereigns, the whole pile would instantly sink and a pool of water take its place, besides letting every person in the establishment know of the theft.

THE RED YEAR

—By—

LOUIS TRACY.

[illegible] near him growled. "He talks of treachery. Where are they?"

"The Meerut road is empty," commented another.

"We have the Begum's orders," said the first speaker, more loudly. 'Let us obey, or it may be an evil thing for us."

"One of the daughters of Bahadur Shah is here," murmured Mayne rapidly. "She says we are to be taken to Delhi, and slain if we resist. Where are your men? My poor niece! to think that I should have brought her from England for this!"

Malcolm, still holding Winifred's unconscious form clasped to his breast, laughed loudly.

"Mayne-sahib tells me that you have all gone mad," he shouted in the vernacular. "Have you no ears? Did you not hear the British artillery firing on the rebels a little time since? Ere day breaks the road to Delhi will be held by the white troops. What foolish talk is this of taking Mayne-sahib thither as a prisoner?"

The door of the bedizened travelling coach was flung open, and the Mohammedan lady who had befriended Frank when he fell into the moat appeared. She alighted, and her aggressive escorts drew away somewhat.

"It is my order," she said imperiously. "Who are you that you should dispute it?"

"I regret the heat of my words, Princess," he replied, grasping the frail chance that presented itself of wriggling out of a desperate situation. "Nevertheless, it is true that the native regiments at Meerut have been dispersed, and you yourself may have heard the guns as they advanced along the Delhi road. Why should I be here otherwise? I came to escort my friends back to Meerut."

The Princess came nearer. In the brilliant moonlight she had an unearthly beauty at once weird and Sybilline, but her animated features were chilled with disdain, and she pointed to the girl whose pallid face lay against Frank's shoulder.

"You are lying," she said. "You are not the first man who has lied for a woman's sake. That is why you are here."

"Princess, I have spoken nothing but the truth," he answered. "If you still doubt my word, let some of your own ride back with us. They will soon convince you. Perchance, the information may not be without its value to you also."

The thrust was daring but she parried it adroitly.

"No matter what has happened in Meerut, the destined end is the same," she retorted. Then she fired into sudden passion. "The British Raj is doomed," she muttered, lowering her voice, and bringing her magnificent eyes close to his. "It is gone, like an evil dream. Listen, Malcolm-sahib. You are a young man, and ambitious. They say you are a good soldier. Come with me. I want some one I can trust. Though I am a king's daughter, there are difficulties in my path that call for a sword in the hands of a man not afraid to use it. Come! Let that weakling girl go where she lists—I care not. I offer you life, and wealth, and a career. She will lead you to death. What say you? Choose quickly. I am now going to Delhi, and tomorrow's sun shall see my father a king in reality as well as in name."

Malcolm's first impression was that the Princess had lost her senses. He had yet to learn how completely the supporters of the Mogul dynasty were convinced of the approaching downfall of British supremacy in India. But his active brain fastened on to two considerations of exceeding importance. By temporising, by misleading this arrogant woman, if necessary, he might not only secure freedom for Winifred and Mayne, but gather most valuable information as to the immediate plans of the rebels.

"Your words are tempting to a soldier of fortune, Princess," he said.

"Malcolm—" broke in Mayne, who, of course, understood all that passed. "For Heaven's sake do not interfere," said Frank in English. "Suffer my friends to depart, Princess," he went on in Persian. "It is better so. Then I shall await your instructions."

"Ah, you agree, then." That is good hearing. Yet, your white doll can go, and the gray-beard, too. Ere many days have passed there will be no place for them in all India."

A commotion among the ring of soldiers and servants interrupted her. The stout, important-looking man whom Malcolm had seen in the hunting lodge on the occasion of his duel-ling, came towards them with hurried strides. The Princess seemed to be disconcerted by his arrival. Her expressive face betrayed her. Sullen anger, not unmixed with fear, robbed her of her good looks. Her whole aspect changed. She had the cowed appearance of one of her own serving women.

"Remember!" she murmured. "You must obey me, none else. Come when I send for you!"

The man who now carried on his forehead the insignia of a Brahmin had no sooner reached the small space between the carriages than Mr. Mayne cried delightedly to Malcolm:

"Why, if this is not Nana Sahib! Here is a piece of good luck! I know him well. If he has any control over this mob we are perfectly safe."

Nana Sahib acknowledged the Commissioner's greeting with smiling politeness. But first he held a whispered colloquy with the Princess, whom he threatened, or persuaded, to re-enter her gorgeous vehicle. She drove away without another glance at Malcolm. Perhaps she did not dare to show her favor in the newcomer's presence.

Then Nana Sahib turned to the Europeans.

"Let the miss-sahib be placed in her carriage," he said briefly. "She will soon revive in the air, and we march at once for Aligarh. Will you accept my escort thus far, Mayne-sahib, or another south, if you wish it? I think you will be safer with me than to take the Meerut road to-night."

Mayne agreed gladly. The [illegible] nobleman, who, despite [illegible] decision of the Government, was regarded by every Mahratta as Peishwa, the ruler of the vast territory in Western India, seemed to offer more stable support that night than the broken reed of British authority in Meerut. Moreover, the Commissioner

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for additions and alterations to the Public Building, Peterborough Ontario," will be received at this office until 4.00 p.m., on Wednesday, December 21, 1910, for work mentioned.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at this Department, and on application to Wm. Blackwell Esq., Architect, Peterborough, Ont.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent. (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order.
R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary.
Department of Public Works,
Ottawa, November 28, 1910.
Newspapers will not be paid for this advertisement if they insert it without authority from the Department.

BIG YEAR FOR CANADA.

For the first seven months of the fiscal year Canada's trade has increased at the rate of nearly 10,000,000 a month as compared with the corresponding months of last year. The increase for October was $10,602,864. The imports and exports for the seven months totalled $433,297,000, an increase over last year of $66,469,000. Imports alone totalled $262,985,000 an increase of $58,010,000. Exports amounted to $170,611,000 an increase of $8,468,000.

MOTHER OF PARLIAMENTS.

There must be a high principal behind the members of the British Parliament who cheered the announcement of a new election, notwithstanding that they knew it meant to them a very personal expenditure, probably $5,000 or more, with the possibility of their not being returned to the House and that on top of an equal expenditure less than a year ago. This action, taken in connection with the fact that the members receive no salary or indimnity for their parliamentary services is strong proof that their hearts are in the work. No other such self-sacrificing body of legislators exists in the world. It is well named the 'Mother of Parliaments," for it sets a high example to all the nations of the earth in self-sacrifice.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL ISSUE IN ENGLAND.

It is impossible to keep secondary and minor issues out of an election, and it is evident that the electorate of the United Kingdom will hear a great deal in the next few weeks about home rule, protection, land reform, labor legislation, and so on. But the paramount issue is, and will remain, the constitutional one—the power and function of the lords in the scheme of government. The respective leaders of the two great parties do not shrink from this issue and are not trying to dodge or obscure it.

What are the differences between them as to this issue? What is the maximum the tories are now willing to grant; what the minimum the liberals consider irreducible?

It may not be, that the British peers are surrendering more than any class has ever given up since the eve of the French revolution, but they are really surrendering a great deal. Panic or not, deathbed repentance or not, the fact of their surrender is momentous. They offer to reduce by half the membership of the upper house, to abolish the hereditary principle, to introduce an elective element, to submit most disputes between the houses to a joint session, and certain essential ones to a popular referendum, and to waive all veto claims as to finance bills proper.

Two years ago such concessions as these would have staggered the stubborn tories and amazed the liberals and radicals. Two years ago no one would have denied that they were calculated to give an impetus to democracy and a severe blow to feudalism and privilege.

Today, however, the liberals scornfully reject them as vague, illusory, inadequate. They are determined to fight and risk everything in an election rather than accept the above indicated compromise. Why? Because, they say, the lords as mended would still remain permanently tory—a perpetual opposition to any liberal government. They demand a chance "to carry the lords" or an opportunity to pass legislation over and against the lords' veto. Here is Mr. Asquith's brief summary of the liberal position:

We propose such a change in the relations of the two chambers as will confine the second chamber to those subordinate functions which are admittedly appropriate to such a body and which will secure a fair even working of the two parties whichever party is in power. We ask that in future the will of the people as expressed by the house of commons shall within the lifetime of a single parliament be effectively supreme.

This, say Asquith and all his associates, is not at all revolutionary, but moderate and reasonable—so reasonable that they will take nothing less and confidently appeal to the electors.

The campaign will be short, sharp and exciting; the voters will have little time for reflection and the pondering of arguments. Their mood, emotions, instincts and impressions will determine the result of the contest.

ASSESSMENT FAVORS.

With almost every municipal election the question comes up, in some form or other for the consideration of the electorate, of fixed assessments and exemptions for industries. There are always circumstances under which manufacturers can claim a privilege of this kind and, often with good reason and public support.

The principle of granting fixed assessments and exemptions is, in a broad sense, contrary to the law of equity and should be prohibited by provincial legislation, but while the law permits municipalities to extend favors of this character each applicant has to be considered in relation to the circumstances that immediately effect it. Two outstanding arguments may well be used to justify individual favors with respect to assessment or exemption is to hold an industry which is an asset to a city, whereas to withold is to lose it, give the exemption or fixed assessment, providing the industry is sufficient.

Second, a manufacturing concern or an industry is only valuable to itself and to a community while it remains a going concern. It is not like real estate. When industry ceases it depreciates, usually to a quarter or at best a third of its former value.

Ordinarily it is not a sound banking principle to lend capital to a manufacturer except what is needed from time to time for specific business purposes. The advances are usually short date loans which can be quickly called in. The reason is the one stated. While factories are running and producing they can make money, but concerns that are worth $100,000 as going concerns may sell for only $25,000 when adversity comes. In certain instances, consequently, it is good business to encourage an industry until it can get on its feet. When it is able to declare dividends or spend large sums on improvements it should pay a proportionate rate of taxes with other businesses. The voting public should weigh carefully the cases of each by-law of this kind as presented and not hurriedly condemn all applicants because in a general sense the principle of assessment privileges is bad.

Imperial Quartette.

The Imperial Male Quartette makes its first appearance in this city. The fact that the quartette is lately of the Chicago Lyceum Bureau is sufficient guarantee of its ability as a musical organization.

The local lodge of the Knights of Pythias has arranged for a concert to be given in the Conservatory of Music Hall next Friday evening, 9th of December. The programme will be given by the Imperial Male Quartette of London; Miss Julia Choate, Mr. F. Clarke and the Conservatory of Music orchestra.

Don't trifle with a cold is good advice for prudent men and women. It may be vital in case of a child. There is nothing better than Chamberlains Cough Remedy for coughs and colds in children. It is safe and sure. For sale by all dealers.

TRAINING SPARROW'S

Remarkable Story of the Successful Effort to Get Sparrow to Imitate the Song of a Canary

Experiments have been made in England with a view to determin what are the conditions under which birds learn and cling to their traditional notes. For this purpose one experimenter employed very young birds of non-musical species, keeping them entirely with songsters in order to ascertain whether they would thus acquire the power of song.

In the month of July, several years ago, according to Harper's Weekly, he placed four fledgling English sparrows in the nest of a pair of singing canaries. Three of them died, but the fourth survived. This one had already acquired a sparrow chirp, and, hearing henceforth only the notes of the canary, he went no farther with the chirp that was his birthright. Instead, he came gradually, when among the canaries, to give notes different from those of the sparrow. Even when he was silent, if the canaries were singing, he could be seen to move his throat just as if he were trying to form the sounds, much in the manner that a person often inaudibly follows a song that another is singing. At last these sounds began to be audible and increasingly so. He began to give notes in rapid succession three or four tones up the scale, repeating the top note five or six times.

Then the sparrow, becoming bolder with practice and pleased with the sound of his own voice, soon indulged three or four runs in succession with eight or twelve notes in each, and in the last days of September, when three months old, he went up and down and up the scale all in one run.

During this time his voice had been changing. At first it was harsh, as is natural with English sparrows; but gradually, with the effort or with the sub-conscious influence of the sweeter sounds about him, it became softer and acquired something of the canary quality.

The sparrow's first efforts were sung on a low scale, and he tried the top notes vainly, but as his voice became milder, he went higher more easily. He was about three months old when he tried his first trill. It was short, but musical and he evidently thought pretty well of it, for he repeated it, and continued steadily to practise it. A year later he had grown to be quite an adept in canary song and would trill and sing continually.

LAST OF GOLDEN EAGLES

The Species Once Numerous in the Black Hills is Now Extinct

When the pioneers entered the Black Hills 35 years ago golden eagles were as common as are English sparrows at present, but with the death of Old Sentinel, that occurred several days ago, it is believed that the birds have become extinct. Unlike eagles of other sections of the country, the golden eagles were much larger, fiercer, swifter of flight and of a different color. The feathers and plumage of the back were almost yellow, hence the name.

In the early days of the hills the birds were so numerous that they were considerable of a menace to the settlers. Frequently they would swoop down into the ranch lots, pick up a lamb or a small pig and fly away to some crag, where they would devour the catch or carry it to their young. Many stories are told of golden eagles having attacked small children.

Recently E. M. Norman, Rapid City, went to Deadwood, S.D., determined if possible to capture the golden eagle alive. He realized that Old Sentinel was the last one of his race in the hills and that in his capture he would secure a prize well worth effort. Going out to the Ragged Top range with a small party of friends, he was told that Old Sentinel, that had guarded the peak for years, had not been seen for more than a month.

Mr. Norman concluded that a trip to the lofty home of the eagle was worth the trouble, and climbed to the top of the mountain. There, covering a space of more than 20 feet square, were the bones of almost all kinds of small domestic animals lying about in heaps.

Down in a crevice of the rocks, some 20 feet below, was the body of the eagle. Ropes were put around one of the men and he was lowered and pulled back, bringing with him the prize, not alive, but a dead eagle. Making an examination, Mr. Norman became convinced that the eagle must have been fully 100 years old, and that his death was due to age. The body was taken down and brought to Deadwood, where the skin will be mounted and probably become the property of the Historical Society of South Dakota.

IMPATIENT AGE

Primate on Mania for "Short Cuts"—The Perils of Hurry

The Archbishop of Canterbury, preaching at Lambeth Parish Church, where the mayor and corporation of the borough paid their annual visit in state, said that though the world was better than it was, present-day faults were great. Impatience and hurry were what we saw, and, he thought, suffered from every day. In every department of life people were striving for what in common talk were called "short cuts" towards the solutions they wanted to reach. Anxious problems were being faced in a spirit which was surely a new spirit and a dangerous one—a spirit of hot impatience. It was wholesome to be hotly intolerant of wrong, but intolerance or impatience of wrong would not usually solve great perplexities by itself. Patience had a foremost place in sustained effort to mend these things. To-day's temptation was speed rather than thoroughness.

WAS SHE STRANGLED.

Sistersville, W. Va., Dec. 3.—Mrs. Elizabeth Allen, aged 67 years, a wealthy widow, was found dead this afternoon at her home at Shirley, near here. Three thousand dollars, which she had in the house, is missing and the coroner believes that she was strangled to death, after which the robbery was committed. The house showed evidence of a fierce struggle.

The Tale of a Purposely Interrupted Yachting Cruise.

A few seasons back a well known hostess chartered a splendid yacht for August and invited a large number of her friends for a three weeks' cruise. At first all went well, though the party was not specially well assorted, but after a few days they began to evince signs of being somewhat bored with each other's company.

The hostess marked these signs of incipient boredom, which became more plainly evident each day, and at last in despair she took counsel with one of her guests, an old and experienced yachtsman.

"What on earth shall I do to amuse these people?" she asked.

The yachtsman looked at the serene sky and calm, blue water and shook his head doubtfully.

"A storm would enliven them up a bit," he said, "but the weather looks quite settled. There is only one thing to be done. You must arrange a break down; the engineer will manage that all right for you. He has probably often done so before. Then you must make for the nearest port for repairs and let your guests have a run ashore Some of them, I expect, will find an excuse for bidding you goodby and those who remain with you will get along all right together."

And Miss Alcott Was at the Other End of the Flirtation.

It seems an awful thing, but here is the circumstance on record that Louisa M. Alcott, the sainted author of "Little Women," once publicly flirted with Edward VII. The fact comes out in Mrs Belle Moss's book, "Louisa May Alcott, Dreamer and Worker." There is a passage in the book which contains Miss Alcott's personal account of the incident. It refers to the time when the late king, then Prince of Wales, made his famous visit to this country.

"I went to Boston," Miss Alcott relates, "and I saw the Prince of Wales trot over the common with his train at review—a yellow haired laddie, very like his mother. Fanny W. and I nodded and waved as he passed and he openly winked his boyish eye at us for Fanny with her yellow curls and wild waving looked rather rowdy, and the poor little prince wanted some fun We laughed and thought that we had been more distinguished by the saucy wink than by a stately bow. Boys are always jolly—even princes."

By the way, this incident occurred in 1860, when the Prince of Wales was nineteen years old and consequently quite a broth of a boy, and when Miss Alcott—we blush to record it—was twenty-eight.—New York Mail.

The Gold Dust Was There.

North America has counted as a gold producing continent only since the late forties. But it might well have done so for about 200 years. According to the London Chronicle, in the voyage round the world which began in 1719 the privateer Captain Shelvocke found in certain California valleys "a thick black mold which, as you turn it fresh up to the sun, appears as if intermingled with gold dust. Though we were a little prejudiced," he adds, "against the thought that it could be possible that this metal should be so promiscuously and universally mingled with common earth, yet we endeavored to cleanse and wash the earth from some of it, and the more we did the more it appeared like gold. In order to be further satisfied I brought away some of it, which we lost in our confusion in China."

Ate Himself Thin.

A terribly emaciated man, about thirty-five years of age, was eating four meals a day, including a heavy breakfast. He was also taking milk between meals. I induced him to give up the milk between meals and to take only a cup of weak tea for breakfast At once his weight began to increase. It is now normal. Obviously it was a case not only of ordinary mental worry, but also of worry and overwork of the millions of cell lives within him He gave the cells and organs a rest and at once there was a storage of energy and weight.—Metropolitan Magazine.

Linked Before and After.

Having entered the church at Regensburg, in Germany, for the purpose of being married and taken his place beside the bride, a man named Wahl, who seems to have been of a somewhat nervous disposition, suddenly rushed out of the building, took a cab to the station and jumped into a moving train. We have always maintained that the bridegroom should be handcuffed to the best man until the conclusion of the ceremony. It is foolish to take unnecessary risks.—London Globe.

Happiness.

"There is an instinct in the heart of man which makes him fear a cloudless happiness. It seems to him that he owes to misfortune a tithe of his life, and that which he does not pay bears interest, is amassed and largely swells a debt which sooner or later he must acquit."

Her Long Dream.

Estelle—Ah! His proposal was just like a dream!

Agnes—Well, you ought to know, dear. You've been dreaming of that proposal for years.

About Blackheads.

Blackheads are among the most trying blemishes. They are ugly and give the appearance of lack of cleanliness. Sometimes they do indicate that not sufficient care has been taken in washing the skin and removing the impurities, but there are times when they are due to some internal disorder, and then a physician should be consulted. A lotion which can beapplied externally and which is said to be very beneficial is made as follows: Pure brandy, three ounces; cologne, one ounce; liquid potassa, one-half ounce Apply at night after washing the face thoroughly with soap and water.

TOURISTS IN EUROPE.

Wealthy Germans Now Crowding Out the English and Americans.

That the Germans have been getting rich more or less quickly is obvious from the throngs of money spending tourists of that nationality seen everywhere in Europe. Fifteen years ago the majority of tourists were English and American. Now they are German.

Monte Carlo and the resorts on the Riviera are thronged with money spending Germans in the winter. Monte Carlo seems especially to appeal to wealthy Germans, and the majority of players at the casino tables in the season not infrequently are German. Like the American, the German spends his money easily, although perhaps he has not yet acquired that distinctly American trait of lavishly overtipping servants.

The German is a better dressed tourist today than he was fifteen years ago. Then he affected Tyrolean clothes and hats Now he is got up to look like a sporting Englishman, wearing knickerbockers and caps of English cut. His spectacles and Baedeker prevent him from being mistaken for an Englishman.

The Germans do not seem to have discovered the fact that they have many beautiful mountain and seashore resorts of their own. The tourists you meet in the Harz mountains are more often than not English and Americans, with an occasional Frenchman and his family.

Like all other rich people, the Germans have succumbed to the automobile craze,—and German automobiles are as abundant on the highroads of Europe as American and English machines It is estimated that the number of Germans who go abroad for their summer and winter vacations increases each year by 75 per cent. German economists, however, have not yet begun to complain that Germans spend too much money in foreign climes That may come in time.—New York Sun.

To Withstand Earthquakes.

A new method of constructing the foundations of buildings in order to prevent as much as possible earthquake shocks from being communicated to the buildings has been devised and patented by Dr. J. A. Calantarients of Scarborough. In this system the foundation, which is built in the usual manner, is faced with hard material, such as granite or iron, and upon this facing layers of talc, mica or other smooth substances are deposited, each layer being dusted with powdered talc, mica asbestos, soapstone or sand, or mats of asbestos, etc., may be used without the plates of talc Slabs of granite or iron placed on this prepared zone form the base of the superstructure. The object of the arrangement is in the case of an earth quake to allow the building to slide laterally. The service pipes are flexible at the point where they leave the ground.—London Mail.

Pierpont Morgan Braves Superstition

No. 13 has been avoided in a large proportion of the London streets, and in this particular city men appear to be quite as superstitious as other folk There is no No. 13 in Holborn, Threadneedle street, London street or Token house yard Other leading thoroughfares from which this number is lacking include the Strand, the Haymarket, St. James' street, Park lane and Westbourne grove On the other hand we find Mr. Pierpont Morgan bravely superstition by housing his priceless art treasures at 13 Prince's gate And an intrepid manufacturer has for years carried on a prosperous business at 13 Friday street. It would be hard to devise a more bloodcurdling address than this.—London Chronicle

An Advertising Show.

An "advertising pantomime" is in course of preparation in Berlin. This novel form of publicity is being adopted by one of the large retail establishments of the capital, which has commissioned a distinguished composer to write the music of the production The plot deals with two poor children found starving by a fairy on Christmas eve. She proceeds to take them in a series of scenes, through the various departments of the great shop giving them presents. Comic characters, clowns and a ballet lend humorous relief. The pantomime will probably be produced at one of the Berlin theaters, customers at the shop receiving free tickets.

A Drawing From Memory.

Jane Erin Emmet, who married Yohn Glehn, the London painter, can do a speaking crayon drawing of anybody in less time than it takes to tell it. Once in London she met a young man in the street and never saw him again. Some years afterward his mother came to her in grief and despair. The young man had died suddenly, and there was no portrait, photograph or other likeness of him to console the family. Jane Emmet did a crayon of him from the memory of that chance meeting in the street, and it is prized by his family beyond all its other possessions.—New York Press

Parisian Sealing Wax Code.

Paris stationers are selling boxes of colored sealing wax with instructions in the etiquette of the use of the different shades. Black is for mourning, white for marriage invitations or announcements, violet for condolence, chocolate for dinner invitations. Orange, although that might be an suitable for dinner notes, is for business. Young girls are to use light pink, and love letters are to be sealed with ruby. They say that there are Parisians who use the colors according to this code!

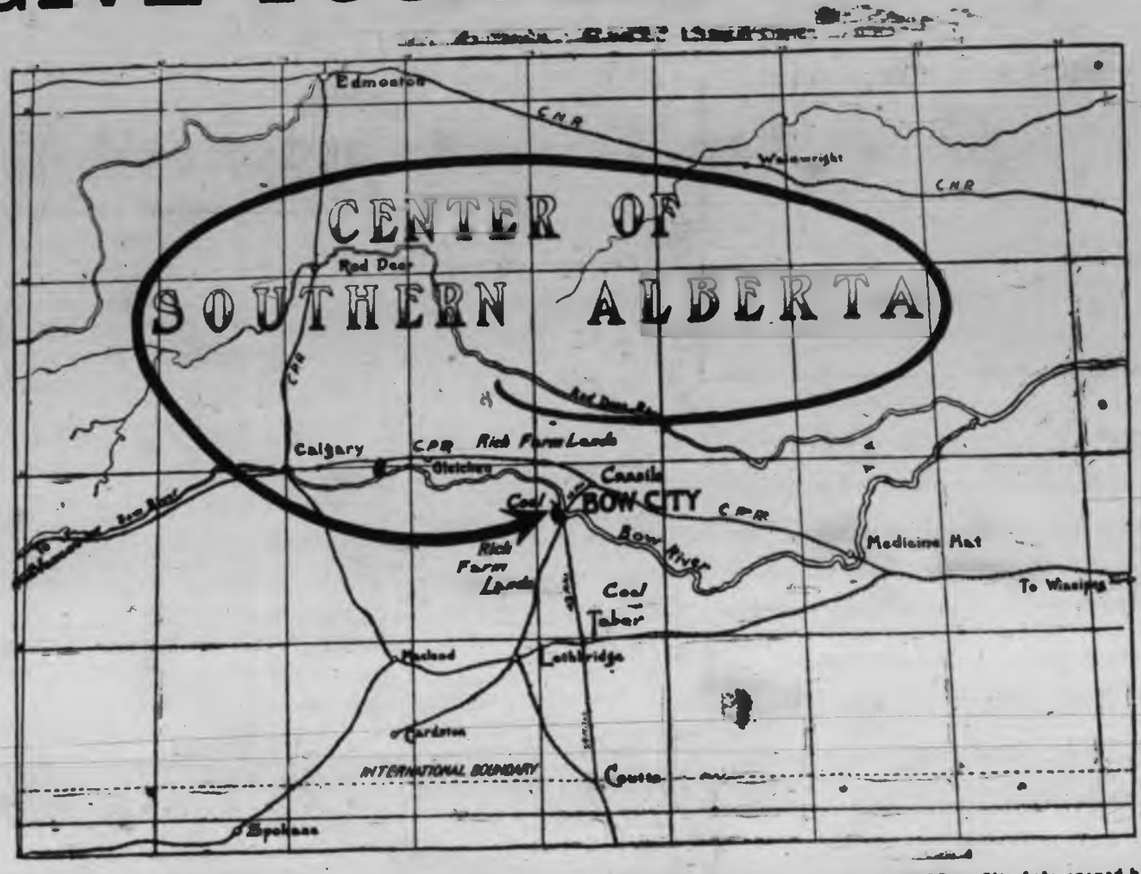
Homing Pigeons.

The average speed of a homing pigeon in calm weather is 1,320 yards a minute. With a strong wind in the direction of flight some pigeons have made 1,900 yards, or considerably more than a mile a minute.

Must Get Permission.

One of the bylaws of a cottage hospital in Wales reads thus: "No patient shall curse or swear or use any indecent or abusive language, nor shall play at cards or dice, nor smoke within the infirmary without the authority of the medical officer and at certain hours."

"GIVE YOUR SON A DEED"



If, by way of illustration, you will review the history of the men in your town who have made money out of real estate, you will find that in each and every instance their profits were made from real estate acquired at ground floor prices.

More money can be made by those who acquire a realty interest in a town at its inception per dollar invested than from investments made after a period of years.

Do you know that you can purchase with $5 cash a full sized residential lot in Bow City, Alberta the logical location for a great city, a city which is destined to be known, the world over, as a market place annually for hundreds of thousands of bushels of grain, grown on the vast irrigated fields surrounding Bow City, a shipping point for coal from the great Bow Centre Collieries, and a purchasing depot for hundreds of prosperous farmers resident throughout Southern Alberta.

To-day is your opportunity to acquire an interest in Bow City at the ground floor price.

It will be too late six months hence, to apply for a lot in Bow City at the present prices and on such easy terms as are offered you in this advertisement.

Why not follow Russell Sage's advice given in a letter published some years ago to the fathers in the Western States:—

"Buy your son a lot in a town being the "centre of a great agricultural country—when "he comes of age that lot will be worth consid- "erable money and will provide a handsome "stake for him in life; it is at least most sub- "stantial life insurance—sure and certain."

Buy your son a $50 lot in Bow City, the coming metropolis of the western prairies. In a very short time he can re-sell the same at a big increase, which money he will find advantageous in business pursuits or in a college course.

Bow City, the centre of the great granary of Southern Albert has a future concerning which no sane business man or banker has any doubt.

When you are assured of the success of the city, when you have proven to you beyond the shadow of a doubt that Bow City will, in the very near future, be one of the most active, one of the most progressive towns on the Western prairies, you should not hesitate to acquire at least one $50 residential lot, when same is on sale on such easy terms as 10 per cent cash and the balance 10 per cent per month until paid -a deed at any time.

Bow City is in the heart of a famous irrigated farming belt whose farmers are assured of a crop every year. They are prosperous and their prosperity will naturally enhance the value of Bow City real estate.

The great coal mines of Bow City will furnish work for 1,000 to 1,500 miners daily, these miners will constitute a substantial basis for a successful city.

The present owners of Bow City have decided that no licenses shall be issued for the sale of spirituous liquors; they intend that this great mining and agricultural centre shall be free from any traffic in intoxicating drinks—it will be a clean city.

Bow City is the headquarters of a railway which taps a territory unparalleled for richness in crops and natural resources.

The Sale of Bow City lots opened but a few days a

If you are desirous of acquiring a $50 residential lot close in you should lose no time in making application by wire direct to the General Agents of the townsite, or to the nearest sub-agent.

Do not delay by sending your apulication by mail.

Wire at once your reservation for one or more lots On receipt of wire your name will be placed on the closest-in unsold lot or lots and same will be held in your name, allowing you sufficient time for your cash payment, mailed same day you wire, to travel from your home to the head office.

You may find it to your advantage, if you are desirous of securing a business opening, or a business lot, to write for copy of the plans, booklets and descriptive matter concerning Bow City, all of which may be had on application, free of charge.

GOVERNMENT BY COMMISSION.

St. Catharines Star The movement which is again on foot to abolish the Water Commission, futile though it may be should the matter go before the electorate, is another evidence of the changes of public opinion and of the growing favor of the government of all civic affairs by one commission. At a recent meeting of the Board of Trade of Guelph, a vigorous and active body in that city, a resolution was passed supporting the idea of putting all civic utilities and departments, not so governed now, under one commission which would be a responsible body and which would effect economy and order out of an imperfect elective system. When by council government a city is carried to a tax rate of twenty-five mills, when there are opportunities for favoritism, when men elected to office have little time to devote to affairs that should occupy their entire attention, there is a chance for things to drift into conditions wholly distasteful to the voting masses.

In cities where government by commission has been tried it has proven successful so far as can be learned. Some of the more progressive cities in the United States are trying it, trusting to evolve a better method of looking after a city's interests than through aldermen elected year by year. It is no reflection on those chosen by the citizens to represent them in the council that better results are not obtained. The public must not forget that mayors and aldermen give their services practically free, that they get more criticism than praise, and that while they are amenable to a voting people they can never use the free hand they would if not directly answerable to the vote of the unthinking man. Still the fact remains that economy is not usually effected under an elective method. Two sets of officials are paid salaries where one would often do, unnecessary staffs are kept and the same economies cannot be effected as would be done by a commission is regarded as dangerous and impossible tasks for councils. It is opportune for the electors of St. Catharines to think over the proposal of government by commission and to be prepared to vote intelligently on the question should it come before them for vote in a year or two.

TIRED OF BONUS HUNTERS.

Bobcaygeon Independent: Sick and tired with the unsuccessful experiences with big bonus hunting industries, the city of Guelph is taking a new course. A nursery for industries, a sort of incubator for the hatching of factories, is to be established where promising manufacturers can start in a small way, and be assisted in their efforts to stand and establish big factories that will ultimately mean the employment of many hands and the building up of the city industrially.

The idea originated with Chairman Sam Carter of the light and heat commission, who stated to the Board of Trade that the commission were contemplating having an old burned out furniture factory, that belongs to the commission, roofed over and put into first class condition. They will rent flats or manufacturing apartments, to promising, though small manufacturing concerns, giving them room and power at actual cost. They will only make sure that the people they help are really ambitious to establish larger industries when they can. The commission might spend $6000 fitting up the building and putting in motors for the tenants he said.

The main scheme for which the special meeting of the board was called, however, was the establishment of a co-operative furniture factory in a vacant building which the city has had on its hands as the result of a failure of the Morlock Co. The scheme met with approval. The co-operative company is to be organized and the necessary $10,000 capital raised by stock subscriptions right away. The city is giving the building and machinery in it almost free of rent, or at least at a nominal figure.

EXPENDITURE WILL RISE FROM 1912, WHEN MR. ASQUITH FIGURED THEY WOULD REACH THEIR MAXIMUM.

Germany to Build Six of the Largest and Most Powerful Battleships About Keeping Within Existing Naval Law.

Berlin, Dec. 7.—The Lokal Anzeiger publishes an article emanating from "naval quarters" which thoroughly discusses the purposes of Mr. Asquith's theory that German naval construction will reach "the crest of the wave" in 1912. That year, on the contrary, is to witness the beginning of a period of still greater expenditure.

The Tageblatt communication asserts that the speech delivered by Grand Admiral von Koester, president of the Navy League, denotes definitely that the German admiralty intends asking the Reichstag in 1911 to sanction the laying down of six of the most powerful cruiser battleships between 1912 and 1917. The naval estimates, in other words, instead of decreasing gradually after 1912, as has been hitherto proclaimed, will actually rise annually by $11,250,000, the approximate cost of a vessel of the Von der Tann type.

It will be possible nevertheless, for the German admiralty to maintain the fiction, both for domestic and foreign consumption, that the six new cruiser battleships can be built strictly within the limitations of the existing naval law. The Tageblatt explains how this will be accomplished. He says:

Sect on B of the naval law, which regulates the "substitute vessels" to be built until 1917, will be given a new form after 1912. According to Section B, one substitute cruiser battleship shall be laid down annually during the six years from 1912 to 1917, these being six vessels intended to take the place of five cruisers of the Hertha class and of the Kaiserin Augusta. Admiral von Koester now demands an additional cruiser battleship annually after 1912, so that the six substitutes will be laid down not in six but in three years.

Section B further provides for the building of one substitute battleship annually between 1912 and 1917. After 1912, therefore, three of the largest type vessels will be taken in hand instead of two, as heretofore contemplated.

It become plain from the above statement that the German naval estimates, which were to reach their maximum in 1912 with the enormous expenditure of $115,125,000 (an increase of $7,000,000 over 1910), will actually be during the years 1912 1913 and 1914 [illegible] $127,925,000.

The proposed Supplementary program or the substitute cruiser battleships will make the hope of a reduction of naval expenditure wholly illusory even if we leave entirely out consideration the heavily increased cost of maintaining the reserve battleships which will burden the naval estimates of succeeding years.

RICH COLLEGE GIRL WEDS CHAUFFER

DAUGHTER OF VIRGINIAN FAMILY LEFT SEMINARY TO GET MARRIED.

She Kept Her Secret Well—Girl Fell in Love With the Handsome Driver of Her Mother's Automobile—Back to School Again.

Washington, Dec. 3.—Eloping from Washington while attending school at the Mt. Vernon seminary, Miss Blanche Malone, daughter of one of the richest families in West Virginia, married Al. Sanders, her mother's chauffeur, a month ago, and until today the news of the wedding was kept secret.

Romantic as any medieval adventure is the story of how the rich girl and the poor man met, fell in love, at first sight, and finally were quietly married on October 29th.

Miss Malone is rich in her own right. Sanders is a Baltimorean. He learned how to run an automobile while in his native city, and was employed by Mrs. Lydia Malone, the girl's mother.

BECAME INFATUATED.

Sanders went with the family to Fairmount, W. Va., while Miss Malone was attending the Mt. Vernon seminary. It was during the summer holidays that the girl, returning to her mother's home, met the handsome chauffeur, and became infatuated with him. When Miss Malone returned to Mt Vernon seminary he resigned his position with Mrs. Malone and came to Washington. Sept. 6 to October 28th, Miss Malone and Sanders took a train to Baltimore. The wedding was performed at a church where Mr. Sanders had made prior arrangements, and after a few calls upon mutual friends, they left the city and started north on their honeymoon. Afterwards the bride returned to the seminary.

Girls at the seminary say that Miss Malone kept her secret well, and none of them knew that she and Sanders were married.

JUDGE RULES STATEMENTS MADE BY HER AFTER GLOVER'S DEATH ARE INADMISSABLE.

Second Defeace Victory—Pin Found in the Laundry After the Murder Will Play Important Part in the Trial.

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 5.—Hattie LeBlanc, the 17 year old French girl on trial for the murder of Clarence F. Glover, won a big victory today when Judge Bond ruled at the opening of court that the statements she made at the police examination following the death of Glover should not be admitted at this present time.

This decision followed a secret conference between Judge Weir of the Superior court and Judge Bond. In his decision Judge Bond said:—"With reference to this examination of Hattie, I don't think any of it ought to be admitted now. I don't mean to say there cannot come a time when it can come in in some Way, but that time is not now."

PART OF A PIN.

A pin which was found in the laundry in Waltham where Clarence F. Glover was shot is likely to play almost as important a part in the trial of Hattie LeBlanc as did a certain other pin in the Tucker trial a few days ago.

Mr. Johnson, counsel for Hattie LeBlanc, in his questioning endeavored to discover what George A. Freeman, one of the witnesses, had found in the laundry the morning after the shooting of Glover when with the police and Seymour Glover searched the place.

COSTLY GIFTS FROM JAPAN TO ENGLAND

London, Nov. 5.—A number of the most interesting national exhibits estimated to be worth $250,000 at the Japan-British Exhibition at Shepherd's Bush have been presented to corporations and individuals in the country by the Imperial Japanese government.

The beautiful of the shrine of the second Tokugawa Shogun has been presented to the King by the city of Tokio and will find a resting place at Buckingham Palace.

The historic Kyoto gate, for which large sums have been offered, will be re-erected in Kew Gardens, close to the pagoda, with a number of cedars of Lebanon.

About 500 of the strange three-tailed comet fish from Japan have been transferred to the lake at Kew.

Another exhibit which has been formally accepted by the admiralty this week is the collection of six models of Japanese battleships. These models, which are eight feet in length, were built in the Japanese naval yards, and $50,000 has been refused for them. They are to be placed in the museum of the Royal Hospital, at Greenwich.

The model of Tokio city has been given to the city corporation and will be exhibited at the Guildhall, and two perfect little miniature gardens have been presented to the London County Council.

The Japanese summer house, erected by the forestry department of the Japanese government, has been given as a memento of the exhibition to Prince Arthur of Connaught and will be erected in the grounds at Bagshot.

Queen Alexandra has taken a great interest in the little forest of dwarf trees, and a number of them will be offered to her.

The model of the Japanese postoffice is to go to the general postoffice museum, and the entire fishery exhibit has been presented to the official fishery museum at Hull.

A Great Railway System.

Hardly a town, village or city in Ontario that does not receive daily benefit from the operations of the Grand Trunk Railway System, and considering the net work of Branch line connections, it is wonderful with what regularity trains are run. Not only is a good service provided between points in Ontario, but this line also reaches nearly all the important cities of Michigan, viz: Flint, Saginaw, Bay City, Lansing, Battle Creek, Jackson, Grand Rapids and Muskegon, South Bend, Ind., and the second city in America, viz: Chicago Ill., the gateway to the Northwest, West and South, bringing Ontario in close connection. On the East, the Grand Trunk connects Ontario with Montreal, Quebec, the Maritime Provinces and Boston, Mass.

With a double track line all the way from Chicago to Montreal, and also to Niagara Falls, connecting with Lehigh Valley from New York, the Grand Trunk reaches out in all directions for you patronage, and well deserves it, for its vestibule coaches, parlor and dining cars and modern Pullmans, give the service desired.

Lady Tullibardine on Results of Ignorance—A Danger to Children

Lady Tullibardine, in a speech at the Women's Congress, England, dwelt on the importance of training girls to qualify them for the roles of wife and mother. It was recognized, she said, that marriage was the chief sphere of work for the great majority of the women of the country, but it was amazing how few women took any trouble to qualify themselves for entering upon that sphere of work. Women were extremely adaptive and were so quick at picking up things that they were apt to go through life picking up things as they went along without having any definite or comprehensive training for any of the duties they were called upon to fulfil. In the case of the better-to-do women their ignorance of domestic economy was counterbalanced in the great majority of cases by the employment of persons skilled in the performance of domestic duties, so that ignorance of the practical discharge of those duties robbed the supervision of them of much of its interest. Those well to do people might feel that their ignorance did not necessarily entail any very serious danger to the children whose lives were placed in their care, but in the case of women who had to do all their own housework it was a very different matter. Ignorance in their case never deprived them of interest in their somewhat humdrum round of duties, but it no doubt made serious inroads on domestic happiness and comfort, and it had a very serious influence on the health of the children.

SCULLER AT 86

Death of Dr. Furnivall, a Scholar and Athlete

Dr. Frederick James Furnivall who, we regret to announce, died on Saturday at his residence at Primrose Hill, was celebrated alike as scholar, working philanthropist, and athlete. Eminent as a man of letters and as a sociologist, he was perhaps more popularly known as the Grand Old Man of Thames scullers. From boyhood he loved the river, and right up to his eighty-sixth birthday, which he celebrated by taking part in a sculling match on the Thames, he never missed his one day a week sculling. He was the founder of the Furnivall Sculling Club, of which both young men and girls were members, and it was always an interesting sight to see him taking out a crew of the club girls. He acted as coxswain, and as he invariably went bareheaded, with his white hair flying in the breeze, he might have been Father Time himself coaching the daughters of men in the way of health and vigor.

SOME ADVICE BY ADDISON

If we look down on other people it is a proof that we are not looking up enough.

Don't expect too much of mankind. Better to expect too little than to be disappointed.

If the threads of love and kindness are knitted into daily life, the pattern is worth copying.

That is true religion which enables even the poor to become givers, even the rich to become receivers.

When anyone contradicts you, use the circumstance to learn more about the subject, instead of resenting it.

Bad luck is often but another name for bad management and lack of alertness in making the most of opportunities.

It is not well to change your opinion too often, but he who never changes his opinion is likely to be thought bigoted.

If you desire success, make perseverance your wise counsellor, caution your elder brother, and hope your guardian genius.

JACK AND THE CLOCK

"Why is it that I am like the clock"
Said laughing Jack to me
"Because I have two hands and a face,
As anyone can see."

The difference 'twixt the clock and Jack
Is quite too plainly seen;
I wish they were alike in this
Its face and hands are clean.

THOSE BIG HATS

The "Man in the Seat Behind" is up in arms in the religious papers against the enormous hats worn in church by ladies. "For many Sundays past" he says, "I can truthfully declare that, except at quite early services, I have seen neither priest nor altar, chancel nor choir, pulpit nor preacher. My outlook is entirely bounded by rows of enormous hats."

MONEY IN RAISING HOGS

The amount of money paid out by one Chatham buyer to farmers for live hogs in the past year alone amounts to over $928,000. It is further stated that one buyer alone spent over $80,000 in one month recently buying hogs.

HOT TIME IN TILBURY

An educated monkey has been giving folk a hot time at Tilbury. The animal had been taught to strike matches, and it is alleged to have shown its aptness for learning by causing a fire which destroyed a cinematograph theatre.

A PESSIMIST AND POLITICS

A pessimist thinks there is even more dishonesty in politics now than there used to be. "Nowadays," he says, "I figure that we don't get more than 70 per cent. of the votes we pay for."

ONE ON THE DENTIST

A Canadian dentist went into the country the other day to extract a woman's teeth and to give it up because her children threw the poker at him and tore off his coat tails in preventing what they thought was a violent assault upon their mother.

The town of Wainwright on the Grand Trunk Pacific is forging ahead. The new $18,000 brick school-house will be occupied on December 1st, and it is believed that at the present rate of growth of the town, the school will have to be enlarged within a year.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Points For Mothers

"A baby's grandmother is often its worst enemy."

So a splendid trained nurse who makes her specialty the bringing back to health of sick babies told me the other day, says Ruth Cameron.

It was a pretty harsh indictment of that class of personage whose very name evokes a thought of tenderness, so naturally I demanded an explanation.

She gave it.

"Grandmothers are the worst enemies of our modern methods—not all of them, of course, but some. Because their babies lived and grew up in spite of what mistakes they made they try to have their daughters make the same mistakes.

"There is no doubt about it that modern methods have reduced infant mortality immensely, and, though of course it's true that plenty of babies grew up into healthy children with the old, careless methods, a baby brought up in the modern way has twice the chance to grow up that they did.

"But the grandmothers don't see it that way. They say all their babies grew up, or if one or two died they would have died anyway, no matter what precautions were taken, and they tell their daughters that all this sterilizing and boiling and the rest of the things that we are trying to teach them is all nonsense.

"Most of them talk behind our backs, but once in awhile one of them speaks right out to me, so I know about what they say.

"Here are a few samples:

"'This feeding a baby every three hours to the minute is all tommyrot. Why, when Jennie was a baby I fed her whenever she cried, and she doesn't look very peaked now, does she?'

"'This boiling of nipples and bottles is perfect nonsense. I never boiled a thing, and I brought up five children and lost only one by cholera infantum, and you needn't tell me any child gets cholera infantum from not having its nipples boiled.'

"'Waking a child up to feed him is the silliest thing I ever heard of. He has been undernourished and needs the nourishment? Nonsense. I had eight children, and I always let them sleep as long as they would.'

"That's the sort of thing they are continually saying, and as some of them have more influence than we do the result is that many of our most important instructions are neutralised."

Try Mrs. Wiggs' Way.

It was "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," says an exchange, who used compliments instead of spankings in bringing up her children, and there is an up to date mother who has two very well behaved children who says that the keynote of her success with them is that she says "do" instead of "don't" when her youngsters are in need of correction or direction. The consistent following of this simple principle requires thought and quick wit. The first impulse when there is mischief or disorder being made or some other reprehensible business going on is to cry "don't," but "do," as illustrated by drawing attention to the opposite of a child's actions awakens interest and is far more effective in correction. "I am sure the idea of saying 'do' instead of 'don't' is the right one," says this mother. "Of course it is not always possible to observe this rule, but whenever one can I believe in the substitution of the positive for the negative. In other words the child's mind is given something definite to work upon. No child likes to be nagged, and constantly saying 'don't' amounts to nagging."

When Selfishness is Justice.

Selfishness to a certain point is not only allowable, but commendable. The mother who, meaning to be unselfish, leaves her husband and children to clear up her roughshod is not only preparing trouble for herself, but, what is worse trouble for those whom she is spoiling day by day. She would be doing her duty more truly by her family if she remembered that she, as well as they, had certain rights which must be respected and preferences which must be honored.

A family is a little kingdom in which the mother and father are sovereigns who must rule wisely, rendering justice to all, themselves among the number, if the kingdom is to remain happy and prosperous. Mother, a queen must fit herself to stand comparison with other queens, so that her growing sons and daughters may think proudly and fondly that "no other child's or girl's—mother is fit to hold a candle to ours."

Our duty to ourselves begins when we first realize that the world contains an interesting person called "I" and continues as long as that person remains in this troublesome world.

The executive of the Ladies' Aid Society of the George Street Methodist Church, entertained the members of the Society at the conclusion of their regular meeting yesterday to a tea, which was very much enjoyed by those present.

Ambulance Class Examinations.

The examination of the Ambulance Class of the Y.W.C.A. will take place on Friday evening, December 9th, at 8 p.m. There are 14 candidates and the examination will be conducted by Dr. A. W. McPherson.

Quebec Heaters For Sale.

On account of the installing of the heating system in The Times' building, the four Quebec heaters, so well known, are for sale. These stoves are as good as new, and will be sold at less than half price. Also about 100 lengths of pipe, also practically as good as new, at four cents per length.

Benefit Concert.

A benefit concert is being arranged for Mr. Mark Spencely, who recently had his leg amputated, but who is recovering nicely. He has shown remarkable vitality for a man of his age. He has been a resident of Peterborough for sixty-seven years, and a member of the Salvation Army for about a quarter of a century.

Shipments to the Old Country.

Those intending to send parcels or letters to the old country to be delivered by Christmas will have to look sharp, as parcels going by express should be collected to-day. Letters must be mailed not later than the 12th to catch the last steamer from St. John's. Shipments so far are much lighter than in former years.

Junior Hockey.

All junior hockey players who intend to play this winter are invited to attend the hockey room at the Brock street rink on Friday evening next, at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of conferring with the management as to plans for the season. Every boy who wishes to play the game this winter should attend this meeting.

Plenty of Undeveloped Power.

Lindsay Post: In an article which appeared in the Post Saturday evening referring to the power proposition to be submitted to the Council to-night, the statement was made that the Light, Heat & Power Co. have marketed practically all its power. Mr. W. E. Reesor, the manager, informs us that such is not the case. The company has still plenty of undeveloped power which will be marketed at Lindsay at any time when required. We gladly make this correction.

Played With Matches.

Children playing with matches at the residence of Mr. W. J. Koster, of 574 Charlotte street, yesterday, set fire to lace curtains and caused quite a scare in the house. The lace curtains were destroyed and the window sashes and casings charred. The fire brigade as usual responded promptly to the telephone call. The fire was soon extinguished. The damage will not exceed $25.00.

Look to Your Water Pipes.

It behoves householders and those in charge of vacant houses to look well to the water pipes at this season. In vacant houses the water should be turned off and the house pipes emptied. Even when the house is occupied, water pipes, likely to be exposed to the frost should be well wrapped with straw, sacks, or anything that will keep them from freezing.

There is little danger from a cold or from an attack of the grippe except when followed by pneumonia, and this never happens when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is used. This remedy has won its great reputation and extensive sale by the remarkable cures of colds and grip, and can be relied upon with implicit confidence. For sale by all dealers.

Skating on the Canal.

About thirty young people took advantage of the fine condition of the ice on the canal on Monday evening, and thoroughly enjoyed themselves. This is the first out-of-door skating party of the season. Before returning home the party partook of refreshments at a nearby residence. Unfortunately one of the young ladies had a rather severe fall and was badly shaken up, but will soon recover from the accident. She was taken to her home.

ASSAULTED BY DRUNKEN MAN.

Ruffian Struck Her in the Face and Tore Her Clothes.

Shortly after eight o'clock on Monday evening a young girl who resides in the west end of the city was assaulted on Stewart street by a drunken ruffian, and badly abused.

It appears the girl in question with a companion, were accosted on Edinburgh street by two men, one of whom swore at her and knocked off her hat, also tearing her coat.

She ran down Aylmer street with the man pursuing. After being caught both returned up the hill, and finally arrived at Bethune street, the man using force.

Here the girl became greatly alarmed, and her cries of help and murder brought a young man from his home, and he demanded that the man release the girl. He refused at first, but later she was taken into a nearby house, and a cab telephoned for. For about an hour the man remained outside the house, walking up and down the sidewalk. When a cab from Gibbs' livery, and driven by Mr. Ernie Lawrence arrived, and left again with the girl, her assaulter followed for some distance and then gave up the chase.

An eye witness of the affair states that the fellow struck the girl on the face, and that her coat and hat were damaged. He is known and action may be taken against him.

THEY GROW.

Good Humor and Cheerfulness From Right Food and Drink.

Anything that interferes with good health is apt to keep cheerfulness and good humor in the background. A Washington lady found that letting coffee alone made things bright for her. She writes:

"Four years ago I was practically given up by my doctor and was not expected to live long. My nervous system was in a bad condition.

"But I was young and did not want to die, so I began to look about for the cause of my chronic trouble. I used to have nervous spells which would exhaust me and after each spell it would take me days before I could sit up in a chair.

"I became convinced my trouble was caused by coffee. I decided to stop it and bought some Postum.

"The first cup, I made according to directions, had a soothing effect on my nerves, and I liked the taste. For a time I nearly lived on Postum and ate little food besides. I am today a healthy woman.

"My family and relatives wonder if I am the same person I was four years ago, when I could do no work on account of nervousness. Now I am doing my own housework, take care of two babies—one twenty the other two months old. I am so busy that I hardly get time to write a letter, yet I do it with the cheerfulness and good humor that comes from enjoying good health.

"I tell my friends it is to Postum I owe my life today."

POSED AS RICH LADY

Remarkable Story of a Phantom Fortune—A Domestic Who Imitated Violet Charlesworth

During her mistress's absence on holiday a Hendsworth servant girl was suddenly seized with an invincible desire to play the part of a lady, to live in great style, and to dispense promises of benefactions wholesale. In some respects her escapes recalls the adventures of Violet Charlesworth, but the only thing that can be brought to her charge is that she obtained food and lodgings in a questionable manner. The heroine of these remarkable adventures was employed at a house in Handsworth, and it is alleged that she obtained her situation by a bogus story that her former employer had been sent up prison, and that his wife had gone to Australia.

Bogus Telegrams

When her employers went for their holidays she was left, with two great Danes, in sole charge of the house. It was through these animals that she became acquainted with the family she is said to have victimized. She was out one evening with one of the dogs in Handsworth Park when the big animal brushed up against a youth. He exclaimed, "Oh what a lovely dog," and the girl replied, "Yes, and I have another like him at home," she volunteered the information that her father was very ill and was away at the seaside. The two met the following evening, when the girl startled him by saying that she had received a telegram to say that her father was dead. Then came the more surprising sequel that when her mother read the telegram she was so affected that she fell back, and shortly afterwards expired. The girl said she would like to meet the boy's father, and he took her to his home in Holyhead road, Handsworth. The father sympathised with her in her bereavement, belling her story, and she then expressed the desire to take the boy and her sister, aged fourteen, to her house. The invitation was accepted, and she took the youth and girl and gave them tea. There was no one else at the house, but before the meal was begun the girl went to the door, and, speaking to an imaginary person, said, "Oh, Annie, you can go on that errand now." After tea she showed her guests over the house. She told the girl that in the drawing-room, and that each should have a bicycle from the shed. She opened several jewel boxes and offered the girl a gold watch, but the child refused the gift. She added that she would look after them in the future as she was "so taken" with them. The girl met the two children many times, and talked about her fortune, her good prospects, the fine clothes she had, and her servants. When the mistress returned from her holidays the girl ran away in her best clothes. The same afternoon she appeared at the house of her friends with another story. Since she had last been there, she said, her fiance, who was in the medical profession, had died, and to her fortune of $150,000 was now added all that the doctor had left her, including his house, coach and horses, and other effects. The children's father offered her the hospitality of his home. She made herself at home, and declared her intention of making the daughter her maid, and taking her to the Continent, where she would have her voice trained. She also said that she would give the boy a first-class education, and went so far as to engage a French governess from Wednesbromwich to give him lessons. With an eye to the value of ready money, the head of the family one day asked the rich lady to advance him £5. The money was not forthcoming, although she said it was nothing to her; it was only like a farthing. The lady then wrote to a gentleman at Walsall:

"Please send me $35; have just run out of money, and I want it to-morrow. I am sorry I have not been to see you, but I have been unwell.—Yours faithfully, Emily Van Wart."

As the money did not come, she went to Walsall, and came back with a story that the gentleman had absconded, but had been arrested at Birmingham. She afterwards invited her friends to the house at Handsworth to dinner, and was proceeding in that direction for her intended guests got a little pleasure on the way, and in the end "Miss Van Wart" bolted as hard as she could. Chase was given, but she has not since been seen.

BETTER GET MARRIED

Best Course for a Young Woman, All Circumstances Being Favorable

Judge Bacon had one or two amusing exchanges with applicants at the Bloomsbury County Court, who came for grants out of compensation awards under the Workmen's Compensation Act. A widow remarked that if the judge allowed her anything it was all wanted for poor rate. The woman added that she had a daughter earning 5s. per week, and that was all required to keep the girl in boot leather.

Judge Bacon: I don't spend as much as that on boots. (Laughter.) I cannot understand some of you people. One woman who was in the box just now had on a gaily decorated hat, and a boy who accompanied her was attired in velveteen.

The Applicant: I have my ward robe on my back.

Judge Bacon: All is vanity! (Laughter.)

In another case where a widow expressed considerable doubt as to what course to adopt with regard to her daughter, the learned judge remarked that it appeared to be a growing opinion once more that the best thing for a young woman to do, all circumstances being favorable was to get married.

"THE SWEETEST OF ALL THE CHARITIES."

Will You Help It In Its Hour of Need.... ?

THE HOSPITAL FOR SICK CHILDREN
COLLEGE STREET, TORONTO

READY FOR MOTHER.

This Institution did more work in 1910 than ever before. Total In-Patients 1,224. Of these, 783 were from the city and 441 from the country.

Since its organization, the Hospital has treated in its cots and beds 16,837 children; 12,370 of these were unable to pay and were treated free.

Before After.

THE HOSPITAL IS A PROVINCIAL CHARITY.

The sick child from the most remote corner of Ontario has the same claim as the child living within sight of the great Home of Mercy in College Street, Toronto. Our cause is the children's cause. Could there be one that has a stronger claim on the people of this Province?

Before After.

Perfect results in Hardly cases. 16 infants were relieved of this terrible deformity last year.

If the Hospital is to continue its great work, it must appeal to your pocketbook as well as to your heart. Let your Dollars be messages of mercy to the suffering little children of Ontario.

Please send your contributions to J. Ross Robertson, Chairman, or to Douglas Davidson, Secretary-Treasurer, The Hospital for Sick Children, College St., Toronto.

"THE KLONDYKE'S MOTHER LODE"

The storehouse from which the famous placer creeks, Bonanza and Eldorado, receive their fabulous wealth, have been uncovered on the claims of The Victoria Gulch Mines, situated on the ridge at the head of Victoria and Gay gulches. The company's holdings consist of four quartz claims and about 200 acres 14 miles from Dawson, on a good wagon road and two miles from the Klondyke Mines R.R. There are two true quartz veins, between perfect walls 6 and 10 feet wide on the property, the free milling ore from which is literally encrusted with the yellow metal. Read what some of the world's greatest authorities say:

R. G. McConnell, B.A., of the Geological Survey, says in his report on the Klondyke Goldfields.

"A sample in which no free gold could be detected with the naked eye, or an ordinary magnifying glass, was assayed in the laboratory of the survey and gave 2.635 oz. of gold and 3.267 oz. of silver to the ton."

Pro. Henry A. Meire, D. Sc. F.R.S., Waynflete, Professor of Mineralogy in the University of Oxford, in collaboration with Professor A. P. Coleman in a report to the Minister of the Interior, says: "At the head of Victoria Gulch which runs into Bonanza, a creek opposite Gay Gulch, a tributary of Eldorado, and at a height of about 2,300 feet above Dawson, has been opened, what appears to be a true quartz vein, showing nuggety gold in abundance. The gold is distinctly crystalline in character, and the crystals are of a peculiar form having a triangular outline due to the fact that they are octahedra, and in particular a remarkable variety known as "spinel twins." Now it is significant that the gold found in Victoria gulch is also crystalline and has the same characteristic outline, here then we have fairly convincing evidence that the gold found in a stream gravel is identical with that found in situ in a quartz at the head of the valley and in this instance there can be little doubt as to the origin of the gold."

Dr. Eugene Haanel, Director of Mines, a noted authority on mineralogy in a report to the department in 1902, says: "Masses of quartz were seen protruding from the surface all about the locality, and it needed only to wet the surface of the quartz with water to reveal the bright specks of gold adhering to their surface.

"Gay gulch and Victoria gulch, the former a tributary of Eldorado creek, the latter of Bonanza creeks, limit Victoria Hill toward the sources of Bonanza and Eldorado creeks. Above Victoria and Gay gulches, Bonanza and Eldorado creeks respectively are unproductive, below these gulches the creeks are rich. It seems a reasonable conclusion that the gold in these creeks, at least as far as they flank the side of Victoria Hill, was derived from Victoria Hill."

Mr. R. W. Brock, Director Geological Survey, says: "The district is not glaciated. Gold in the recent gravel freshly derived from its original source is similar to gold in the corresponding White Channel gravel. Many of the gold grains and most of the nuggets, enclose quartz. Quartz pebbles are found containing gold, some at least very rich in gold. The quartz of the boulders is similar to the quartz of the veins, and gold of the veins to gold of the gravels. From the foregoing and other facts, it is obvious that the gold is absolutely local in origin, derived from the basins of the pay gulches and creeks."

Fred. T. Congdon, Member for the Yukon, stated on the floor of the House of Commons last January that some of the richest gold quartz in the world was being mined close to Dawson.

Just stop and think of the immense possibilities of rich returns from the development of the claims of The Victoria Gulch mines, when two miles of the Mother Lode runs through the property from which the $55,000,000 in placer gold has been already taken from Eldorado and Bonanza creeks, the one-third the Klondyke's entire output. 100,000 shares of treasury stock of the par value of $1 is now offered for public subscription at 25 cents per share fully paid and non-assessable.

No further issue of treasury stock will have to be made at this price.

VOL XXXIII NO. 279 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO THURSDAY DECEMBER 8 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

Rejected His Proposals She Then Heard a Shot

HATTIE Le BLANC RAN AWAY FROM GLOVER WHEN HE ATTACKED HER.

Laundryman Choked Her After He Had Threatened to Kill Her, the Girl Broke Away and Later heard a Shot.

Cambridge Mass., Dec. 7.- Mayor Walker, of Waltham, described Hattie's appearance at the hearing at the police station, saying that she looked "just like a little bird that had flown in through a window and against a wall. If you know how such a bird looks you will understand what I mean."

According to this statement, Hattie was first warned of her rights and then was asked if she wanted to talk to which she replied in the affirmative. She said that she was 16 years old and that she had left her home in West Arichat, C.B., when she was fifteen. She had gone directly to Mrs. Glover's home in Waltham, where she had lived ever since.

WENT TO FOOTBALL MATCH.

Describing her movements on November 20th, 1909, the day of the murder of Glover, she said that she stayed about the house in the morning and in the afternoon accompanied the Glovers to a football game at the Harvard Stadium. They returned from the game about 5 p.m. and went for a short automobile ride, supper followed. It was about 7 15 when she left the house, Glover having departed at 6.40. She went to the laundry. That morning when Mrs. Glover was upstairs in the house, Glover had asked her to meet him in the laundry that night, and she was keeping the appointment.

REJECTED HIS PROPOSALS.

When she met Glover at the laundry, she said, he made improper proposals to her which she rejected. He then grabbed her and dragged her upstairs in the laundry where he attacked her. After the assault she began to cry and Glover grasped her by the throat and choked her to make her stop crying. Glover had a revolver in his hands at the time, but she never touched the revolver. He threatened to kill her if she told what had occurred.

SHE HEARD A SHOT.

Breaking away from Glover she ran down the stairs and as she reached the bottom of the stairs she heard a shot. She heard only one shot, she maintained, and thought that he had shot himself.

When she reached the foot of the stairs the door was locked and she went out through the window, going directly to the Glover home where she hid under the bed in the guest chamber. She remained there until she was discovered on the night of the following Tuesday. During the time she was under the bed she had nothing to eat or drink, she said, nor did she see Mrs. Glover, Mr. Elmers or Mr. and Mrs. Freeman. In the statements made to the police Hattie said that she had never seen the revolver before the night that Glover was killed. He had never before pointed a revolver at her, although often after they had conducted themselves improperly he had threatened to kill her if she ever told. She did not try to get the weapon awayfrom Glover. She did not see anyone else in the laundry. If anyone else had been there she probably would not have seen the person, she said, because of the darkness.

She was asked if she had to shoot Glover during the struggle, and she replied that she did not and could not have shot him she had no weapon.

As District Attorney Higgins was reading the statement, Melvin M. Johnson, chief counsel for the defence, was seized with a sudden attack of illness and collapsed. He was removed to the Attorneys' room and later was taken to Boston in an automobile for treatment by a specialist. The court allowed A. Farley Brewer, of Boston, and Nathaniel Tufts, of Waltham, associate counsel for the LeBlanc girl, to proceed with the case.

HEAVILY FINED FOR KILLING MUSKRATS

Paid $430 for Killing Them Out of Season.

Smith's Falls, Ont., Dec. 7.—A farmer living near Smith's Falls who was caught by Inspector Phillips killing muskrats out of season, was brought before police Magistrate Sparham yesterday and fined $430. He had 86 skins in his possession, and the lowest fine the magistrate could impose was $5 for each skin.

HUSBAND SAVED WIFE AND CHILD

Marvellous Escape From Suffocation in Hamilton Fire—The Loss Was Not Heavy.

Hamilton, Dec. 7.—Fire from unknown origin at an early hour this morning gutted a couple of rooms used as living apartments above 13 King William street, and did considerable damage to the stock of J. J. McQuarrie, grocer. The occupants of the two rooms, J. Burgess, his wife and young child, had a marvellous escape from suffocation as the flalls and their rooms were filled with smoke, when they were awakened. Burgess groped his way through the smoke and lifted his wife to the roof of an adjoining building, and then he,d his child's head out a window until the firemen arrived. The entire loss was about $1,600.

110 Young Girls Left England for Australia

TO LAND OF HUSBANDS

A Hundred English Girls Who Are Off to Australia

A third of the girls will be married and happy in homes of their own before many months are passed. So that West Australia, whither a hundred and ten young English girls have sailed may fairly be called "the land of husbands." The girls sailed recently from England, and are going out under the auspices of the Government of Western Australia. The girls came from all parts of the United Kingdom, but chiefly from Scotland. They have had no definite positions offered them, but most of them will accept places as domestic servants immediately upon their arrival. "Scores of mistresses will be awaiting the ship at Fremantle," said the West Australian Government Agent, who was looking after the comforts of the emigrants "and any girl who wishes to become a domestic servant will receive excellent wages, at least double the amount she could earn here. In West Australia the male population greatly exceeds the female, and in a prosperous young country such as it is there are hundreds of young settlers who, making good money, are anxiously seeking wives. Six months after this party has landed in the State at least a third of them will have found husbands.' The number of workers and settlers in the agricultural, mining, and lumber districts of the colony who are able to maintain a wife and home is constantly increasing, but there are very few women for them to marry Similar parties of girls will be sent out every fortnight until the end of November. The arrangements, which are made by the Government of Western Australia, are particularly advantageous to the girl. All than an applicant has to do is to deposit £2 as a guarantee of good faith, and this sum is returned on reaching Australia. The Government pays the girls' passage and they are taken care of at the Government Emigration Home at Perth while positions are being found for them. "We can always dispose of one party of girls before the arrival of the next," said the agent. Girls and women up to forty-five are aligible for this class of emigration. The girls faced the future cheerfully. "There is no room for us in England," was the general cry. "There is no chance of marriage for us, because our sweet hearts cannot earn enough to keep us." Miss Alice Norrie, from Aberdeen, was typical of her companions. "I have worked hard in Scotland as a domestic servant and as a factory girl, just keeping life going," she said. "All the time I was looking forward to the day when I should be married and have a little home to look after. But the young men say that they have lost what little work they had and cannot possibly see their way to marriage. So now I am going away, though I should have loved to stay in Scotland."

WATCHED IT GROW UP

A certain local character in a New Brunswick village, whose statements were often more emphatic than truthful, was once a witness in a petty trial involving the ownership of an auger and positively identified it as the property of one of the parties to the suit.

"Do you swear that you know this auger?" asked the attorney for the other side.

"Yes, sir."

"How long have you known it?" continued the cross-examiner.

"I have known that auger," said the witness in an impressive tone, "ever since it was a gimlet."

SUSPICIOUS

"Let me show you 'Love Letters of Wise Men,'" said the clerk in the book emporium.

"Are they signed?" asked the cautious bookworm.

"Yes, indeed, every one of them."

"Then they must be forgeries. Wise men never sign their names to love letters."

WOMEN MAKE GOOD WAGES

Sixty women have gone from Spokane to Walla Walla to pick prunes and they are making as high as $3.50 a day at the work. The crop this year is heavy, and stewed prunes promises to be a popular article of diet in many boarding houses next winter.

FIGHTING THE WHITE PLAGUE.

Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association's Warning to Merchants and others.

The object of this Christmas stamp is to give oppotunity to all to be contributors in order to a reduction of the large indebtedness that has been incurred in maintenance of the large number of patients at the above named institution—now more than one hundred and forty.

Another object is to occasion the multitudes to think and talk—even the children—in order to increase the intelligence and interest in the disease and its prevention and care, and cure of the consumptives.

We are pleased to learn that several of the public schools pursuant to the initiative the board by resolution expressed at its last meeting, have taken stamps to be handled by the scholars. Our Y.M.C.A. is also through its juvenile members, aiding in this work, and in addition several of our most prominent druggists and stationers are handling them. We doubt not the people of Peterborough will do their part and thus show themselves, not only learning, but indulging themselves in this "luxury of doing good."

O'BRIEN DEFEATS REDMOND INTENSE FEELING AROUSED

"ALL FOR IRELAND PARTY" CARRY CORK—BOTH NATIONALIST CANDIDATES WERE DEFEATED.

Last Polling in London—Coalitionists have Considerable Lead Over the Unionists—Liberals are Enthusiatic Now.

London, Dec. 7.—William O'Brien, Independent National leader, has been elected in Cork City to the House of Commons, defeating William Redmond, brother of John E. Redmond, the National leader.

The All-for-Ireland party won both seats in Cork city, M. Healy defeating Augustine Roche.

So much feeling was aroused between the parties in Cork that it was thought wise not to announce the victory for the All-for-Ireland party last night and the results were first made known today.

The last polling in the general elections in the city of London was held today in eleven constituencies. Voting was in progress in fifty-one of the Provincial districts.

Liberal leaders predicted this morning that they would win many of the country seats today which had been lost in the elections last time.

The weather was mild but damp with frequent showers. In Ireland the feeling ran so high during the first day's polling that it was deemed expedient to keep the results of the elections secret until noon today, when the excitement had somewhat died out. In Cork, especially, where a bitter struggle was waged, there were numerous fights and arrests.

After apparently favoring the Unionists, the tide had swung around in favor of the Liberals, although it is a contest full of surprises. Unionists are explaining their poor showing by the fact that voting on the qualifications were restricted to the old register.

The Daily News today, in bold type, asked Mr. A. J. Balfour whether he intended maintaining the leadership of his party after guiding it twice to defeat.

WEEDMARK WILL HANG ON DEC. 14

Arrangements Completed for the Execution Next Week.

Perth, Ont., Dec. 7.—Arrangements are complete for the hanging of Weedmark on the fourteenth. Only the officials will be present and Sheriff McMartin will not issue admittance cards to reporters.

Weedmark still preserves the attitude of a stoic. He is visited daily by local clergymen, but has not shown any contrition yet. He did wrong, he knows, but he cannot see where there is a heaven for him. He sleeps well and eats well.

There is little expectation of a commutation.

BIG ELEVATOR PREY TO FLAMES

Loss of $100,000 Occasioned by Destruction of the Grain Elevator.

St. Catharines, Ont., Dec. 7.—With a loss of over a hundred thousand dollars, the Grand Trunk elevator at Port Dalhousie was totally destroyed by fire early this morning. The cause is a mystery.

WILL GO OVER THE FALLS IN A POAT

Rubber Upholstered Lifeboat Has Arrived for Leach.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Dec. 7.—The rubber upholstered lifeboatin which Bobby Leach is to make his trip over the horseshoe falls has arrived in the city. It came from Nova Scotia and reached the station late yesterday afternoon. Leach says he is ready to make the perilous trip and is planning to go Sunday afternoon.

45,5 0 PERSONS WILL BE IN PARADE

Intended to Excite Public Sympathy for Striking Garment Workers in Chicago.

Chicago, Dec. 7.—One thousand police today took their stations along the line of march of the giant parade planned by the striking garment workers to prevent rioting, which is feared following the refusal of the strikers to sign the agreement offered by their employers. Forty-five thousand persons will be in line, and the parade will mark a climax in the strike.

It is intended to excite sympathy for the men and women who are on strike.

INSURGENTS WILL HAVE CANDIDATE

Either Senator Cummins or Lafollette Will Seek Presidential Nomination.

Washington, Dec. 7.—Insurgent Republicans will have their own candidate for the Presidential nomination in 1912.

The Candidate will be either Senator Cummins or Senator Lafollette.

If in the course of the next two years Senator Cummins proves himself to be the most available Insurgent, Senator Lafollette will support him for his nomination. If, on the other hand, Senator Lafollette proves the most available, Senator Cummins will battle for him in the ranks.

Thought That Her Husband was Dead

Had Assumed Mourning and Now as He is Ill He Writes for Her Photograph.

London, Dec. 7.—James Ridgway, who disappeared from Hanwell, a suburb of London, over a year ago, has written his wife asking for her photograph, as he is in a hospital in Vancouver, where he has undergone an operation, and is not expected to recover.

His wife had assumed mourning. Foul play is being suspected, and she is anxiously awaiting particulars. Ridgway, it is explained, said he lost his memory.

Are Bettting Now on Size of the Majority

London, Dec. 7.—Lloyds offered premiums today that the defeat of the Unionists by the Government coalition forces is an absolute certainty. The only betting now is on the size of the majority. Orders were promulgated this afternoon at 7 to 2 in favor of 100 majority for the coalition forces. On the stock exchange consols were at the lowest they have been for 79 years.

There were a number of interesting contests today, one particularly so at Plymouth, where Waldorf Astor, son of a New York multi-millionaire, is contesting a Liberal seat. Mrs. Astor who was one of the beautiful Langhorne sisters, of Virginia, campaigned for her husband in an open carriage.

THE DEATH WATCH.

Has Been Placed on James Gorham.

James Gorham, the young man sentenced to be hanged on January 31st, 1911, for the murder of his mother, is now confined in the death cell in ward 4, of the Peterborough county goal, and is constantly under the guard, day and night, of Death Guards Armstrong and Christopher.

The condemned youth was placed in the death cell immediately upon the passing of sentence by Chancellor Boyd and will remain there till the sentence has been commuted or carried out, as the Departient of Justice at Ottawa decides.

He seems quite at ease under the more rigid circumstances.

HALL'S BRIDGE.

Winter appears to be here to stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Nat. Nicholas, of Lakefield, and Mr. and Mrs. Pete Nicholas were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Nicholas jr., on Monday last.

Mr. Will Montgomery spent Wednesday in the village.

Mr. Wilmot Stockdale has been teaming his oats to Lakefield, during the past week.

Mr. James Crapp took a load of hogs to Lakefield on Thursday, and received a handsome sum for them.

Mr. A. R. Ivey, of Winnipeg, paid a flying visit to Mrs. W. N. Blewett last week.

Miss Lillie Montgomery has been on the sick list, during the past week, but is recovering.

Mr. Harry Shearer spent Friday eve at Lakehurst.

Mr. T. Trennum spent a few days last week in Peterborough, taking orders for Christmas trees.

Mrs. Joe Harriss entertained a number of their friends on Wednesday evening last.

Company is Gazetted.

Toronto, Dec. 3.—The Canadian Chicle Company, Limited, was gazetted to-day with a capital of fifty thousand dollars.

Xmas Decorations and the Displays

Fire Chief Howard has called our attention to the annual circular of the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association and we beat give it in full:

Following our usual custom at this season of the year I beg to call your attention to the dangers to life and property from Christmas decorations, displays, etc., which are frequently made at this time of the year. The use of Christmas greens-harvest specimens and other inflammable materials such as draperies, scenery, cotton to represent snow and the like, (especially in connection with electric and other lighting systems), is decidedly an increase of hazard, it being impossible to make displays of that nature perfectly safe.

The third Statutory Condition of your Insurance Policy reads in part as follows:—

"Any change material to risk but within the control or knowledge of the assured, shall avoid the policy, as to the part affected thereby unless the change is promptly notified in writing to the Company or its local agent."

In addition to the danger to property from the displays referred to, the danger to life in crowded stores or places of meeting, by reason of a panic occasioned by a fire, even though it be small and easily controlled, is so great that the Underwriters, who have made a study of such hazards would fail in their duty should they not give this warning

By Order,
JOHN A. ROBERTSON, Sec

Pope's Picture Adorns the Wall of Class-Room in The Public School

Taught R. C. Doctrine—Church Had Teachers Appointed for the Purpose—Protestants Kept for It.

Ottawa, Dec. 7.—That a large photograph of Pope Pius X. adorns the wall of a class room in a public school which the children of the townships of Russel and Cambridge, Ont., attend was the allegation made by Mr. F. B. Proctor, counsel for plaintiff in the case of Shaver vs. the Public School Board of the townships, which was tried here yesterday by Mr. Justice Teetzel. Judgment was reserved.

The case is one of the most interesting that has come up in the Province in recent years.

Morris Shaver is a trustee on the Public School Board that has jurisdiction in the townships of Russell and Cambridge, and incidentally he is the only Protestant on the board. His other two colleagues are Roman Catholics.

WANTS AN INJUNCTION.

Shaver asked the court to grant an injunction to restrain the board from allowing the Roman Catholic prayers and doctrines of the Church to be taught in the school during school hours, which he swore is being done.

Plaintiff swore that prior to April 21, 1910, the school had been opened and closed with Roman Catholic prayers. On the date in question he moved at a meeting of the board that the school be run according to the Public School Act, which forbids teachers teaching any denominational religion during school hours. This motion was passed.

On the 15th of July, during his absence, Shaver swore that his colleagues passed a resolution at a meeting of the board authorizing the teachers to teach the R.C. catechism and doctrines for half an hour a day during school hours.

TWO PUPILS TESTIFY.

On August 22nd, this resolution was rescinded and another one passed giving the teachers power to dismiss school at 3.30 in the afternoon, but those scholars who wished to remain could do so, and they would be taught by the teachers the Roman Catholic prayers and catechism providing the parents of the children were willing. This resolution, said plaintiff swore is still being observed.

Two witnesses for plaintiff, scholars at the school, testified that Roman Catholic prayers and catechism were taught in the school and that the Protestant scholars were not dismissed while this was being done. No witnesses for the defence were called.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Danbury and daughter, have moved to Lakefield, occupying Miss Traill's residence.

SUPPER AND ENTERTAINMENT.

Oyster Supper at Gilmour Baptist Church.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Gilmour Baptist Church entertained the congregation at an oyster supper A very enjoyable social evening was spent and a substantial sum was added to the treasury of the society. Duting the evening the following programme was rendered:

TRAVELLING PUBLIC PAY.

Large interests, probably either C.P.R. or Canadian Northern, are reported to have recently purchased property just north of the C.P.R. right-of-way in North Toronto worth $600,000. The prices paid are reported as being in many cases more than double the previously estimated value of the property.

This means an extra $250,000 or probably $500,000, when the rest of the property is secured, of extra capital on which the public will have to pay dividends.

We believe that folks who have no desire to move or sell should receive some compensation for their trouble, but isn't 100 per cent. pretty high, especially when the public have to pay it?

The man who lives in a rented house, by the way, receives notice to quit, has all the trouble, and the owner receives the compensation.

Why not have a law fixing the purchase price for expropriation at, say 120 per cent. of assessed value? This would give ample compensation, save the public millions of dollars, and at the same time induce property owners to see that their property was assessed at its fair value, neither too high for fear of taxes, nor too low for fear of expropriation.

THE CANADIAN SENATE.

The Canadian Senate is continually furnishing arguments for its own abolition. One of the latest of these has to do with certain of its officials whom it insists upon bonusing. The auditor-general, in his report for the year ended on March 31, 1910, refers to the situation with disproval. He notes that he pointed out during the previous year that these employes were not classified in accordance with the Civil Service Act, and that the Department of Justice sustained his contention. He says:

"The effect of the classification was to give them salaries in excess of what they were legally yentitled to. I requested the clerk of the Commons to have this excess refunded, or have it legally authorized by Parliament. This has not been done. I requested the clerk of the Senate to refrain from using his letter of credit for these excessive payments, but he was ordered by a resolution of the Senate to make the payments, as well as certain bonuses to which I have taken exception as being contrary to the provisions of the Civil Service Act."

In a letter to the Hon. Mr. Fielding, the auditor-general makes the following further explanation.

"I asked the clerk of the Senate to refrain from making any increased payments to these persons. The Senate also proposed to grant certain sums to some of the officials. I took objection also to the payment of these as illegal. The Committee on Internal Economy and Contingent Accounts then recommended the adoption of a resolution authorizing the clerk to pay and issue checks for the moneys in question although they had been declared illegal by the Department of Justice. The Senate adopted the resolution. The clerk is now in the position of being ordered to make illegal payments, and, if he refuses will be considered as having guilty of a serious breach of duty."

As the auditor says, "The situation at present is very unsatisfactory. The staff of the Senate is under the Civil Service Act. The Senate was a party to the passing of this act, and now declines to be governed by its provisions. If they can override the law in this instance then they can pay whatever salaries they please to the staff, and expend their appropriations in any manner legal or otherwise, as they see fit. As they must have a credit for the payment of their accounts, I am unable to prevent illegal paytments. I can only object, but my objections are unheeded."

The auditor's suggestion is that "the Act should either be amended or its provisions complied with." A better solution would be to amend the Senate—or abolish it altogether.

THE RED YEAR

—By—

LOUIS TRACY.

(CONLINUED.)

wished to reach Lucknow without delay. If the country were in for a period of disturbance, his duty lay there, and he was planning already to send Winifred to Calcutta from Cawnpore, annd thence to England until the time of political trouble had passed.

"I am sure I am doing right," he said in answer to Frank's remonstrances. "Don't you understand, a native in Nana Sahib's position must be well informed as to the exact position of affairs. By helping me he is safeguarding himself. I am only too thankful he was able to subdue that fiery harpy, the Begum. She threatened me in the most outrageous manner before you came. Of course Winifred and I will be everlastingly grateful to you for coming to our assistance. You are alone, I suppose?"

"Yes, though some of our troopers may turn up any minute."

"I fear not," said the older man gravely. "This is a bad business, Malcolm. The Begum said too much. There are worse times in store for us. Do you really believe you can reach Meerut safely?"

"I rode here without hindrance."

"Let me advise you, then, to ride away before we start. That woman meant mischief or she would never have dared to suggest that a British officer should throw in his lot with hers. Waste no time and don't spare that good horse of yours. Be sure I shall tell Winifred all you have done for us. She is pulling round, I think, and it will be better that she should not see you again. Besides, the Nana's escort are preparing to march."

Frank's latest memory of the girl he loved was a sad one. Her white face looked ethereal in the moonlight, and her bloodless lips were quivering with returning life. It was hard to leave her in such a plight, but it would only unnerve her again if he waited until she was conscious to bid her farewell.

So he rode back to Meerut, a solitary European on the eight miles of road, and no man challenged him till he reached the famous bivouac of the white garrison, the bivouac that made the Mutiny an accomplished fact.

CHAPTER III.

How Bahadur Shah Proclaimed His Empire

On the morning of the 11th, the sun that laid bare the horrors of Meerut shone brightly on the placid splendor of Delhi. This great city, the Rome of Asia, was also the Metz of Upper India, its old-fashioned though strong defences having been modernized by the genius of a Napier. Resting on the Jumna, it might best be described as of half-moon shape, with the straight edge running north and south along the right bank of the river.

In the centre of the river line stood the imposing red sandstone palace of Bahadur Shah, last of the Moguls. North of this citadel were the magazine, the Church, some European houses, and the cutcherry, or group of minor law courts, while the main thoroughfare leading in that direction passed through the Kashmir Gate. Southward from the fort stretched the European residential suburb known as Darya Gunj (or, as it would be called in England, the "Riverside District") out of which the Delhi Gate gave access to the open country and the road to Humayun's Tomb. Another gate, the Raj Ghat, opened towards the river between the palace and Darya Gunj. Thus, the walls of city and palace ran almost straight for two miles from the Kashmir Gate on the north to the Delhi Gate on the south, while the main road connecting the two passed the fort on the landward side.

The Lahore Gate of the palace, a magnificent structure, commanded the bazaar and its chief street, the superb Chandni Chowk, which extended due west for nearly two miles to the Lahore Gate of the city itself. Near the palace, in a very large garden, stood the spacious premises of the Delhi Bank. A little farther on, but on the opposite side of the Chowk, was the Kotwallee, or police station, and still farther, practically in the centre of the dense bazaar, two stone elephants marked the entrance to the beautiful park now known as the Queen's Gardens.

The remainder of the space within the walls was packed with the houses and shops of well-to-do traders, and the lofty tenements or mud hovels in which dwelt a population of artisans noted not only for their artistic skill but for a spirit of lawlessness, a turbulent fanaticism, that had led to many scenes of violence in the city's earlier history.

The whole of Delhi as well as the palace which had its own separate fortifications was surrounded by a wall seven miles long, twenty-four feet in height, well supplied with bastions, and containing ten huge gates each a small fort in itself. The wall was protected by a dry fosse, or ditch twenty five feet wide and about twenty feet deep; this, in turn, was guarded by a counterscarp and glacis.

On the northwest side of Delhi, and about a mile distant from the river, an irregular rock-strewn spine of land called the Ridge, rose above the general level of the plain, and afforded a panoramic view of the city and palace. The rising ground began about half a mile from the Mori Gate—which was situated on what may be termed the landward side of the Kashmir Gate. It followed a course parallel with the river for two miles, and at its northerly extremity were situated the principal European bungalows and the military cantonment.

Delhi was the centre of Mohammedan hopes; its palace held the lineal descendant of Aurangzebe, with his children and grandchildren; it was stored to repletion with munitions of war; yet, such was the inconceivable folly of the rulers of India at that time, the nearest British regiments were stationed in Meerut, while the place swarmed with native troops, horse, foot and artillery!

A May morning in the Punjab may be compared with the passage of Britain. Undimmed by cloud, unchecked by cooling breeze, the sun scorches the earth from the moment his glowing rays first peep over the horizon. Thus men who value their health and have work to be done rise at an early hour when London's streets are emptiest. Merchants were busy

A Great Railway System.

Hardly a town, village or city in Ontario that does not receive daily benefit from the operations of the Grand Trunk Railway System, and considering the net work of Branch line connections, it is wonderful with what regularity trains are run. Not only is a good service provided between points in Ontario, but this line also reaches nearly all the important cities of Michigan, viz: Flint, Saginaw, Bay City, Lansing, Battle Creek, Jackson, Grand Rapids and Muskegon, South Bend, Ind., and the second city in America, viz: Chicago Ill., the gateway to the Northwest, West and South, bringing Ontario in close connection. On the East, the Grand Trunk connects Ontario with Montreal, Quebec, the Maritime Provinces and Boston, Mass.

With a double track line all the way from Chicago to Montreal, and also to Niagara Falls, connecting with Lehigh Valley from New York, the Grand Trunk reaches out in all directions for you patronage, and well deserves it, for its vestibule coaches, parlor and dining cars and modern Pullmans, give the service desired.

"THE KLONDYKE'S MOTHER LODE"

The storehouse from which the famous placer creeks, Bonanza and Eldorado, receive their fabulous wealth, have been uncovered on the claims of The Victoria Gulch Mines, situated on the ridge at the head of Victoria and Gay gulches. The company's holdings consist of four quartz claims and about 200 acres 14 miles from Dawson, on a good wagon road and two miles from the Klondyke Mines R.R. There are two true quartz veins, between perfect walls 6 and 10 feet wide on the property, the free milling ore from which is literally encrusted with the yellow metal. Read what some of the world's greatest authorities say:

R. G. McConnell, B.A., of the Geological Survey, says in his report on the Klondyke Goldfields,

"A sample in which no free gold could be detected with the naked eye, or an ordinary magnifying glass, was assayed in the laboratory of the survey and gave 2,625 oz. of gold and 3,267 oz. of silver to the ton."

Pro. Henry A. Meirs, D. Sc. F.R.S., Waynflete, Professor of Mineralogy in the University of Oxford, in collaboration with Professor A. P. Coleman in a report to the Minister of the Interior, says: "At the head of Victoria Gulch which runs into Bonanza, a creek opposite Gay Gulch, a tributary of Eldorado, and at a height of about 2,300 feet above Dawson, has been opened, what appears to be a true quartz vein, showing nuggety gold in abundance. The gold is distinctly crystalline in character, and the crystals are of a peculiar form having a triangular outline due to the fact that they are octahedra, and in particular a remarkable variety known as "spinel twins." Now it is significant that the gold found in Victoria gulch is also crystalline and has the same characteristic outline, here then we have fairly convincing evidence that the gold found in a stream gravel is identical with that found in situ in a quartz at the head of the valley and in this instance there can be little doubt as to the origin of the gold."

Dr. Eugene Haanel, Director of Mines, a noted authority on mineralogy in a report to the department in 1902, says: "Masses of quartz were seen protruding from the surface all about the locality, and it needed only to wet the surface of the quartz with water to reveal the bright specks of gold adhering to their surface.

"Gay gulch and Victoria gulch, the former a tributary of Eldorado creek, the latter of Bonanza creeks, limit Victoria Hill toward the sources of Bonanza and Eldorado creeks. Above Victoria and Gay gulches, Bonanza and Eldorado creeks respectively are unproductive, below these gulches the creeks are rich. It seems a reasonable conclusion that the gold in these creeks, at least as far as they flank the side of Victoria Hill, was derived from Victoria Hill."

Mr. R. W. Brock, Director Geological Survey, says: "The district is not glaciated. Gold in the recent gravel freshly derived from its original source is similar to gold in the corresponding White Channel gravel. Many of the gold grains and most of the nuggets enclose quartz. Quartz pebbles are found containing gold, some at least very rich in gold. The quartz of the boulders is similar to the quartz of the veins, and gold of the veins to gold of the gravels. From the foregoing and other facts, it is obvious that the gold is absolutely local in origin, derived from the basins of the pay gulches and creeks."

Fred. T. Congdon Member for the Yukon, stated on the floor of the House of Commons last January that some of the richest gold quartz in the world was being mined close to Dawson.

Just stop and think of the immense possibilities of rich returns from the development of the claims of The Victoria Gulch mines, when two miles of the Mother Lode runs through the property from which the $55,000,000 in placer gold has been already won from Eldorado and Bonanza creeks, the one-third the Klondyke's entire output. 100,000 shares of treasury stock of the par value of $1 is now offered for public subscription at 25 cents per share fully paid and non-assessable.

No further issue of treasury stock will have to be made at this price.

RECORD GROUSE YEAR

Reports of Big Bags From the Scottish Moors

It is now practically certain that this will be one of the best grouse years on record, and that big bags will be the rule all over Scotland, with the possible exception of some very high-lying moors on which the snows of a decidedly rigorous winter lingered late. The severity of last winter killed off the weaker birds, and a strong and healthy breeding stock was left, and when nesting began the weather could hardly have been more favorable. In most districts the number of eggs per nest averaged seven, and in some districts eight, and in all areas the birds hatched out well. Birds are already very forward—so much so that on some moors, especially if the weather be at all unsettled, they may be wild on the Twelfth. Another promising fact is no disease is reported anywhere. All other game have also done well, and whatever may be the case in England, 1910 will be a great year for partridges as well as for grouse in Scotland, which has had the good fortune to escape the heavy rains that have swept England.

WALKING ON WATER

A Remarkable Scene Recently on the River Thames

A number of people on the Albert Embankment, London, were amazed to see an elderly man in an old frock coat walking in the Thames. He was up to his waist in water about 40 yards in the river, and the tide was well up. A large crowd was soon attracted, and the river police rowed towards him and requested him to get out. He said he would when he "had sufficient," and so calmly walked away from Lambeth Bridge to Westminster, where very readily at the steps by St. Thomas's Hospital. It was then seen that he had fixed to his feet a pair of small canoes about 15 inches in length, hollowed out with small air tanks underneath. He said he was trying an experiment, and after satisfying the police as to his credentials he was allowed to be followed by a curious crowd, who had been greatly amused at his defying the police in mid-stream. He had apparently attempted to walk on the surface of the water and sunk to the level of his chest. He was partially dry from his waist upwards.

LIFE LOST FOR A PENNY

The Hard-hearted Conduct of a Man Who Tempted a Lad

The callous conduct of a man who offered a penny to a boy of eight in order to induce him to dive into the river at Stepney, England, and then walked away when the child was drowning, was the subject of a well-merited rebuke from the Coroner.

The boy was William Still. A brother said that, instead of going to school, they went for a swim. When in the water, William suddenly called out, "Mummy, mummy, come and get me out." He threw up his arms and sank. A man was sitting on the steps leading to the river, and when witness asked him if he could get his brother out he walked away. The same man had previously offered William a penny if he would dive in.

A Juror: The man was a great coward. (Hear, hear.)

The jury returned a verdict of accidental death, the coroner remarking that the conduct of the man was most inhuman, and it was deplorable to hear that such men existed.

TRAGEDY OF THE ALPS

A Women Climber Who Saw Her Comrade Die

An Alpine tragedy of peculiar pathos is reported by the Grenoble correspondent of the Matin. Two climbers, M. Allimand and Mme. Baronnat, set out on Sunday to follow the course of the River Roize, lost their way in fog, and fell 30 feet on to a ledge just by a waterfall. M. Allimand broke his leg, and neither he nor his companion could escape from the ledge.

They lay there helpless for three days and a half, at the end of which time M. Allimand expired from his injuries and from the effects of exposure and starvation. Next morning they were seen by peasants. Mme. Baronnat was rescued and carried to a chalet, but M. Allimand's body could not be moved.

Before his death M. Allimand wrote a message for help and pinned it to his hat, which he cast into the stream. The hat was found last evening, the message still being perfectly legible.

STREET CRIES AND NOISES

A hawker was summoned in England for shouting "Coals," and another for calling "Firs Wood O!" A clergyman from the neighborhood of Liverpool-road, Islington, complained that he suffered from 24 different cries a day shouted by many more vendors, beginning with the early morning milkman and going on until the vendor of tea delicacies had disposed of his wares. The magistrate said that this kind of thing must be stopped. People were entitled to quiet and peace in their street. The clergyman said that, if allowed, he would be happy to pay the fine. He had commiseration with these poor men, although he was a great sufferer from their cries.

KING TO CENTENARIAN

The King, through his private secretary, has asked the Rev. W. H. E. Jervis, rector of Orford, Suffolk, to convey his congratulations to Mr. Robert Mills, a parishioner, who has attained "the grand old age" of 100. The letter added: "The King is interested to hear of all the good that Mr. Mills has rendered to his fellow creatures during his long life, and trusts that he is in good health, and that he may spend a happy birthday." Mr. Mills' grandmother died at the age of 101.

A DOG'S MISTAKE

A Remarkable Story Related by Mr. Percy Allen

Mr. Percy Allen, in his "Impressions of Provence," says that the following story was related to him by M. Frederic Mistral, the poet. M. Mistral:

"One morning, many years ago, I was walking in the country here with my wife, when suddenly a black dog ran up and began to fawn on me, barking in an ecstasy of joy, as though he had just recovered a long-lost master. So far as I am aware, I had never seen the animal before, but since he persisted in following me I took him home, and for ten years from that time he was my constant companion. One evening, soon after his coming, my wife and I went to lay some flowers upon the grave of my parents, and the dog accompanied us. So far as I know, he had never been to the spot before; but he went on ahead of us, as though aware of the way, and when we arrived there we found him sitting beside my father's grave, which by some subtle power he had singled out from some three hundred others. Well, a year or two after I had owned him, I had occasion to go to Paris, when I met the man whose portrait you see there, Buffalo Bill. The extraordinary resemblance between us that at once we noticed brought a thought to my mind, and I related the story of my dog. He made a few inquiries, and then ejaculated, 'I can solve the mystery. A year or two since, at the very time when you found my dog, I had been at Marseilles with a show that I was touring through the south of France, there I lost one of my troupe of dogs. That animal, wandering in search of me, met you, and made a very curious, though very natural, mistake.'"

PHOTOGRAPHING A RHINOCEROS

A Fight at Close Quarters in The African Wilds

According to his "Camera Adventures in the African Wilds," Mr. A. Radclyffe Dugmore's chief delight is in snapping an animal just at the moment when another man would be saying his prayers. Once or twice only is he driven to the stern necessity of killing. Directly before us, not twenty yards away, lay a large rhinoceros fast asleep. His big grey back showing above the waving grass. For some reason or other we had not loaded our weapons that morning, and the importance of rapidity of action was very conspicuous. C., my companion, loaded the shot gun with a charge of buck-shot and a ball, he also had his revolver. No sooner had I grabbed the camera and moved a little to one side, so as to obtain a better view of the animal in case he charged, than he was up and at us. It seemed incredible that so large an animal could move with such rapidity. I focussed on him as he rushed towards C. and the Masai and the two thoroughly scared boys who were behind them. Almost unconsciously I released the shutter, when, at the same moment, a shot rang out. C. was trying to turn the animal with a charge of buck-shot. The attempt, however, was futile, and the creature came on without even hesitating. C., realizing that the shot had failed, fired a twelve-bore ball from the left barrel and then, grabbing his revolver, began firing right into his head as it rushed past him not six feet away. It made straight for the Masai, who stood quietly awaiting the onrush, and who actually jumped aside when within touching distance of the big horn. It next turned toward me just as I was endeavoring to put a second plate in position, so that I might get a picture of the actual encounter. In my hurry I did not put the plate-holder all the way in, as I afterwards found to my disappointment. But for the moment the camera became less important than the angry beast, when, to my relief, the Masai, with wonderful coolness drove his spear into the side of the rhinoceros. That turned him toward C., who quickly put another revolver shot into his head, and that decided the bewildered animal to leave us alone, and off he went.

AS HE SEES GOLF

The Better the Play the Poorer the Entertainment, Says Leach.

It is really one of the dullest things in the world watching a man play perfect golf. The better the golf, the poorer is the entertainment. In the best golf of all, the man just hits the ball straight down the course never being in danger of getting bunkered; is on the putting green in the proper number of strokes, and gets his ball down in the right number, not deriving any gain from luck by holding long putts. In all this there are no excitements, no thrills. There is nothing like the complete failure of the mediocrity for tickling the fancy and making gossip at a championship meeting. You generally get one or two of this kind at every meeting—men who are off their games, of which they never had as much as they should have done, off their luck, and full of nerves at the same time. I remember two years ago, at Prestwick, Arnaud Massy (the great Frenchman being the champion) having to play in partnership with a young gentleman who got sevens and eights—and sometimes more—at the various holes with quite astonishing frequency. And the pity of it was that the great crowd that was out to see Massy watched the youth at it.—Henry Leach, in The Sketch.

Lost a Finger.

While working at the Lock works on Monday last, Mr. Gordon Carter, a young man residing at 530 Bolivar street, had one of his fingers so badly crushed that it was found necessary to amputate it. Theoperation was performed at the Nicholl's Hospital. The wound is healing up nicely.

Death of Capt. Hawdon.

News has been received of the death from cholera of Capt. Kynard Hawdon of the 1st cavalry, at Srinagar, Cashnur, India. Captain Hawdon was the hero of a remarkable journey to Quetta via the Trans-Caspian Railway, Ashkabad, Meshed, Seistan, and Nushki, his own account of which was published in The London Times under the title "Overland to India in Thirty Seven Days."

Speeding on the Streets.

Shortly after three o'clock yesterday afternoon two men in cutters raced up Aylmer street at a rate far beyond the speed limit. It is fortunate for them that no police constable happened to be by at the time, or they would doubtless have had an invitation to interview Magistrate Dumble. This speeding on the city streets is dangerous.

City Shade Trees.

St. Catharines Council has passed a by-law regarding shade trees, that might be copied by our city fathers. "It is not claimed that residents do not know how to trim their trees, but it is claimed that if different individuals do their own trimming their will be a great want of uniformity in the appearance of the shade trees of the city."

Quebec Heaters For Sale.

On account of the installing of the heating system in The Times' building, the four Quebec heaters, so well known, are for sale. These stoves are as good as new, and will be sold at less than half price. Also about 100 lengths of pipe, also practically as good as new, at four cents per length.

Tenders Asked For.

Plans and specifications are out, and tenders are being asked for the construction of an addition to the local post office. The new part will be built in the present yard. It will be one storey high, 36 by 50 feet. This addition will be in two rooms, one a good large one for assorting mail, and the other will be the postmaster's office. The present quarters for assorting mail are far inadequate and the new part is badly needed.

A Tea for the Children.

All the children who took part in the "Chalk Talk" by Mr. McMurdo, and those belonging to the Sunday school are invited to a tea at the Gospel Hall on Friday night next between 7 and 9 o'clock. Each one will be handed a bag filled with tarts, buns, cookies, etc. The children will sing and recite.

Mr. Walker will make a few remarks and Mr. Adam McMurdo will give a fifteen minute talk on the blackboard. Everything free.

HOLY DAY SERVICES.

Today being Holy Day there will be masses at 6, 8 and 9 o'clock at St. Peter's Cathedral.

In the evening at 7.30 there will be a reception to the members of the Sodality of the Blessed Virgin. Rev. Father McColl will preach a special sermon.

Mass will be sung at the Church of the Sacred Heart at 6, 7.30 and 9 o'clock.

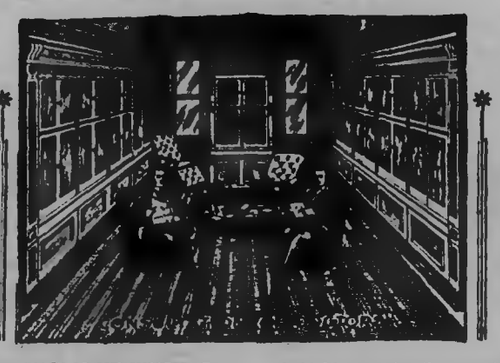
WE REPAIR WEAK MEN



ONE SECRET OF OUR SUCCESS. Every case submitted to us receives the personal attention of our Medical Staff, who consider the symptoms, complications and chronicity, and then decide as to the diseases and curability. Specific remedies are then prescribed for the case and are compounded by our own chemist in our own Laboratory. Such appropriate treatment cannot fail to cure, as specific medicines are selected to cure the symptoms that trouble you. We have no cure-all medicines like most specialists use who send the same medicines to all patients alike and cure none. We have treated patients throughout Canada for over twenty years and can refer to any bank as to our responsibility.

No Guarantee to Cure or No Pay. We Treat all Diseases of Men and Women.

BY-LAW NUMBER

A By-law to Aid the Bonner-Worth Company, Limited.

Passed the ..... day of .....191.

WHEREAS Messrs. Isaac Bonner and Edgar Worth intend to form a Company for the manufacture of worsted yarn and other similar industries and to incorporate the same under the name of The Bonner-Worth Company (Limited) with the authorised capital hereinafter mentioned and have proposed to the Council of the City of Peterborough to establish the factory of the said Company in and to carry on its business at the said city, and for that purpose to purchase land for a site for and erect thereon a building of the material and size and to instal therein machinery of the value hereinafter set out and to employ in said factory within one year from the completion of the erection thereof at least 30 operatives provided the city will agree to assist the said proposed Company by advancing to it by way of loan the cost of said land and building, not exceeding in all the sum of $12,000, without interest, the same to be advanced and repaid as hereinafter mentioned and will grant the said proposed Company exemption from Municipal taxes on the said building and the machinery and plant therein and the business assessment of the Company for the term of ten years on the conditions hereinafter set out.

AND WHEREAS there is at present in the said City no other manufacturing establishment carrying on the same business as the one intended to be carried on by the said proposed Company and it is desirable and in the public interest in order to secure the location of the said factory in the City of Peterborough, to accept the said proposal upon the terms and conditions hereinafter set out.

AND WHEREAS it has been arranged between the said parties and the Council that the said Messrs. Bonner and Worth or the said proposed Company shall in the meantime purchase, pay for and obtain a conveyance to themselves or the said Company of the land required for the site of said factory and after the purchase thereof proceed to erect the necessary building thereon for its purposes of the material and of at least the size herein mentioned and to install therein machinery and plant to the value of at least $18,000 of which at least $2,000 in value thereof shall be fixed machinery and plant to be included in the mortgage hereinafter provided for, and when said land is purchased and conveyed as aforesaid and said building is erected and ready for occupation that the Corporation will advance to the Company one half the cost of the land and buildings up to the sum of $6,000 and when said machinery and plant have been installed therein at the cost aforesaid and the said factory has been in operation for one year and is employing therein at least thirty operatives that the Corporation will advance to the Company the other one-half of the cost of said land and buildings up to the sum of $6,000 provided the terms and conditions hereinafter mentioned entitling the Company to the same have been fully complied with and the security hereinafter mentioned has been given.

AND WHEREAS in order to enable the Corporation to make the said loan it will be necessary to issue the debentures of the Corporation for a sum not exceeding the sum of $12,000 or such less sum as may be required for the purpose aforesaid which is the amount of the debt intended to be created by this By-law, but as the said sum is to be payable in instalments as aforesaid and it is undesirable to have any part thereof in hand and unused it will be to the advantage of the Municipality to issue the said debentures in instalments, the said debentures shall be issued in instalments not exceeding $6,000 when the same is required for the purposes of this By-law, but so that the first instalment shall be issued within two years and the second within five years from the passing of this By-law.

AND WHEREAS the amount of the whole rateable property of the Municipality according to the last revised assessment roll is the sum of $8,873,-145 and the amount of the existing debt of the Municipality, exclusive of local improvement debts payable by local special rates but including the debt of $452,000.00 incurred for the purchase and improvement of the waterworks is the sum of $1,157,840,-64 and there is no part of the principal or interest in arrear.

AND WHEREAS there will require to be raised annually during the currency of the debentures to be issued hereunder to pay the interest on the said debt a sum not exceeding the sum of $540 less the interest that may be received on the investment of the instalments of the said loan as the same are repaid and the instalments of principal to be received from the said Company in the repayment of the said loan, being sufficient for the purpose of repaying the same at the maturity thereof, it is not necessary that a sinking fund should be created for that purpose, but all payments received from the said company in repayment of the said loan shall be paid to the Peterborough City Trust to be held and invested and applied as to said principal in payment of the said debt at the maturity thereof and as to the interest on the investments of the portion of the principal repaid in reduction of the said interest, but in the event of a sinking fund for any reason being required for the purpose of paying the said debt, there shall be raised in any year during the currency of the said debentures, that the same may be required, a sum sufficient with the estimated interest on the investment thereof at the rate of four per cent. per annum to pay the said debt or the balance thereof when the same becomes due.

THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF PETERBOROUGH BY THE COUNCIL THEREOF THEREFORE ENACTS AS FOLLOWS :—

1.—This By-law shall take effect on the final passing thereof, but shall not be finally passed or have any force or effect unless and until it has been submitted to and received the assent of the requisite number of the ratepayers of the Municipality who are entitled to vote on the By-law or is ratified and confirmed by the Legislature of the Province of Ontario or until the said Company shall have delivered, to the Corporation a duly executed agreement to carry out on its part the provisions of this By-law to be performed observed and kept by the Company and also an undertaking agreeing not to oppose the construction of any sewers or sidewalks as local improvements that the Council may desire to construct under the provisions of the Municipal Act relating to local improvements. The said Council on its part hereby agreeing to submit the By-law to the votes of the duly qualified ratepayers of the Municipality and if necessary in order to bring it into effect to apply to the Legislature for the ratification and confirmation thereof.

2. It shall be lawful for the Corporation of the City of Peterborough to borrow the sum of $12,000 or such less sum as may be required for the purposes aforesaid and to issue the debentures of the Corporation therefor in instalments as the same are required, such debentures to be sealed with the Corporate Seal of the City of Peterborough and to be signed by the Mayor and Treasurer and countersigned by the Secretary of the Peterborough City Trust, to be payable within fifteen years from the date of the issue thereof respectively and to bear interest at the rate of four and one-half per centum per annum, payable half-yearly on the thirtieth day of June and thirty-first day of December in each year and to have coupons attached thereto for the payment of such interest—such debentures as to principal and interest to be payable at the office of the Secretary of the Peterborough City Trust at the City of Peterborough or at such other place as the said Council may by resolution appoint.

3. There shall be raised and levied during each year of the currency of the said debentures by a special rate sufficient therefor upon all the rateable property in the City of Peterborough the sum of $540 for payment of the interest on said debentures or such less sum as may be necessary to pay the interest on debentures issued under this By-law at the said rate of four and one half per centum per annum, less however, the interest that may be received on the investment of any instalments repaid by the said Company on said loan, and no sum shall be raised as a sinking fund to pay the said debentures at the maturity thereof, but the amount received in repayment of the said loan shall be paid to the Peterborough City Trust and by said Trust invested, held and applied for the payment of the said debentures at the maturity thereof, provided however, that if by reason of the non-payment of the said loan or any instalment thereof, a sinking fund is necessary for the purpose of providing for the payment of the said debentures or any of them when the same becomes payable, there shall be raised and levied each year that the same is required for said purpose a sum sufficient with the estimated interest on the investment thereof at the rate of four per centum per annum to pay the said debentures at the maturity thereof.

4. There shall be paid to the said Company within one month after it shall become entitled thereto under the terms hereof, so much of the said sum authorized to be borrowed under the provisions hereof as the Companypany shall become entitled to by complying with the terms and conditions hereinafter set out and furnishing proof satisfactory to the Council of the same and upon and only upon the said terms and conditions, namely—

(1) That the said Company shall on or before the first day of June, 1911, be incorporated under The Ontario Companies Act with an authorised capital of at least $100,000 and shall by said date have stock subscribed and paid in cash to the amount of at least $35,000 as working capital.

(2) That the said Company shall on or before the first day of June, 1911, have acquired and shall hold by a good title in fee simple free of incumbrances a site for its factory in the City of Peterborough of sufficient size for its purposes.

(3) That the Company shall on or before the first day of September 1911, have erected on said land a two storey building of brick, concrete or steel, with basement, suitable for its business at least 75 feet by 80 feet in size or its equivalent, and shall on or before the first day of January, 1912, have the same equipped with machinery and plant suitable for the said business at a cost for said machinery and plant of at least $18,000, at least $2,000 of which shall be for fixed machinery and plant to be included in the mortgage hereinafter provided for and shall on or before the said first day of June, 1912, have the same in operation and employing therein at least thirty operatives, the cost of said building and machinery and plant as represented by the Company if not agreed to by the Council to be ascertained and fixed by a valuator agreed on by the Company and Council or if they cannot agree on the appointment of a valuator within two weeks after the Company has furnished its evidence of such value to the Council then by arbitrators appointed under the provisions of The Arbitration Act.

(4) That the Company shall have entered into a covenant with the Peterborough City Trust satisfactory to the City Solicitor to observe, perform and keep all the terms, conditions, stipulations and agreements in this By-law set out to be observed, performed and kept on its part including the following :—

(a) That the Company will repay to the Peterborough City Trust the amount of said loan in annual instalments of $1,000 each, the first of such instalments to be made within one year after the payment to the Company of the last instalment of the loan hereby authorized to be made and yearly thereafter, with the right to said Company to increase the amount of said annual payments or to repay the whole of the said loan or any balance thereof that may remain due at any time, in the meantime, with the right to the Council of the said Corporation in its discretion to demand repayment of the said sum of the balance thereof then remaining unpaid, if at any time (except in the case of strikes or damage by fire as hereinafter provided) the said Company shall have in its employment at its said manufacturing establishment in the City of Peterborough for ten months in any year (after the first year of its operation) an average of less than 30 operatives, such repayment to be made within three months after the said Council shall have passed a resolution making such demand and mailed a copy thereof addressed to the said Company at the City of Peterborough

PROVIDED HOWEVER that if the failure to employ the said number of operatives as above mentioned in the said manufacturing establishment is due to a general strike of the employees or of a sufficient number of them to prevent the said Company carrying on the said manufacturing business in the regular manner or to the destruction or damage of the buildings or machinery by fire or tempest, so as to prevent the said Company carrying on the said business in the regular manner, the time during which the business shall cease to be so carried on in consequence of such strikes or destruction or damage of the said buildings or machinery, not exceeding in either case one year, shall not be counted in the period to entitle the Council of the said City to demand payment of the amount of the said loan or the balance thereof then due as above mentioned.

(b) That in case default shall happen to be made of or in the payment of the said sum or any instalment thereof as provided by sub-clause (a) hereof or any part thereof for the space of one month after the same becomes due and payable or in case of default of or in the doing, observing, performing, fulfilling or keeping of any of the other provisions, agreements or terms herein or in said covenant mentioned, and such default shall continue for one month then in every such case the whole of said sum or that portion thereof remaining unpaid shall forthwith become due and payable, and it shall and may be lawful for the City Trust after giving written notice to the said Company of its intention in that behalf either by service on the President or Secretary of the Company or by letter addressed to the Company at the City of Peterborough, not less than thirty days previously and without any further notice or consent or concurrence of the said Company, to enter into possession of and hold the said lands of the Company and the buildings thereon, and that part of the said plant which are fixtures, and whether in or out of possession of the same, if thereunto authorized by by-law of the Corporation of the said City, to make any lease or leases thereof, or of any part thereof, and also if and when considered advisable and if thereunto authorized by by-law of the Corporation of the said City, to sell and absolutely dispose of the same or any of them or any part or parts thereof for any sum or sums and in any way the said City Council may by said by-law direct, and the said City Trust if thereunto authorized as aforesaid shall have power and authority to assure and convey the same if and when so sold to the purchaser or purchasers thereof by proper and sufficient conveyance and conveyances.

(c) That the said Company will until the whole of the said loan is repaid keep the said lands and buildings and the said fixtures in good order, condition and repair, according to the nature and description thereof, and in case of neglect or default in so doing the provisions mentioned in sub-clause (a) hereof shall apply by reason of such neglect or default, and the amount of the said loan or of that portion then unpaid shall become payable as in said sub clause (a) set out.

(d) That the said Company will insure and until the said loan is fully repaid will keep insured against loss or damage by fire the said buildings and fixtures on the land hereinbefore mentioned in the sum of at least the full amount of said loan or the balance thereof remaining unpaid in some insurance Company or Companies approved of by the said City Trust (such approval not to be unreasonably withheld) and will pay all premiums and sums of money necessary for such purposes as the same shall become due and will make the amount payable under the policy or policies payable to the said City Trust, as its interest may appear, and will deliver to the said City Trust the policy or policies of insurance when issued and the receipts thereto appertaining respectively not later than three days before the premiums on the said policies become due respectively, and in default thereof the said City Trust may pay any premiums or sums of money necessary for said insurance and the said Company shall forthwith repay same with interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum to the said City Trust, it being understood that in the event of the said Company effecting its insurance on its buildings and machinery in the form of a blanket policy or policies and causing the loss if any thereunder to be made payable to the said City Trust to the extent of the unpaid amount of said loan it shall be a sufficient compliance with the said provision as to delivery of policies if the said Company shall deliver to the said City Trust a duplicate of said policy or policies or an acknowledgement by the Insurance Company or Companies of the interest therein of the said City Trust.

(e) That the said Company as security for the repayment of the said loan will execute and deliver to the said City Trust a first mortgage on the said lands and the buildings and fixtures thereon which fixtures shall be of the value of at least $2,000 and shall as far as said mortgage is concerned, be held to be part of the realty and covered and embraced in said mortgage, and the said mortgage shall be a continuing security until the said loan is fully paid off according to the terms and conditions of this By-law.

(f) That the said Company shall at all times until said loan is paid off have at least $15,000 worth of machinery and plant in said building but shall be at liberty from time to time to substitute new and modern plant and machinery for the plant machinery and fixtures in the said manufacturing establishment, provided the said new and modern plant and machinery is of equal or greater value than that for which it is substituted, and notice is given to the Secretary of the City Trust, giving the price and description of such substituted plant and machinery.

5. PROVIDED the said Company shall in every respect have complied with, carried out and performed the terms and conditions on its part herein mentioned, entitling it to the same the said City Council will pay to the said Company the first half of the loan herein provided for as soon as the said building of the size heretofore set out is fully erected on the said land and is ready for occupation and will within one year after the said building is fully equipped with machinery and plant costing not less than $18,000 and the said factory is in operation and employing therein at least 30 operatives pay to the said Company the balance of the said loan.

6. The said Company shall prior to the first day of March in each year file with the City Clerk a statutory declaration made by two officers of the Company who shall therein state their knowledge of the facts, proving the extent to which the Company has complied with and is observing all the terms, conditions and provisions of this By-law and those contained in the said covenant, and on neglect of the said Company to furnish such declaration it shall be prima facie taken that such terms, conditions and provisions have not been performed, observed and kept.

(7) PROVIDED the said Company shall carry out and continue to carry out the terms and conditions of this By-law and in the said covenant set out to be observed performed and kept by it and shall on or before the dates above mentioned purchase the said site, erect the said building and equip the same as aforesaid and have the same in operation and employing therein the number of operatives above mentioned, the buildings of the Company used exclusively for manufacturing purposes and the plant machinery and the business assessment of the Company shall for a period of ten years from the first day of January 1912 be exempt from all taxes, rates and assessments except taxes for school purposes for which they shall be and remain liable, but nevertheless the land used by the said Company shall be and remain liable to assessment for all Municipal purposes and for all Municipal rates and taxes, including local improvement rates, and the oath of the assessor or assessors shall be amended accordingly but provided said Company shall fail or neglect during said term of ten years to carry out the said terms and conditions and to operate and carry on the said business as aforesaid then such exemption shall cease and the rates and taxes payable in respect to the said buildings, machinery, plant and business assessment shall be and become payable in respect to the said buildings same manner as if this By-law had not been passed.

8.) The votes of the electors of the City of Peterborough qualified to vote on By-laws for creating debts shall be taken upon this By-law on the second day of January, 1911, being the same day as the annual elections for the Municipal Council for the year 1911 and the polls will be held during the same hours, at the same places and by the same Deputy Returning Officers and Poll Clerks as are fixed and appointed for the said annual Municipal elections.

(9) The third day of January 1911, at the hour of twelve o'clock noon and the City Clerk's Office are hereby fixed as the time when the place where the Clerk will sum up the number of votes given for and against the By-law.

(10) The 31st day of December 1910 at the hour of twelve o'clock noon and the office of the City Clerk are hereby fixed as the time and place for the appointment of persons to attend at the various polling places and at the final summing up of the votes by the Clerk respectively on behalf of the persons interested in and promoting or opposing the passing of the By-law respectively.

VOL. XXXIII NO. 280 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO FRIDAY DECEMBER 9 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

Clarence Glover was Killed for a Purpose

THE DEFENCE WILL SHOW THAT ANOTHER HAD THE OPPORTUNITY AND MOTIVE.

Hattie LeBlanc's Senior Counsel Calls District Attorney Higgins as the First Witness—Girl Had no Motive to Kill Glover.

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 8.—The defence in the trial of Hattie LeBlanc, the little Cape Breton girl who is on trial for the murder of Clarence F. Glover, the Waltham laundry proprietor, opened with sensations today. A. Farley Brewer, for the defence, declared in his opening address that the defence would show that some one beside the prisoner had the opportunity, the motive and the ability to commit the crime, and Melvin M. Johnson, senior counsel for the girl, called District Attorney Higgins as the first witness.

Mr. Brewer in his opening address spoke of the mystery surrounding the death of Glover and declared that Hattie LeFlanc was brought to the Glover home designedly.

"Somebody," he continued, "killed Clarence Glover and did it with a cold and deliberate purpose. Others had the opportunity to kill him and we shall show that one other in particular had opportunity, motive and ability."

NO MOTIVE TO KILL.

Hattie, he asserted, had no motive for killing Glover. The defence, he said, would not attempt to defend the relations between Glover and Hattie which he said, "may or may not have been improper."

LADIES' CURLING CLUB.

Organized for the Season—Officers Elected.

A number of ladies met in the parlors of the Y.W.C.A. on Wednesday, and with much enthusiasm, organized a ladies' curling club and made plans for the season.

Mrs. T. F. Matthews was elected president, and Miss Bertha Moore was elected secretary-treasurer. The skips chosen were: Mrs. Travers, Mrs. Coulthard, Mrs. Ritchie, Mrs. Matthews, and Miss Bertha Moore. There is great enthusiasm among the ladies who expect a most successful season. All ladies of the city who wish to curl this season are asked to send their names to Miss Moore as soon as possible.

BOYS USED EACH OTHER AS TARGET

Shooting as Close as They Could. One Lad was Horrified to See His Companion Drop Dead.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 8.—In a shooting match in which two boys used each other as targets, Albert Perin, 15 years old, was killed by his playmate, Jesse Osborne, 16 years old, last night.

Osborne said he and Perin were playfully shooting as close to each other as they could with rifles, just after dark and that he was horrified when he saw his companion drop dead with a bullet hole in his forehead. Osborne was arrested charged with manslaughter.

Was Belleville Man Victim of Murder?

Windsor, Ont., Dec. 8.—The body of a man, thought to be James Ferguson, of Enterprise, Ont., lies at the Wayne County morgue, Detroit, and the police department is trying to ascertain how he came to be floating on a cake of ice in the middle of the Detroit River at midnight Tuesday night.

Revolver shots, followed by cries for help, attracted the attention of Officer Goettemann, on duty at West Jefferson avenue, shortly after 12 o'clock. Other people also heard the shots, and upon investigation the figure of a man was discovered half immersed in the river about a hundred yards out from shore. He was clinging desparately to a cake of ice. A rowboat was found, and the man was brought ashore almost dead from cold. He was unable to speak, and died in the Solvay Hospital yesterday. Among the papers found on his person were receipts from the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, made out to James Ferguson of Belleville, Ont. No revolver was found, and there were no marks on the body.

Arrested on Charge of Theft.

Frederick Mellery, of Campbellford, was arrested on Wednesday night by Constable Adams. The prisoner is charged with having stolen about $15 from a man in Campbellford. A telephone message was received by Chief Thompson giving the name and description of the man, and a sharp lookout for him was kept, with the result as above stated. He is also supposed to have stolen clothes as well as money. The money was not found on him when he was arrested here last night. Chief Linn, of Campbellford, came up yesterday for his prisoner and took him out on the 1.40 train. The stolen coat and other missing clothing was found on the prisoner.

COUNTIES OF ENGLAND REMAIN STAUNCH TO LIBERAL CAUSE

NET GAIN OF FOUR FOR BALFOUR'S FOLLOWERS — GAP REMAINS ABOUT THE SAME.

Majorities Generally Were Smaller in Case of Both Parties Than in Previous Elections—Polling Yesterday in 20 Provincial and 20 County Boroughs.

London, Dec. 8.—The political position today is:

	Elected
Unionists	188
Liberals	134
Labor and Socialists	24
Redmondites	46
O'Brienites	5

The gains are:

Unionists	19
Liberals	12
Labor and Socialists	4
Redmondites	0

The counties of England which voted yesterday remained staunch to the Unionist cause and the gap between the Coalition forces and the Unionists remained about the same today, the totals being.

Coalition 202; Unionists 189.

Opposition Unionists 189.

The Liberals evened up matters in Radnordshire, Sir F. Edwards turning the tables on S. Menables Llewellyn who had defeated him in the January elections.

The majorities in the counties general, were smaller in the cases of both the Liberals and the Unionists, but this is accounted for by the reduced total vote cast.

Interesting personalities among those whose election was announced today are Moreton, Frewen, who comes to House of Commons from Cork County to support Wm. O'Brien the Independent Nationalist leader; H. Spender Clay, for the Tonbridge division of Kent, and Lord Willoughby De Fresby, for the Hotnescastle division of Lincolnshire.

TURF CLUB AND FAIR DIRECTORS

Will Discuss Racing Matters in Peterborough—By-law to be Amended—Winter Racing Will be Taken Up.

The Directors of the Peterborough Industrial Fair will meet the shareholders of the Peterborough Turf Club in the Council Chamber today.

The fair directors own the track and the Turf Club has the racing charter. In order that successful races may be held the co-operation of the two bodies is essential and the discussion of winter races for Peterborough this year will be one of the features of the meeting.

When the Turf Club was organized a by-law was passed to the effect that the shareholders of the club must all be holders of liquor licenses but as it is the desire of the directorate that the club expand and that stock be sold to other than license holders, this restrictive clause will come up for discussion today and there is every probability that it will be removed.

Some of the directors will also likely be elected to the official board of the Turf Club.

THOUSANDS ARE FACING POVERTY

As a Result of Garment Workers' Strike in Chicago—Many Without Fuel or Light.

Chicago, Dec. 8.—Settlement workers who are in close touch with the striking garment workers declared today that 20,000 persons were on the verge of starvation as a result of the strike and the cold weather, and declared they feared that bread riots would result unless the trouble was settled soon.

Thousands of the strikers are facing eviction for not paying the rent, and in many houses the gas has been shut off, leaving them without light or fuel.

IS ETHEL LE NEVE ON POARD ZELAND?

Girl Closely Resembling Crippen's Typist Said to be Travelling to America—Will be Deported.

Boston, Dec. 8.—A girl closely resembling Miss Ethel LeNeve, who accompanied Dr. H. H. Crippen in his flight from London after he killed his wife, Belle Elmore, was reported to the immigration authorities to be on the incoming Red Star liner Zealand due here today.

Word had been sent to the authorities that Miss LeNeve was on the liner, travelling under an assumed name. The inspectors armed with photographs of the pretty typist awaited the arrival of the steamer.

If the girl proves to be Miss LeNeve, it is probable that steps will be taken to bar her from this country as an undesirabl citizen.

ALL PASSENGERS REACHED SHORE

Thirty-Nine Reported Missing on the Blackburn Arrive Safely in Boats.

London, Dec. 8.—The steamer Blackburn was rammed and sunk by the steamer Rook early today off the Norfolk coast, and the 56 persons on board the lost ship were thrown in peril of their lives. Thirty-nine of them were missing for a number of hours and it was feared that they were lost, but they all reached the shore later in the Blackburn's boats.

WOMAN CAME OUT OVER WINTER TRAIL

Made Trip in Nineteen Days' Travelling—Parties Laden with Bullion.

Seward, Alaska, Dec. 8.—Seven persons including one woman, the first to come over the winter trail, arrived yesterday from Innoke and Iditard districts having made the trip in 19 days actual travelling time and the party reports that more than five hundred people are coming out this winter, bringing several hundred thousand dollars in bullion. Several consignments of gold from the Iditard district for Seattle banks have already been dispatched by dog sleds.

Wife Has Mr. George Ruskin in Court

Toronto, Dec. 8.—George Buskin has arrived at a late stage in life to have domestic inefficity. Though grey haired and of considerable age he ventured in matrimony a year ago This morning the wife, of about equal age and quaintly garbed, came before Magistrate Denison to charge her husband with non-support. Buskin is prominently known all through the northern country and among the lumber districts as a distributor of Bibles.

Immediately Buskin doubted the genuineness of their marriage, but seemingly the other party was prepared for this. She had a package of papers, one was a marriage certificate signed by the Rev. J. E. Storr, the other a divorce from her former husband to whom she had been married to in Bristol 33 years ago and had parted with in Kansas. Later she said, he had died.

With this difficulty removed there appeared another trouble which had been mentioned to Crown Attorney Corley.

"He says," stated that official, "that he fears you are insane, and that he has offered to send you to the asylum for examination."

"Well, I've worked for thirty-three doctors," she declared, "and though three said I wasn't right, seven said I was sane."

An adjournment till Monday was granted to allow further investigation.

O'Brien's Message To British People

London, Dec. 8.—Messrs. O'Brien and Healy have issued the following message to the British people, with reference to the elections in Cork:—

"Cork has declared itself emphatically for a policy conciliating our Protestant fellow-countrymen, for uniting all ranks and classes in an appeal to the good feeling of the English people in favor of financial justice to Ireland, for the re-establishment of land purchase, and for the handing over to friendly united Ireland legislative control of their own domestic affairs."

7,900 MEN ARE REMOVING SNOW

The Beautiful Being Carted Away in New York and Dumped into the Rivers.

New York, Dec. 8.—An army of 8000 men today began removing the traces of yesterday's blizzard. Two thousand trucks and wagons carried away the snow and dumped it into Hudson and East Rivers. Traffic conditions today were reported much better than yesterday. All night 3500 men of the Street Cleaning Department worked clearing off crossings on the most important streets and opening a way to the ferries and to the bridge approaches.

Hundreds were assigned to districts about Forty-second streets and Broadway and the financial centres, and had much of the snow out of the way before daylight.

Belleville Firm Loses Sleighs and Cutters—Loss is $2,500.

Belleville, Dec. 8.—At a late hour last night fire did considerable damage to a livery stable in this city conducted by William Brichman and Ed. Cronkrite. Horses and wheeled vehicles were taken out, but sleighs and cutters stored on the ground floor were damaged. The building, partially frame and brick, was owned by Mr. B. May, of this city. Loss is on building and contents probably $2,500, covered by insurance.

WIT AND HUMOR.

The lightning rod agent stopped before the farmhouse and addressed the old man who was sitting in the doorway sharpening his jack-knife.

"Anything doing in my line to-day, sir?" he asked.

"I dunno. What's your line?" asked the farmer.

"Lightning rods," said the agent.

"What good be they?" demanded the farmer.

"They'll save your house from ketching fire if it's struck," explained the agent hopefully.

"Git out o' here, gol dern ye!" cried the farmer, wrathfully. "I bin pavin' seven dollars a year insurance on this here shack o' mine for the last ten years and nuthin's happened yet. My luck's bad enough as it is without your addin' to it with your pesky old fandangoes. How d'ye think I'll ever git my money back with one o' them things around."—Judge.

EDISON'S FIRST JOB.

Mr. Thomas A. Edison modestly claims that he owes much of his success to luck.

"One day," says Mr. Edison, "when tramping the streets of New York, without a cent in my pocket, I happened on a telegraph-office, which had about five hundred subscribers. I was standing beside the telegraph apparatus, when it gave a terrific riproar, and stopped. In a few moments hundreds of messenger-boys were yelling for someone to fix the tickers.

"I stepped in, and moved a loose spring that had fallen between the wheels.

"Next day I was appointed to take charge of the service at three hundred dollars a month."

But this was due to something more than luck.

WESTERN MILLING CAPACITY.

It is officially announced by the elevator commissioner that the flour milling capacity of the West is as follows; Winnipeg to Lake Superior, 35,000 barrels; west of Winnipeg, 20,000 barrels; total, 55,000 barrels. Elevator capacity figures are: Head of lakes, 25,000,000 bushels; interior, 15,000,000 bushels; a total of 87,000,000 bushels.

Popular Majority is Now About 94,360

Coalition Vote Fell Away by 125,126—Decline in the Unionist Vote Reached 90,608 Compared With Last January.

London, Dec. 8.—The votes cast for the coalition so far total 1,174,612, as against 1,299,738 in January for the same divisions. The Unionists polling 1,080,850 as against 1,171,538 in the last general election. In other words the Coalition has so far a popular majority of 94,362, but this might have been nearly wiped out if the government had not allowed a great many Unionist seats, where the majorities were large against them, to go by default. The coalition vote fell off in the ridings that polled by 125,126. The Unionist vote declined by 90,608.

FLUCTUATING FORTUNES.

The fluctuations of fortune in the elections favored the opposition last night, but the Liberals won two more seats in London, thus putting them in a majority so far as the metropolis is concerned. They lost six in the country. The great surprise was Curdiff, where the son of the Marquis of Bute, with his powerful family influence, won handsomely against the Liberal. The latter's main qualification, however, was a recent heavy subscription to the party funds. He had only been a fortnight in the constituency which his opponent nursed assiduously. The result in this cosmmopolitan seaport will not affect Wales as a whole.

Beresford's triumph at Portsmouth is again a popular one, as the Liberals admit Condor Charlie unbeatable in the naval port.

Tried to Kidnap His Mother--Was Arrested

Niagara Falls, Dec. 8.—Oliver Crysler assisted by Benjamin and John Brownson, drove across the bridge in a small rig and went out to the Wool trough farm near Stamford, and there kidnapped Crysler's mother, Mrs. Candis Cook. The two brothers sat on either side of the old lady, and her son sat on her knee to hold her down. When they came to the lower steel bridge Officers Kelly and Delaney met ced Mrs. Cook wriggling and struggling and halted the party, arresting the three men. They were all taken before Magistrate Fraser, and the charge of kidnapping was laid However, the mother, when she realized the seriousness of the charge, begged to have it changed. They were then charged with assault, and Crysler was fined twenty dollars and costs and each of the Brownson brothers was assessed ten dollars and costs. Mrs. Cook said they wanted her because her brother had died in South Dakota recently, leaving considerable property, to which she was one of the heirs. The men did not deny her story.

STEAMER DUNELM WENT ASHORE

Fort William, Dec. 8.—The first serious accident of the season to any Canadian boat at the head of the lakes occurred early yesterday morning when the steamer Duneim, bound for Goderich with grain, went ashore on rocks at Blake's Point on Isle Royale, 46 miles out from Fort William.

Tugs have been dispatched to the spot from Port Arthur, but a wireless message received at midnight said that they could not then approach the stricken vessel, as the seas were running too heavily, but that they would stand by through the night and hoped it would be possible to commence operations with the coming of the day.

The unlucky vessel is owned by the Inland Navaigation Co. of Hamilton, and left harbor at Port Arthur at 11.30 Tuesday night, with 105,000 bushels of wheat and flour. She had cleared before midnight as her insurance expired half an hour later.

She was closely followed by the Squires, which is reported to have sent a message to Mr J. P. Jones, of the Empire Elevator. The message came to hand about half an hour after midday, and the Canadian Towing and Wrecking Company's tug Whalen and the derrick scow Empire were on the scene of the wreck in short order.

AN EXPOSED POSITION.

The point where the steamer lies is very dangerous, probably the spot where the Monarch went ashore a couple of years ago. It is exposed to the sea from three directions. Captain Alvinston, who is in command of the Dunelm, is one of the oldest mariners in the afrvice of the lakes. The Dunelm was on her last trip to the East, where she was to winter.

At noon today no word had been received as to whether the wrecking outfit had succored the Dunelm, but the indications were of heavy seas which may prevent the tugs approaching the steamer, and if the vessel is in an exposed position, as is feared she might break up, otherwise she may soon be frozen in, in which case her cargo at least could be saved during the winter. It is believed the crew has been taken off.

CARGO IS INSURED.

Kingston, Ont., Dec. 8.—The cargo in the steamer Dunelm, in danger of breaking up on Lake Superior, is owned by James, Richardson & Sons of this city, and was the last cargo the company was handling from Fort William this navigation season. The cargo is fully insured.

WITHDRAWAL OF FLEET.

The Halifax Herald says that Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in referring to the withdrawal of the British fleets from Halifax and Esquimalt accuses Great Britain of deserting Canada. The language used by the premier shows that no such charge was used.

Today these ships have been withdrawn from our ports and we have no cause for complaint because their departure has been the confirmation of our autonomy. The Mother Country has shown such confidence in our loyalty that she has handed to us her arsenals, her supplies, and her fortifications, and it is for the Canadian people to look after their own protection just as they make their own laws, their own commercial arrangements with other countries, and as they tax as they like products imported into their own country, even if they are manufactured by Great Britain herself.

The Herald says, what is doubtless true, that the withdrawal of the ships was part of a general plan of concentration. We in Canada were perfectly satisfied that Great Britain should carry out her own plans as to mobilizing her fleet so as to serve the whole Empire. At the same time the withdrawal of the ships does cast upon us the duty of attending to our own coast line, and thus leaving Great Britain free to carry out her plans, relieved from anxiety as to this part of the Empire.

This, as the premier points out, is a distinct advance in autonomy. We are now paying for and controlling a service which was once provided for us. This is a necessary incident of growth, and a matter for congratulation, something is gone to the cilasters to tion complaint.

HIGH SCHOOL PROGRESS.

High School progress in Ontario is well brought out by some figures given in the Toronto Star, which show the growing appreciation of secondary education. The attendance at these secondary schools has increased nearly sixfold since 1867, while Public School attendance has not increased much above 18 per cent in the same period. In 1867 there were 5696 pupils, in 1887 there were 17,450, on 1908 there were 31,912. Some indication of the palatial character of the collegiate Institute and High School now being erected is gained from the amounts expended for sites and buildings, which were $193,000 in 1907 and $272,900 in 1908. In 1892, for instance the expenditure for this purpose was $91,108. Another indication of progress is the sum paid by the pupils for fees. In 1867 $15,600 was obtained from fees, while in 1908 the school fees yielded over $145,000. The revenue for school purposes has greatly increased in forty years from $139,500 to over $2,000,000.

THE TYRANNY OF LABOR.

The strike of the labor trust against the express company trusts in New York was at one time very serious. Sympathetic strikes were declared and the chief sufferers were imposed on the innocent. Class tyranny a few weeks ago threatened the existence of the French republic, but Briand has won against socialistic obstruction. The boycott by Standard Oil and other [illegible] as well as the [illegible] are evidences of the organization of capitalistic monopoly. It is now imperative that the mob in the streets be prevented so far as is possible by growth of a healthy and just spirit between the worker and his employer but by the strong arm of the law if necessary. The man who wants to be free even if he isn't a trust, condemns such combinations of capital and labor as seek to dictate and tyrannize the conditions under which production shall be conducted. The strikers in New York insist that nobody shall have a right to work in the express business unless he pays tribute to a trust and identifies himself therewith. As less than 10 per cent. of American workers are in a trust the sympathetic strike is a demand that the ten per cent organized shall dictate to the ninety per cent unorganized.

The quicker a cold is gotten rid of evident leader of the band, talving the less the danger from pneumonia and other serious diseases. Mr. B. W. L. Hall, of Waverly, Va., says: "I firmly believe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to be absolutely the best preparation on the market for colds. I have recommended it to my friends and they all agree with me." For sale by all dealers.

THE RED YEAR

—By—

LOUIS TRACY.

(CONLINUED.)

In the bazaar, soldiers were on parade, judges were sitting in the courts of the cutcherry, and the European housewives of the station were making their morning purchases of food for breakfast and dinner, when some of the loungers on the river-side wall saw groups of horsemen raising the dust on the Meerut road beyond the bridge of boats which spanned the Jumna.

The word went round that something unusual had happened. Already the idlers had noted the arrival of a dust-laden royal carriage, which crossed the pontoons at breakneck speed and entered by the Calcutta Gate. That incident, trivial in itself, became important when those hard-riding horsemen came in sight. The political air was charged with electricity. None knew whether it would end in summer lightning or in a tornado, so there was much running to and fro, and gesticulations, and excited whisperings among those watchers on the walls.

Vague murmurs of doubt and suspicion reached the ears of two of the British magistrates. They hurriedly adjourned the cases they were trying and sent for their horses. One rode hard to the cantonment and told Brigadier Graves what he had seen and heard; the other, knowing the immense importance of the chief magazine, went there to warn Lieutenant Willoughby, the officer in charge.

Here, then, in Delhi, were men of prompt decision, but the troops on whom they could have depended were forty miles away in Meerut, in that never-to-be-forgotten divouac. Meanwhile, the vanguard of the Meerut rebels had arrived. Mostly troopers of Malcolm's regiment, with some few sepoys who had stolen ponies on the way, they crossed the Jumna, some going straight to the palace by way of the bridge of boats, while others forded the river to the south and made for the gaol, where, as usual, they released the prisoners. This trick of emptying the penitentiaries was more adroit than it seems at first sight. Not only were the mutineers sure of obtaining hearty assistance in their campaign of robbery and murder, but every gaol-bird headed direct for his native town as soon as he was gorged with plunder. There was no better means of disseminating the belief that the British power had crumbled to atoms. The convicts boasted that they had been set free by the rebels; they paraded their ill-gotten gains and incited ignorant villagers to emulate the example of the towns. Thus a skilful and damaging blow was struck at British prestige. Neither Mohammedan moullah nor Hindu fakir carried such conviction to ill-informed minds as the appearance of some known malefactor decked out in the jewels and trinkets of murdered Englishwomen.

By his side stood his youngest daughter, the Roshinara Begum. Her eyes were blazing with triumph, yet her lips curved with contempt at the attitude of her trembling father.

"You see!" she cried. "Have I not spoken truly? These are the men who sacked Meerut. Scarce a Feringhi lives there save those whom I have saved to good purpose. Admit your troops! Proclaim yourself their ruler. A moment's firmness will win back your empire."

The aged monarch now that the hour was at hand that astrologers had predicted and his courtiers had promised for many a year faltered his dread lest they were not all committing a great mistake.

"This is no women's work" he protested. "Where are my sons? Where is the Shahzada, Mirza Mogul?"

She knew. The heir apparent and his brothers were cowering in fear, afraid to strike, yet hoping that others would strike for them. She almost dragged her father to the front of the balcony. The troopers recognized him with a fierce shout. A hundred sabers were waved frantically.

"Help us, O King!" they cried. "We pray your help in our fight for the faith!"

Captain Douglas, commandant of the palace guards hearing the uproar, ran to the King. He did not notice the girl Roshinara, who stood there like a caged tigress.

"How dare you intrude on the King's privacy?" he cried, striving to overawe the rebels by his cool demeanor. "You must lay down your arms if you wish his Majesty's clemency. He is here in person and that is his command."

A yell of defiance greeted his words. The Begum made a signal with her hand which was promptly understood. Away clattered the troopers towards the Raj Ghat Gate. There they were admitted without parley. The city hell hounds sprang to meet them and the slaughter of inoffensive Europeans began in Darya Ganj.

It was soon in full swing. The vile deeds of the night at Meerut were re-enacted in the vivid sunlight at Delhi. Leaving their willing allies to carry sword and torch through the small community in that quarter the sowars rode to the Lahore Gate of the palace. It was thrown open by the King's guards and dependents. Captain Douglas, and the Commissioner, Mr. Fraser, made vain appeals to men whose knees would have trembled at their frown a few minutes earlier. Thinking to escape and summon assistance from the cantonment, Douglas mounted the wall and leaped into the moat. He broke one, if not both, of his legs. Some scared coolies lifted him and carried him back to the interior of the palace. Fraser tried to protect him while he was being taken to his apartments over the Lahore Gate, but a jeweler from the bazaar stabbed the Commissioner and he was killed by the guards. Then the mob rushed upstairs and massacred the collector, the chaplain, the chaplain's daughter, a lady who was their guest and the injured Douglas.

Another dreadful scene was enacted in the Delhi Bank. The manager and his brave wife, assisted by a few friends who happened to be in the building at the moment, made a stubborn resistance, but they were all cut down. The masters in the Government colleges were surprised and murdered in their class-rooms. The missionaries, whether European or

OUR GROWING TRADE.

Canada's trade during the first seven months of the present fiscal year has increased at the rate of nearly ten million dollars a month, the total increase being $66,489,552. For October the increase was $10,602,361. Imports and exports for the seven months totalled $433,297,034 an increase over last year of $66,489,442, or about nineteen per cent. Imports totalled $262,685,148, an increase of $58,010,756, or twenty seven per cent. Exports totalled $170,611,886, an increase of $8,468,107. For October imports amounted to $39,218,501 and exports to $33,801,256, increases respectively of $7,714,541 and $2,857,823.

THE FRENCH POPULATION.

The French-speaking population is increasing and the English-speaking decreasing in the Eastern Townships. This was shown very conclusively at Bedford, Que., when the school commissioners of the township sold three buildings that had formly been used as English-speaking schools. The reason for disposing of them was that there were no scholars. The English-speaking farmers are selling out to the French and going West. The section of the township refered to was formerly wholly occupied by English-speaking people.

"THE KLONDYKE'S MOTHER LODE"

The storehouse from which the famous placer creeks, Bonanza and Eldorado, receive their fabulous wealth, have been uncovered on the claims of The Victoria Gulch Mines, situated on the ridge at the head of Victoria and Gay gulches. The company's holdings consist of four quartz claims and about 200 acres 14 miles from Dawson, on a good wagon road and two miles from the Klondyke Mines R.R. There are two true quartz veins, between perfect walls 6 and 10 feet wide on the property, the free milling ore from which is literally encrusted with the yellow metal. Read what some of the world's greatest authorities say:

R. G. McConnell, B.A., of the Geological Survey, says in his report on the Klondyke Goldfields,

"A sample in which no free gold could be detected with the naked eye, or an ordinary magnifying glass, was assayed in the laboratory of the survey and gave 2.625 oz. of gold and 3.267 oz. of silver to the ton."

Pro. Henry A. Mairs, D. Sc. F.R.S., Waynflete, Professor of Mineralogy in the University of Oxford, in collaboration with Professor A. P. Coleman in a report to the Minister of the Interior, says: "At the head of Victoria Gulch which runs into Bonanza, a creek opposite Gay Gulch, a tributary of Eldorado, and at a height of about 2,300 feet above Dawson, has been opened, what appears to be a true quartz vein, showing nuggety gold in abundance. The gold is distinctly crystalline in character, and the crystals are of a peculiar form having a triangular outline due to the fact that they are octahedra, and in particular a remarkable variety known as "spinel twins." Now it is significant that the gold found in Victoria gulch is also crystalline and has the same characteristic outline, here then we have fairly convincing evidence that the gold found in a stream gravel is identical with that found in situ in a quartz at the head of the valley and in this instance there can be little doubt as to the origin of the gold."

Dr. Eugene Haanel, Director of Mines, a noted authority on mineralogy in a report to the department in 1902, says: "Masses of quartz were seen protruding from the surface all about the locality, and it needed only to wet the surface of the quartz with water to reveal the bright specks of gold adhering to their surface.

"Gay gulch and Victoria gulch, the former a tributary of Eldorado creek, the latter of Bonanza creeks, limit Victoria Hill toward the sources of Bonanza and Eldorado creeks. Above Victoria and Gay gulches, Bonanza and Eldorado creeks respectively are unproductive, below these gulches the creeks are rich. It seems a reasonable conclusion that the gold in these creeks, at least as far as they flank the side of Victoria Hill, was derived from Victoria Hill."

Mr. R. W. Brock, Director Geological Survey, says: "The district is not glaciated. Gold in the recent gravel freshly derived from its original source is similar to gold in the corresponding White Channel gravel. Many of the gold grains and most of the nuggets enclose quartz. Quartz pebbles are found containing gold, some at least very rich in gold. The quartz of the boulders is similar to the quartz of the veins, and gold of the veins to gold of the gravels. From the foregoing and other facts, it is obvious that the gold is absolutely local in origin, derived from the basins of the pay gulches and creeks."

Fred. T. Congdon, Member for the Yukon, stated on the floor of the House of Commons last January that some of the richest gold quartz in the world was being mined close to Dawson.

Just stop and think of the immense possibilities of rich returns from the development of the claims of The Victoria Gulch mines, when two miles of the Mother Lode runs through the property from which the $35,000,000 in placer gold has been taken from Eldorado and Bonanza creeks, the one-third the Klondyke's entire output. 100,000 shares of treasury stock of the par value of $1 is now offered for public subscription at 25 cents per share fully paid and non-assessable.

No further issue of treasury stock will have to be made at this price.

POTATO HARVESTERS

The Irish Colony of Diggers in the Land o' Burns

The Ayrshire farmers are jubilant over the prospect of securing an abundant potato harvest. A big army of Irish diggers is now at work getting out the "murphies" to send off to the London markets. In the neighborhood of Girvan there are over 2,000 acres under cultivation in farms ranging from 50 to 350 acres, and in a few cases reaching 400 acres.

With the advent of the potato harvest comes regularly the influx of Irish laborers, who visit Scotland year after year to assist the farmers of Ayrshire and other counties in the ingathering of the crops. Great numbers of these people come from the Achill Islands, to the West of Mayo, and the Aran Islands, in Galway Bay. They are a hardy, peaceable and industrious race, and are supposed to be the descendants of an aboriginal Irish tribe, who through the ages of unceasing turmoil in "the distressful country," remained undisturbed in their island homes. They speak the purest Gaelic.

The diggers are, as a rule, paid at the rate of $1 a "double gray" that is, for each couple working ten hours a day, digging and lifting in turns. When the work is finished in one district they remove to places where the crops ripen later.

CAPTAIN'S DEATH VIGIL

THE THOUGHTFUL STORK

On a tree close to a house, within a short distance of a river or canal, there was a stork's nest, with young ones. The roof of the house caught fire one day, and though the [illegible] did not actually reach the tree, the heat became scorching. So the mother stork flew down to the water, got into it and drenched her breast; then, returning to her young, she spread the mass of cooool, wet feathers all over them. This she repeated over and over again, flying to the river, going down in the water and returning, her plumage drenched with wet. And thus the nest was saved, and the tender nestlings were preserved alive until the fire had been got under control and all was safe. The truth of this remarkable story was vouched for by more than one eyewitness.

KING EDWARD'S JOKE

King Edward's good nature was illustrated by a London correspondent at the Press Club in New York.

"The King," said the correspondent, "was visiting Rufford Abbey, and one morning, in company with his host, Lord Arthur Savile, he took a walk over the preserves.

"Suddenly, Lord Arthur, a big, burly man, rushed forward and seized a shabby fellow with a dead pheasant protruding from the breast of his coat.

"'Sir,' said Lord Arthur to the King, 'this fellow is a bad egg. This is the second time I've caught him poaching.'

"But the King's handsome face beamed, and he laughed his gay and tolerant laugh.

"'Oh, let him go,' he said. 'If he really were a bad egg, you know, he wouldn't poach.'"

SAGACITY OF A DOG

Several months ago a dog was obtained from a Tarport lady and taken by its new owner by steamer and train to Clydebank. The animal has just turned up at its former home on Lochfyneside in a much exhausted condition, but showing unmistakable signs of its joy at meeting old friends. As it was not observed in any of the steamers and arrived very late at night, the inference is that it journeyed all the way from the city overland, 100 miles. The mystery is how it found its way back alone by a circuitous and almost trackless route around the heads of the long Clyde lochs.

RHODES AND THE CHIEFS

How He Made Truce With the Matabele Chiefs Who Laid Their Arms at His Feet

One who had been a trooper in the British camp at the time, in pointing out the site of Rhodes's tent and of the meeting with the Matabele chiefs, told us the story as it struck "the man who was there," but seeing things from the outside only. He told how Rhodes had lived for six weeks in his isolated tent. "Then," said he "one evening Mr. Rhodes was talking with Baden-Powell and some of them and he said to them, 'I believe the Matabele are as tired of the war as we are, and if some one of importance would just walk over unarmed to their camp and offer them favorable conditions of peace, they would come in.' And the others said that was all very well, but who was going to do it? Mr. Rhodes didn't make any answer to that, but next morning we couldn't find him in his tent, nor yet in the camp.

"There was a rare hunt for Mr. Rhodes, and at last it came out that he had gone over to the Matabele camp with three of his friends, and was making peace with the chiefs." Not with such dramatic suddenness as appeared to the outsider did Rhodes, in fact, perform his deed of derring-do. He had succeeded in putting himself in some sort of communication with the Matabele, and doubtless did not go to their camp without a reasonable hope of success in his mission, at least for a safe conduct due to him and his three companions Colebrander, Fraser, and Scott. To the conduct of a barbarous people who behold an enemy in their power is always incalculable. One can fancy, no doubt, a host of splendid fighting men, muscles of steel and limbs of smoothest bronze, with shield and assegais, and all their war gear, gathered on the hillside in the early morning sunlight, watching the approach of the White Chief and his little band. So he came and stood among them—totally unarmed, alone except for his interpreter and two other men, who carried no arms except revolvers.

There passed first the elaborate courtesies of savage greetings, and then the indaba began. First the White Chief inquired what were those grievances against his people for which they had gone to war. This seeming pleased the indunas who explained their grievances at length when he had listened to all and promised redress. He addressed them in his turn, reproving them sternly for their cruelties to women and children. At length he asked the momentous question, "Is it to be peace or war?" and the chiefs advancing laid their assegais at his feet. The war was ended.

Rhodes was almost completely silent during his walk back to the British camp. But once he spoke, and touched a string that vibrates. "It is scenes like this," he said, "which make life worth living." It was a scene like this which made him worthy of his high and solemn grave. His grave is cut three feet deep in the smooth granite of a small natural platform. Enormous boulders stand about it, in a circle, broken on the side towards the valley, where the kopje falls most precipitously, so as to give there a broad clear sweep of distant view.—From "Pastels under the Southern Cross," in the Cornhill Ma[illegible]

WONDERFUL CALMNESS

Wife of Condemned Man Thus Describes Him on Her Final Visit

On the afternoon previous to the hanging of John Alexander Dickman, at Newcastle-on-Tyne, for the murder of his cashier, his wife had a final interview with him. She arrived at the gaol in a cab, accompanied by her young daughter, a little boy, and a female friend.

The interview lasted three-quarters of an hour. At the end Mrs. Dickman was led away to a cab in a state of collapse.

Mrs. Dickman afterwards informed a Press representative that she found her husband wonderfully calm. He talked quietly and deliberately of the future of her and the children. He protested his entire innocence, and hoped in time it would be demonstrated.

No one knew, he said, when they were to be born into the world, and it was not everyone's privilege to know when they were going to die—though he did. Fate, he remarked, had ordained that that was the way in which he had to leave the world, and his wife and family must not grieve about it. It could not be helped.

He added that he was dead to everything now and appeared to be in his tomb. Speaking to them from beyond the grave he again protested his innocence of the crime for which he was about to die, and hoped in time that people would know the wrong that had been done to him. He hoped evidence would come to light to show what an outrage had been committed by his having been condemned to die.

Speaking of his son, Harry, he enjoined him never to mix up in bad company, and counselled clean living in both body and mind. He hoped someone would take an interest in the boy, and also expressed his wishes for the welfare of his wife and daughter. Dickman remarked that he felt so well in body that it seemed a shame he should have to die.

Mrs. Dickman added that her husband's calmness was wonderful to behold and buoyed her up for the interview.

As a final request she asked that her husband might be allowed to be brought round to kiss his children for the last time through the grating, but the request was not acceded to.

The interview ended by her husband wishing his wife and family good bye and then walking quietly away.

EPSOM SALTS

A distinguished foreigner visiting Epsom Downs in Thackeray's company, noticed many men dressed as sailors who were not, to native and experienced eyes, the real article. "Ah," said the visitor, "these are, I suppose, what you call your British tars?" "Oh, no," replied Thackeray, "Only Epsom salts."

A sale of useful and fancy articles and also home made cake and candy will be held in St. Paul's schoolroom, Saturday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock.

Hockey Meeting.

All junior hockey players are reminded of the meeting to be held at Brock street rink tonight, for the purpose of considering plans for the season and selecting players on the Junior C.H.A. team for this year. Practice will start the first of next week.

Quebec Heaters For Sale.

On account of the installing of the heating system in The Times' building, the four Quebec heaters, so well known, are for sale. These stoves are as good as new, and will be sold at less than half price. Also about 100 lengths of pipe, also practically as good as new, at four cents per length.

Scotch Tea Supplies.

It is evident that there will be plenty of provisions on hand for the boys at the Scotch tea to be given at the Gospel Hall this evening. One gentleman sent 100 tarts and a lady in the south end donates 100 buns. Many others will also contribute.

Boys' Work Conference.

The International Boys' Work Secretary, Mr. F. H. Ritchie, is visiting the Y.M.C.A. and will address the Sunday school superintendent's of the city and representatives of the boys' organizations tonight in the interests of the Boys' Work Conference to be held at Ottawa from Dec. 30th to Jan. 2nd.

Lovely Christmas Cards at 10c per dozen. The Times' Bookstore.

New Dam Finished.

The construction work on the new dam on the old river channel at Rosedale has been completed, and the structure is said to be the best on the Trent Canal. The dam, which is 250 feet long was commenced last spring by Randolph McDonald & Co. contractors. Six hundred sacks of cement were used in the construction work. There are four spill ways, 25 feet each, between the piers and a 77 foot waste pier. A splendid concrete foot walk has also been erected and a reinforced stoplog platform. The dam and locks have been turned over to the Government and the blasting, drilling and dredging will be undertaken next year.

W. A. A. Musicale.

A treat for the people of Peterborough has been arranged by the ladies of the Women's Art Association. It will take the form of a musicale to be given on Saturday afternoon, December 10th, from 4 to 5.30 p.m. This is an innovation in Peterborough, and the ladies of the W.A.A. hope to be encouraged in their effort to provide an entertainment of high, artistic merit. The general public are earnestly requested to avail themselves of the treat offered them on Saturday afternoon.

NOTICE !

All persons having in their possession books belonging to the Public Library which have been retained for a month or over are requested to kindly return them as soon as possible to the Library, Water Street, for purposes of cataloging and classification.

SCHEDULE

made in duplicate this.....day of .....in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and .....

BETWEEN:

THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF PETERBOROUGH (hereinafter called the "Corporation") of the First Part,

and CHARLES E. DITTMAN of the Town of Waynesburg in the State of Pennsylvania, one of the United States of America,

of the Second Part

WHEREAS the party of the Second Part and his associates have represented to the Council of the said Corporation that they propose to make tests and borings in the vicinity of the City of Peterborough for the purpose of ascertaining if sufficient natural gas can be obtained to enable them to supply the inhabitants of the City with the same for domestic and manufacturing purposes and have requested the said Council to agree that in case within one year from the date hereof such natural gas should be found in sufficient quantities for the purposes aforesaid to grant to the party of the Second Part or his assigns or a company to be hereafter formed the right to use the streets and public lanes in the said City for laying pipes thereon for the purpose of supplying such natural gas to those who may become consumers thereof and in the opinion of the Council of the said Corporation it is desirable and in the public interest if the said party of the Second Part or his assigns or the said Company performs, fulfils and keeps the covenants and agreements hereafter contained to grant such request upon and subject to the terms and conditions hereinafter mentioned.

THIS AGREEMENT THEREFORE WITNESSETH that in pursuance of the premises and the agreement on behalf of the Corporation hereinafter contained the party of the Second Part for himself and his assigns hereby covenants and agrees with the Corporation as follows:

1. THAT he and his associates will as soon as possible and not later than the first day of March, 1911, commence and thereafter continue boring operations within the County of Peterborough and within one year from the date hereof will spend at least Six Thousand dollars ($6,000) in same and take such other action as may be necessary to ascertain within said time if a sufficient supply of gas for the purposes aforesaid can be obtained in the vicinity of the City of Peterborough and will use due diligence in prosecuting the said work and endeavoring to procure and furnish natural gas, and will within said term of one year from the date hereof furnish the Corporation with evidence satisfactory to the Corporation that said sum of $6,000 has been expended for the purposes aforesaid and said work has been continuously prosecuted and in default of such evidence being furnished it shall be prima facie taken that the same has not been done.

2. THAT if such natural gas sufficient for the purposes aforesaid is found, the party of the Second Part and his associates or a company to be hereafter formed will within two years from the date hereof lay the necessary pipes from the source of the supply of such natural gas to the City of Peterborough and do such other works as may be necessary to supply and will supply the inhabitants of the said City with the same within said two years.

3. THAT the pressure under which such natural gas shall be supplied shall be not less than four ounces per square inch at the meter of the consumer and the price to be charged therefore under said pressure shall therefor under said pressure shall not exceed fifty cents per one thousand cubic feet for domestic use nor twenty-five cents per one thousand cubic feet for manufacturing purposes.

4. THAT at all times a good and efficient service will be furnished and gas supplied to the inhabitants of the said City desiring to use the said natural gas so long as there is a sufficient supply for the said purpose, and the users of said gas for domestic purposes shall have at all times the first right to the said gas and manufacturers shall be entitled only to any surplus that may remain after all users of said gas for domestic purposes have been supplied.

5. THAT in case the said party of the Second Part or his assigns or the Company to be hereafter formed for the purposes aforesaid shall fail to start said boring operations on or before the 1st day of March, 1911, and within one year from the date hereof expend the said sum of $6,000 therein and shall have found natural gas sufficient for the purposes aforesaid or should fail to install the said system and furnish the said natural gas within two years from the date hereof or if the operations for either of said purposes are abandoned, stopped, or suspended for a period of two months at any time then in any of said events, any rights and privileges hereby granted or agreed to be granted by the Corporation shall ipso facto cease and be at an end and the said party of the Second Part or his assigns or the said Company shall not nor shall either of them enjoy, acquire or be entitled to the right to use the streets and lanes of the said city for the purposes aforesaid or, any of them and should the said party of the Second Part or his assigns or the said Company at any time after such installation fail to operate said system and furnish gas as aforesaid, provided such failure to operate is not caused by strikes, accidents or unforseen or inevitable casualty and in that case not exceeding thirty days, or should sell natural gas to any other person, persons or company and a higher price is charged to consumers for it than is provided for in this agreement, or should enter into a combination or amalgamation with or an arrangement or agreement for sharing or dividing profits or sell out to any other person or company doing a like business in the City of Peterborough, then in any of said events the right to use the streets and lanes of the City of Peterborough and all rights and privileges hereunder shall ipso facto cease, or in case of the breach of any of the other terms hereof, then the right to use the streets and lanes of the said City and all rights and privileges hereunder shall, after notice has been given by the Corporation of the default and the same has not been remedied within two months after the notice has been given, ipso facto cease.

6. THAT before the said party of the Second Part of his assigns or any company formed as aforesaid shall lay, relay or change any pipes for the distribution of natural gas on any of the streets or public lanes in the said City an application accompanied by a plan and profile shall be furnished the City Engineer showing the purposed location of the said pipes on the said streets or lanes or parts of said streets or lanes on which it is desired to lay such pipes and the approval of the Engineer shall be obtained before any work is done, and unless such application is furnished before the first day of April in any year no pipes shall be laid, relaid or changed or any of the said streets or lanes during that year without the express consent of the Council being first obtained and no such pipes shall be laid without such consent being first obtained and wherever practicable the lanes shall be used for such purpose instead of the streets—provided however that in case it is necessary to make connections from the pipes already laid to the street line of the property of any person desiring to use the said natural gas and at least three days previous notice in writing is given to the said Engineer designating the connections it is desired to put in and his approval is obtained thereto such connections may be made, and all such connections shall be put as nearly as possible at right angles to the street line, and provided further that in the event of any leaks occurring in the pipes, repairs to prevent same may be made after notice to the said Engineer either by telephone or letter and in case of notice by telephone the same shall the same day be confirmed by letter to the Engineer.

7. THAT all said works shall be done under the control and to the satisfaction of the Engineer and the person or company doing the same shall not do unnecessary damage to or incumber or obstruct the streets or lanes on which said work is being done, and shall preserve a free and uninterrupted passage for persons and vehicles on the said streets and lanes, while the work is in progress, and shall place guards or fences at the openings and at night place lighted lamps on same and take all other necessary precautions for the prevention of accidents to persons using the said streets or lanes and shall finish the work with expedition and at once replace the soil and immediately restore the streets and lanes to as good a condition as they were in before the said work was commenced and will lay the said pipes and connections so that the same will not interfere with, obstruct, injure or damage the Corporation's sewers, water-pipes, water tables, drainage and other Corporation works or the private property of any person, firm or corporation.

8. THAT the person or company doing or operating the said work and supplying said natural gas shall and will indemnify and save harmless and keep indemnified and harmless the said Corporation from all claims, actions, damages, loss, costs and expenses whatever arising or occurring by reason of the construction, maintaining, repairing or operating the said system or in any way connected therewith or relating thereto or resulting from or rising out of the same or by reason or on account of any matter or thing done permitted or omitted to be done by the said person or company under or by reason of this agreement, or the failure or neglect of the said person or company to do or perform anything which he or the said Company is by agreement or by law required to do or perform and will pay to any person firm or body corporate any damages, such person, firm or body corporate may sustain in consequence of any act omission or default of the said person or company doing or operating the said work or supplying said natural gas.

9. THAT if required by the Corporation the Street Commissioner or some other officer appointed by the Council shall be appointed to superintend the opening and filling in the trenches and replacing the soil and restoring the streets and lanes to their proper condition and the person or company doing said work shall on demand pay the reasonable expenses of such superintendence.

AND THIS AGREEMENT FURTHER WITNESSETH that in consideration of the premises the said Corporation hereby agrees with the said party of the Second Part and his assigns that provided natural gas sufficient for the purposes above mentioned is sought, found and supplied in the manner and within the times above mentioned and he or his assigns or a Company to be hereafter formed for the purposes aforesaid performs, fulfils and keeps the covenants and agreements above set out on the part of the party of the Second Part or his assigns or the said Company to be performed, observed and kept that the said party of the Second Part (or his assigns or a company to be formed as aforesaid after first entering into an agreement with the said Corporation in the terms hereof) may for a period of twenty years from the first day of January, 1911, use such of the streets and public lanes of the said City of Peterborough as may be required for the purposes aforesaid upon and subject to the terms and conditions above mentioned for the purpose of laying pipes and connections for supplying natural gas to the inhabitants of the said City but nothing herein contained shall be deemed to limit or interfere with the control of the streets or public lanes of the said City by the said Corporation under The Municipal Act or any By-law or agreement now in force or hereafter passed, or entered into.

AND IT IS FURTHER AGREED by the said Corporation that provided the said party of the Second Part or his assigns or a company to be formed for the purposes aforesaid performs fulfils and keeps the covenants and agreements above set out on the part of the party of the Second Part or his assigns or a Company to be hereafter formed as aforesaid to be performed fulfilled and kept and authority can be obtained for that purpose for which authority it hereby agrees to apply on being paid the cost thereof, that for the first ten years of the said term of twenty years the said Corporation will not grant to or allow any other person firm or corporation the use of the streets and public lanes of the said City or any of them for the purpose of laying pipes for supplying natural gas to the inhabitants of the said City.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF the Corporation has caused its Corporate Seal to be affixed attested by the hand of its Mayor and Clerk, and the party of the Second Part has hereunto set his hand and seal.

A Great Railway System.

Hardly a town, village or city in Ontario that does not receive daily benefit from the operations of the Grand Trunk Railway System, and considering the net work of Branch line connections, it is wonderful with what regularity trains are run. Not only is a good service provided between points in Ontario, but this line also reaches nearly all the important cities of Michigan, viz: Flint, Saginaw, Bay City, Lansing, Battle Creek, Jackson, Grand Rapids and Muskegon, South Bend, Ind., and the second city in America, viz: Chicago Ill., the gateway to the Northwest, West and South, bringing Ontario in close connection. On the East, the Grand Trunk connects Ontario with Montreal, Quebec, the Maritime Provinces and Boston, Mass.

With a double track line all the way from Chicago to Montreal, and also to Niagara Falls, connecting with Lehigh Valley from New York the Grand Trunk reaches out in all directions for you patronage, and well deserves it, for its vestibule coaches, parlor and dining cars and modern Pullmans, give the service desired.

VOL XXXIII NO. 281 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO SATURDAY DECEMBER 10 1910 PRICE TWO CENT

$37,911 Subscribed for Charlotte St. Church

The campaign to raise funds for the new Charlotte St. Methodist Church was very successful. Up to 8 o'clock last evening the total amount subscribed was $37,911.00 and additional funds were promised by parties who did not care to sign the subscription list. It is therefore assured that the total amount required for building the new church, $40,000, will be on hand before operations are commenced.

The new church will seat 1,200 people, the present building seating only about 500.

The success of the campaign is largely due to the splendid organizing ability and leadership of the pastor, the Rev. G. W. Henderson.

The congregation responded heartily to the call made upon them and a very pleasing feature of the canvass has been the voluntary subscriptions from members of other churches and other denominations.

During the evening a couple of duets, which were greatly enjoyed were rendered by Miss Pringle and Mr. R. F. Downey.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the Ladies' Aid Society for their services during the campaign and their contribution of $2,000 towards the building fund, and also to the Rev. Mr. Henderson.

The meeting closed with the singing of the doxology.

NEW YORK'S FIRST THEATRE.

The first Theatre in New York was opened on September 17th, 1753. This amusement house was situated on Nassau Street, and was erected by Lewis Hallain. This was the third stage in which dramatic productions were exhibited to the inhabitants of the new world.

FOLLOWING THE GREAT TREE CRAB.

In Africa there exists a certain member of the crab genus commonly known as the Great Tree Crab. This pecular shellfish has an offensive trick of crawling up the cocoanut trees, biting off the cocoanuts and then creeping down again backward. The theory is that the nuts are shattered by the fall, and the Great Tree Crab is thus enabled to enjoy a hearty meal. Now, the natives who inhabit regions infested by this ill-conditioned crab are well aware that the lower portion of the crab's anatomy is soft and sensitive, and they believe that the "bivalve" was thus constructed in order that he might know when he had reached the ground, and when, consequently, he might with safety release his grasp of the trunk. So what they do in order to stop his depredation, which often ruins the cocoanut crops, is this: While the crab is engaged in nipping off the cocoanuts, they climb half-way up the trees, and there drive in a row of long nails right round the tree, allowing an inch or so of the nails to project. The crab has no knowledge of disaster nor yet of the fitness of things. As he descends, the sensitive part of his body suddenly touches the nails. Thinking that he has reached the ground, he naturally lets go. Instantly he falls backward and cracks his own shell on the ground.

ACCREDITED SIGNATURES OF SHAKESPEARE.

Shakespeare's house at Stratford-on-Avon, England, was sold in 1847 for $15,000 to the Shakespeare Committee. There are six accredited signatures of Shakespeare, five of which are attached to business documents, and one is entered in a book now in the British Museum.

And grew immortal in his own despight."

EXEMPTION OF TAXES.

It is pretty difficult to see upon what grounds any organization that is a revenue producing body should expect exemption from taxes, and 'tis a pity any precedent in this direction was ever established. It was a difficult task for six Aldermen on Monday night to publicly demonstrate their recognition of the injustice of the principle of exemption by cutting off a society that had enjoyed such a concession for ten years, and especially so as that organization represents a "minority" in Peterborough, and a minority that is fully conversant with the retaliating weapon of "unity" at the polls. And whether intentional or not, Mr. Dan O'Connell appeared to convey a threat in that portion of his eloquent plea, when he said, "If this exemption is not granted, there will be some citizens who will consider that it is not opposed on principle, but that such opposition is animated by improper and exceedingly unworthy motives of too transparent a character not to be discernable." Will, from the writer's standpoint, who has to contribute his fair share of the ever-increasing burden of taxation, no motive can be proper or worthy that asks ratepayers to pay the taxes of any revenue-producing body—whether T. A. S. or others of a similar nature—without first getting the ratepayers' consent to such a measure. As Mr. J. H. Burnham truly remarked, "this unjustifiable principle of exemption is liable to run communities and countries into a crisis—as in France, in Spain and in Portugal. The T. A. S. certainly appears to stand on exactly similar ground to the Y. W. C. A., the Y. M. C. A. and others, but the principle of exemption, if allowed, cannot stop there; it must, in all fairness, be extended to other societies." This argument was sound and reasonable in the crisis of Monday night, but the rate-payers have not yet been asked if they approve of any society exemption at the expense of the man with the dinner pail, and others. Apart from the splendid work being accomplished by the T.A.S. and the two Y's, is it not fair to assume that the burden of taxation would not pull very heavily upon the shoulders of a thousand members, a large proportion of whom have no incumbrance whatever.

Exemption is an injustice in that it affects the non-exempted ratepayer whether he can afford it or not. Public institutions deserving of assistance have ever found Peterborough citizens generous in their donations; and were every institution now enjoying exemption forced to pay their taxes, it is safe to infer that eventually they would suffer no financial reverse. But contributions for all necessary aid would come—and not ungrudgingly—from those who would not miss them, instead of being imposed upon many a family whose burden of taxation is more than they can comfortably bear.

THE BONNER-WORTH PROPOSITION.

At the January elections the ratepayers will be asked to vote on the question of aiding the Bonner-Worth Co., Limited, to the extent of a loan of $10,000 or $12,000, without interest, and safely secured by real estate and machinery. This loan is to be paid back in yearly instalments of $1,000. The company are to employ an average of at least 30 hands; their buildings and machinery is to be exempt from all taxes and assessments, except school rates, for ten years from January 1st, 1912; but their land is to remain liable to assessment for all Municipal purposes, and for all Municipal rates and taxes including local improvement rates.

As things are going today, with all lake-board cities and towns tumbling over each other to secure new industries, at any cost permissable by the legislature, perhaps Peterborough cannot offer much less in the way of inducement. The promoters of this company are energetic and capable men of extensive experience with the Penman people of Paris, and are promoting the Bonner-Worth Co., Limited, with a view to rapid expansion in a field of industry that offers abundant scope for woolen yarn enterprise in Canada. Under capable management there seems to be no reason why such an industry should not in a few years grow to considerable proportions; and while the principle of "aid" to new industries prevails amongst all competitors, Peterborough's ratepayers should think a second time before voting against this measure. If the By-law carries, it means that we get a promising industry at a cost of the interest on not exceeding $12,000 loaned, and properly secured, together with a partial exemption of taxes for ten years.

And so long as corporations vie with each other in a race for new industries "at a consideration," the proposition before us is one that commends itself.

REDMONITES REJOICE OVER DEFEAT OF TIMOTHY HEALEY

OPPOSING FORCES DEFEAT HIM IN NORTH LOUTH—WAS A MEMBER FOR 30 YEARS.

Elections Continue Their Hum-Drum Course and Unionist Gains are Small—The Course of Woman Suffrage Makes Pitiable Showing at Polls.

London, Nov. 9.—The Unionists so far elected are 205.

Liberals 158.
Labor and Socialist 28.
Remondites 53.
O'Brienites 5.
To be elected yet 221.

The Parliamentary elections continue their hum-drum course, the chief feature perhaps being the striking similarity to the returns of January last. Hardly is a gain noted on one side before it is equalized on the other.

Today's news of special interest was the defeat of Timothy Healey in North Louth, which constituency he has represented in the House of Commons for eighteen years. The Redmondites brought all their forces to bear in turning out the man who may be said almost to be a more bitter opponent of the Irish leader than O'Brien himself. Healey is known as the Ishmael of Nationalist politics and has followed an independent course since the downfall of Parnell, to which he largely contributed.

The successful candidate, Richard Hazleton, who yesterday also was returned unopposed for the North Division of Galway, tried to send Healey into retirement in January, but failed by 99 votes. The rejoicing in the Redmond camp over the defeat of O'Brien's lieutenant quite overshadowed the chagrin at William Redmond's failure to oust O'Brien in Cork City.

WOMEN QUARREL LED TO ARREST

Two Napanee Men Believed to Have Been in Many Robberies.

Napanee, Dec. 9.—David Hanes and Charles Wood pleaded guilty this morning on several charges of theft. There have been numerous small robberies lately in this town, and the parties were not discovered till yesterday when the women quarrelled about the stuff and the parties were arrested.

They had beautiful rolls of carpet and silks had been cut up to make clothing for the children. They were remanded for eight days for sentence.

MET DEATH IN A TRAGIC WAY

Angus Crossan, of Midland, Met Death in a Peculiar Way.

Midland, Dec. 9.—The funeral takes place today of Angus Crossan, who met his death at the blast furnace in a tragic way. It was among his duties to prevent the clogging at the ore and coke in cupola. While engaged in this work he was suffocated by gas from the furnace. A young Italian who was with him at the time was rendered unconscious, but recovered. He leaves a wife and three little children. An inquest was held and a verdict found which fully exonerates the Canada Iron Corporation from blame.

PEDOUNS TAKE AWFUL REVENGE

Massacre Turkish Garrison and Slaughter One Hundred Christians as Well.

Constantinople, Dec. 9.—A telegram from Jerusalem today states that Bedouins have massacred the Turkish garrison at Kerak, a town in the Turkish vilayet at Syria, and killed more than one hundred Christian inhabitants of the place, in revenge for the execution of Bedouin chief.

The Bedouins, the despatch adds, now hold the fortress, in the vicinity of which there has been desultory fighting between the tribesmen and the government troops for the past year and a half.

Young Man Sets out on the Career of a "Distinguished Criminal."

New York, Dec. 9.—George W. Yeandle, the Nan Patterson juror found guilty of soliciting a bribe in return for which he promised to acquit millionaire Rosenheimer at his recent trial, was today sentenced to five years and not more than eight years in Sing-Sing.

BAY OF BISCAY LASHED TO FURY

Coast Lined with Wreckage Indicating That Serious Disasters have Taken Place.

Madrid, Dec. 9.—A score or more have perished in a gale that is lashing the Bay of Biscay, off northern Spain, according to reports from Bilbao and Santander today. Half a dozen fishing vessels have been lost, and the coast patrols have found wreckage indicating that more serious distasters have taken place. The wind blew at velocity of almost a hundred miles an hour.

CREW 39 HOURS WITHOUT FOOD

Tug Sank in Lake St. Clair—Six Men Had Fearful Experiences.

Chatham, Ont., Dec. 9.—Captain Tom Bennett and the crew of six of the tug George Thompson, owned by R. P. Thompson of Port Huron, reached Wallaceburg this morning more dead than alive, as the result of terrible experiences they had undergone.

The tug Thompson, which left Port Huron on Tuesday for Chatham, went down in Lake St. Clair, in 20 feet of water, Wednesday. After twenty-four hours battling with ice, captain and crew escaped in the yawl by rowing, and walking over the ice made their way to Mitchell's Bay, six miles distant.

The men when they reached Wallaceburg this morning were all badly frozen, and almost famished, having been thirty eight hours without food.

EAT AND GET THIN..

This is turning an old phrase face about but modern methods of reducing fat have made this revision possible.

If you are over fat and also averse to physical exertion and likewise fond of the table and still want to reduce your excess flesh several pounds, do this: Go to your druggist (or write the Marmola Co., 1102 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich.) and give him (or send them) 75c. For this modest amount of money the druggist will put you in the way of satisfying your ambition for a nice, trim, slim figure. He will hand you a large case of Marmola Prescription Tablets (compounded in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription), one of which you must take after each meal and at bed time until you begin to lose your fat at the rate of 12 to 16 ounces a day. That is all. Just go on eating what you like, leave exercising to the athletes, but take your little tablet faithfully and without a doubt that flabby flesh will quickly take unto itself wings, leaving behind it your natural self, neatly clothed in firm flesh and trim muscles.

A GOOD OPPORTUNITY.

For Investment Offered by the Gold Queen Mining Company.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement in another column of the Gold Queen Mining Co.

The Gold Queen Mine, after which the company is named, produces gold, silver and copper, and the development work already done exposed several veins of various widths and showing assays of $18 to $62.50 to the ton.

The company's property is situated on Baron Mountain, near St. Elmo, Colorado, in the Chalk Creek Mining district and comprises 115 acres. Up to the end of September the development work consisted of 1135 feet of tunnelling, 595 feet of drifts, 100 feet of shafts, and 65 feet of winzes. The mines are about one and a quarter miles from a station of the Colorado Southern Ry. and there is a good wagon road from the mines to St. Elmo. The altitude is 10,140 ft above the sea level.

The capitalization of the company is only $100,000, and the stock is now offered at five cents per share, fully paid and non-assessable. One half of the stock is in the treasury, and the other half has been issued in payment for the properties and to realize additional funds to continue development work, on which $10,000 has already been expended. None has been used for promotion purposes, and the fact that the original owner was willing to accept stock, in full payment is additional proof of its value.

Mr. C. Kirchner is president of the company and the head office is at Room 408 Dickey Bldg., 40 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

Wireless Stops Train Without Human Aid

(From the Toronto News).

Mr. Frank W. Prentice of Melbourne avenue, achieved a triumph yesterday when, by means of his wireless apparatus, a C.P.R. train travelling at the rate of 45 miles an hour, was stopped up dead, while the engineer sat with the throttle wide open, powerless to interfere.

The C.P.R. has been quietly testing Mr. Prentice's safety device for some weeks, and yesterday it culminated in a success. He has been at work upon the idea since one night thirteen years ago, he dreamed about such a device to prevent collisions. It was first tried out upon some small American railroads before the C.P.R. took it up.

It is so operated that when a train enters a block it stops the wireless wave in the block in the rear and should a train enter it, it is given the danger signal and brought to a standstill. The engineer, in the cab of a train so warned, first hears a blast on the air whistle, and then, three seconds later, the brakes are applied whether the engineer wills it or not.

It is hoped that when the idea is fully developed, the device will revolutionize the handling of freight trains which will be able to follow each other in rapid succession in safety.

ZAM-BUK CURES PILES.

Maritime Magistrate's Case.

Mr. C. E. Sanford of Weston, King's Co., N.S., a Justice of the Peace for the County, and a Deacon of the Baptist Church in Berwick, says: "I have used Zam-Buk for piles and found it a splendid remedy. It cured me."

Mr. Thos. Pearson, of Prince Albert Sask., writes: "I must thank you for the benefit I received from the use of Zam-Buk. Last summer I had a fever, which left me with piles. I started to use Zam-Buk, and found it gave me relief, so I continued with it. After using three or four boxes, it effected a complete cure."

Zam-Buk will also be found a sure cure for cold sores, chapped hands, frost bite, ulcers, eczema, blood-poison, varicose sores, piles, scalp sores ringworm, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions and chapped places, cuts, burns, bruises and skin injuries generally. All druggists and stores sell at 50c box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. You are warned against harmful imitations and substitutes. See the registered name "Zam-Buk" on every package before buying.

MRS. LILIAN GLOVER SAID SHE WANTED TO GET RID OF HIM.

Some Secrets of Home—Defence in Hattie Le Blanc Trial Springs Many Sensations—Bitter Strife in The Family.

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 9.—Instead of Hattie LeBlanc being tried for the murder of Clarence F. Glover, it appeared today as if Mrs. Lillian M. Glover, the dead man's wife, was the real defendant in the case.

Through the lips of relatives of the girl now on trial for her life, startling secrets of the Glover home as it was constituted before the tragedy have already been revealed. Further testimony of the same character detailing the alleged strife between Glover and his wife, and of the unhappy life that Hattie LeBlanc had led while a maid in that household, was given today by Mrs. Irene LeBlanc Langley, the accused girl's eldest sister. Mrs. Langley testified that Mrs. Glover told her that her husband "was no good," that she "wanted to get rid of him and that she said the day before the murder: "He has had his dinner and he is coming for his supper, but it is the last time I will get his supper."

Little Peeress to See Coronation.

London, Dec. 8.—Probably one of coronation ceremonies next June will be the little Baroness Clifton, the youngest peeress of Great Britain who will have the right to attend the great ceremony. Although the little lady is not quite ten years old, she is having a coronation robe made for her on the lines of those of the other peeresses.

LEFT HER WEALTH TO HER CHURCH

MRS. EDDIE IS SAID TO HAVE BEQUEATHED MILLION AND A HALF TO CHRISTIAN SCIENCE.

No Money to Children—But they Got Cash Not Long Ago—Servants Were Remembered.

Boston, Dec. 9.—Alfred Farlow, chairman of the publication committee of the Christian Science Church, announced this afternoon that the fortune of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy amounting to $1,500,000, has been left to the church that she founded. His statement was as follows:

"It has been announced by one of the trustees that Mrs. Eddy's will will not be made known for several days, but in answer to many urgent enquiries, I have been informed that Mrs. Eddy's fortune, including her copyright, probably will amount to $1,500,000. There are some bequests made to members of her household. The Christian Science Church is residuary legatee. The bulk of her fortune goes to the Christian Science Church for construction usages.

A Great Railway System.

Hardly a town, village or city in Ontario that does not receive daily benefit from the operations of the Grand Trunk Railway System, and considering the net work of Branch line connections, it is wonderful with what regularity trains are run. Not only is a good service provided between points in Ontario, but this line also reaches nearly all the important cities of Michigan, viz: Flint, Saginaw, Bay City, Lansing, Battle Creek, Jackson, Grand Rapids and Muskegon, South Bend, Ind., and the second city in America, viz: Chicago Ill., the gateway to the Northwest, West and South, bringing Ontario in close connection. On the East, the Grand Trunk connects Ontario with Montreal, Quebec, the Maritime Provinces and Boston, Mass.

With a double track line all the way from Chicago to Montreal, and also to Niagara Falls, connecting with Lehigh Valley from New York, the Grand Trunk reaches out in all directions for you patronage, and well deserves it, for its vestibule coaches, parlor and dining cars and modern Pullmans, give the service desired.

Consult your nearest Grand Trunk Agent for information regarding your next trip.

THE WEATHER.

A little warmer, with snow.

Will Go Over the Falls on Sunday Afternoon

Niagara Falls, Dec. 9.—"Bobby" Leach says he is going over the Horseshoe Falls in a patent lifeboat. He has fixed Sunday afternoon as the time "providing he can make the proper terms with some moving picture concerns." The boat, which arrived at the Grand Trunk Railroad station from Rivers, Manitoba, was unloaded yesterday afternoon upon the arrival in the city of the designer James Mitchell, a man past eighty years old.

The craft is cigar shaped, 24 feet long and is entirely closed and water tight. It is propelled by a low power gas engine, and well ballasted, so should it overturn it will right itself immediately. Leach has no fear but that he will make the trip in safety.

He says he will make the start from Chippewa, and only stormy weather will prevent him from making the 168 foot dive in the boat on Sunday afternoon, starting at two o'clock. Leach has figured the whole thing out and says he will steer the craft so that it will make the leap somewhat toward the west of the apex of the Canadian Fall. Here the water is deepest and there are no rocks at the bottom. He has no fear of losing his life. On September 24 last, Leach made a trip through the Whirlpool Rapids in a barrel.

GRAND CONCERT IN CONSERVATORY HALL

One of the most artistic entertainments ever given in Peterborough came off with great eclat last evening under the auspices of Marathon Lodge, No. 39, Knights of Pythias, at the Conservatory of Music Hall. The different numbers were rendered by the Conservatory Orchestra, Imperial Male Quartette, Mr. C. J. Pink, Miss Julia Choate, Mr. E. A. Webster, and Mr. F. Clarke.

A London Syndicate recently purchased 100 lots in Wainwright, Alberta, on the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific, the consideration being about $15,000. This is claimed to be the biggest single real estate transaction in the history of the town.

GREAT PROGRESS OF THE DOMINION

Lord Strathcona In Reminiscent—Presents Two Loving Cups to Canada Club.

London, Dec. 8.—Lord Strathcona presided last night at the Canada Club dinner and presented two handsome loving cups to the club. In doing so he alluded to the fact that the club originated at the time when it took 60 days to cross the Atlantic and a few members toasted each other in an old-fashioned toddy bowl. The West, which now sent 100 million bushels of wheat, did not then produce one, and the only dealings of merchants were with furs from the Northwest and timber from the East. British Columbia was only known as a sea of mountains. The potentialities of the country were so great that her sons would some day look upon the present prosperity as a mere bagatelle.

The toast to the Imperial forces was replied to by Admiral Douglas and Sir Percy Lake. The latter said he had reason to be proud of his connection with the Canadian militia. In future it will have an influence undreamed of in enforcing the peace of the world. He hoped to see the time when his Majesty's commission would be made valid throughout the Empire.

The toast of "The Dominion" was responded to by Mr. Price Ellison, and "The Guests" was responded to by Judge Grantham, who said of his recent visit that he went expecting to see a colony, but found a nation of united loyalty to the United Kingdom.

AN UNWISE MOVE

To the editor of The Times,—

Sir,—I was amazed to read in the Times on Tuesday morning that our Council propose to join Toronto in sending a deputation to Ottawa to urge the government to deepen the Welland Canal. Is this not a very unwise step? Will it not practically mean a vote of want of confidence in the Trent Waterway, now so near completion? We all know that our whole efforts should be directed to securing funds for the completion of this canal, at least before we lend our aid in helping along another and to some extent, an opposition project. The Trent Canal route is 250 miles shorter than by the Welland Canal, for the upper great lakes to the seaboard. This means a lot in the cost of transportation.

I hope, Mr. Editor, you will take this matter up in order that our deputation be called off.

DESERVING OF PRAISE.

More and more it appears that the work of Mr. Thomas Tait, as manager of the Victoria Government Railways, has been deserving of all praise. The Australian papers are lavish in complimentary phrases and in regrets that he has found it necessary to relinquish his position and to return to Canada.

The Australian Mining Standard says that the chief thing that seemed to be necessary in railway management before Mr. Tait's appointment was to have a man at the head of affairs who could say no. Mr. Tait had that capability. He not only said no when an improper application was made to him but he could repeat it as many times as the application was renewed. The government railways of Victoria had been cursed by the interference of politicians and special interests, just as the Canadian Government railways are affected today. Mr. Tait conceived it to be his duty to manage a railway and not to create or maintain a piece of political machinery. Naturally he was unpopular in some quarters. The resentment of partisan is always bitter. Doubtless this added considerably to the difficulties of the position. When the government began to announce surpluses on railway account, it was asserted in some quarters that they were obtained by starving maintenance and equipment accounts. But these allegations were easily disapproved.

A comparative statement of the financial history of the Victorian railways was submitted with the budget speech to the legislature in October last. In June, 1903, the government had to report an aggregate deficite for the seven years preceding of $9,304,982. For the seven years ending June 30th, 1910, there was an aggregate surplus of $4,558,577. During the lean years the revenue per mile was $4,536, now increased to $5,492. The working expenses were not cut to attain this result. On the contrary they increased from $2,696 to $3,105. Mr. Tait studied to increase his revenue by freeing the road from the entanglements of party politics. That is the secret of his success.

What could be done with the Intercolonial Railway if a man with with the back bone and the ideals of Mr. Tait were given full charge?

THE FRENCH POPULATION.

The French-speaking population is increasing and the English-speaking decreasing in the Eastern Townships. This was shown very conclusively at Bedford, Que., when the school commissioners of the township sold three buildings that had formly been used as English-speaking schools. The reason for disposing of them was that there were no scholars. The English-speaking farmers are selling out to the French and going West. The section of the township refered to was formerly wholly occupied by English-speaking people.

native, were slaughtered in their houses and schools. The editorial staff and compositors of the Delhi Gazette having just produced a special edition of the paper announcing the crisis, were all stabbed or bludgeoned to death. In the telegraph office a young signaler was sending a thrilling message to Umballa, Lahore and the north.

"The sepoys have come in from Meerut," he announced with the slow tick of the earliest form of apparatus. "They are burning everything. Mr. Todd is dead, and, we hear, several Europeans. We must shut up."

That was his requiem. The startled operators at Umballa could obtain no further intelligence and the boy was slain at his post.

The magistrate who galloped to the cantonment found no laggards there. Brigadier Graves sent Colonel Ripley with part of the 54th Native Infantry to occupy the Kashmir Gate. The remainder of the 54th escorted two guns under Captain de Tessier.

Ripley reached the main guard, just within the gate, when some troopers of the 3rd rode up. The Colonel ordered his men to fire at them. The sepoys refused to obey, and the sowars, drawing their pistols, shot dead or severely wounded six British officers. Then the 54th bayoneted their Colonel, but, hearing the rumble of De Tessier's guns, fled into the city. The guard of the gate, composed of men of the 38th, went with them, but their officer, Captain Wallace, had ridden, fortunately for himself, to hurry the guns. He was sent on to the cantonment to ask for re-enforcements. Not a man of the 38th would follow him, but the 74th commanded by Major Abbott, proclaimed their loyalty and asked to be led against the mutineers.

Perforce their commander trusted them. He brought them to the Kashmir Gate with two more guns, while the Brigadier and his staff, wondering why they heard nothing of the pursuing British from Meerut, thought it advisable to gather the women and children and other helpless persons, both European and native, in the Flagstaff Tower, a small building situated on the northern extremity of the Ridge.

There for some hours a great company of frightened people endured all the discomforts of terrific heat, hunger, and thirst, while wives and mothers, striving to soothe their wailing little ones, were themselves consumed with anxiety as to the fate of husbands and sons.

At the main guard there was a dead lock. Major Abbott and his brother officers, trying to keep their men loyal, stood fast and listened to the distant turmoil in the city. Like the soldiers in Meerut, they never guessed a tithe of the horrors enacted there. They were sure that the white troops in Meerut would soon arrive and put an end to the prevalent anarchy. Yet the day sped and help came not.

Suddenly the sound of a tremendous explosion rent the air and a dense cloud of white smoke, succeeded by a pall of dust, rose between the gate and the palace. Willoughby had blown up the magazine! Why? Two artillery subalterns who had fought their way through a mob stricken with panic for the moment, soon arrived. Their story fills one of the great pages of history.

Lieutenant Willoughby, a boyish-looking subaltern of artillery, whose shy, refined manners hid a heroic soul, lost no time in making his dispositions for the defence of the magazine when he knew that a mutiny was imminent. He had with him eight Englishmen, Lieutenants Forrest and Raynor, Conductors Buckley, Shaw and Scully, Sub-Conductor Crow, and Sergeants Edwards and Stewart. The nine barricaded the outer gates and placed in the best position guns loaded with grape. They laid a train from the powder store to a tree in the yard. Scully stood there. He promised to fire the powder when his young commander gave the signal.

Then they waited. A stormy episode was taking place inside the fort. Bahadur Shah held out against the vehement urging of his daughter aided now by the counsel of her brothers. Ever and anon he went to the river balcony which afforded a view of the Meerut road. At last he sent mounted men across the river. When these scouts returned and he was quite certain that none but rebel sepoys were streaming towards Delhi from Meerut, he yielded.

The surrender of the magazine was demanded in his name. His adherents tried to rush the gate and, walls, and were shot down in scores. The attack grew more and more furious and sustained. The white men served their smoking cannon with a wild energy that, for a time, made the gallant nine equal to a thousand. Of course such a struggle could have only one end. Willoughby in his turn, ran to the river bastion. Like the king, he looked towards Meerut. Like the king, he saw none but mutineers. Then, when the enemy were clambering over the walls and rushing into the little fort from all directions, he raised his sword and looked at Conductor Buckley. Buckley lifted his hat, the agreed signal, and Scully fired the train. Hundreds of rebels were blown to pieces, as they were already inside the magazine. Scully was killed where he stood. Willoughby leaped from the walls, crossed the river, and met his death while striving to reach Meerut. Lieutenants Forrest and Raynor, Conductors Buckley and Shaw, and Sergeant Stewart escaped, and were given the Victoria Cross.

Yet, so curiously constituted is the native mind, the blowing-up of the magazine was the final tocsin of revolt. It seemed to place beyond doubt that which all men were saying. The king was fighting the English. Islam was in the field against the Nazarene. The Mogul Empire was born again and the iron grip of British rule was relaxed. At once the sepoys at the Kashmir Gate fired a volley at their nearest officers, of whom three fell dead.

Two survivors rushed up the hill and jumped into the ditch. Others, hearing the shrieks of the women in the guard room, pushed their captures, who had escaped from the gate, ran through a hail of bullets and cut them out. Fastening belts and handkerchiefs together, the men let the women into the fosse and, with

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, and stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary.

Real Mining Pays Better Than Anything Else

Here is an opportunity to invest in a Real Mine. Property developed. Plenty of pay ore in sight to guarantee the success of the enterprise. Mill and equipment are all paid for in full. Small amount still needed to install the equipment for which

A limited number of Shares is now offered at 35c per Share.

This is a bonafide gold mine and will yield big returns on the investment and can be put on a paying basis immediately.

For a short time we will offer this stock at the following prices and terms:

$35.00 buys	100 shares.	$10.00	cash, $5.00	per mo. for 5 months
50.00 buys	150 shares.	15.00	cash, 7.00	per mo. for 5 months

"THE KLONDYKE'S MOTHER LODE"

The storehouse from which the famous placer creeks, Bonanza and Eldorado, receive their fabulous wealth, have been uncovered on the claims of The Victoria Gulch Mines, situated on the ridge at the head of Victoria and Gay gulches. The company's holdings consist of four quartz claims and about 200 acres 14 miles from Dawson, on a good wagon road and two miles from the Klondyke Mines R.R. There are two true quartz veins, between perfect walls 6 and 10 feet wide on the property, the free milling ore from which is literally encrusted with the yellow metal. Read what some of the world's greatest authorities say:

R. G. McConnell, B.A., of the Geological Survey, says in his report on the Klondyke Goldfields.

"A sample in which no free gold could be detected with the naked eye, or an ordinary magnifying glass, was assayed in the laboratory of the survey and gave 2.625 oz. of gold and 3.267 oz. of silver to the ton."

Pro. Henry A. Meirs, D. Sc. F.R.S., Waynflete, Professor of Mineralogy in the University of Oxford, in collaboration with Professor A. P. Coleman in a report to the Minister of the Interior, says: "At the head of Victoria Gulch which runs into Bonanza, a creek opposite Gay Gulch, a tributary of Eldorado, and at a height of about 2,300 feet above Dawson, has been opened, what appears to be a true quartz vein, showing nuggety gold in abundance. The gold is distinctly crystalline in character, and the crystals are of a peculiar form having a triangular outline due to the fact that they are octahedra, and in particular a remarkable variety known as "spinel twins." Now it is significant that the gold found in Victoria gulch is also crystalline and has the same characteristic outline, here then we have fairly convincing evidence that the gold found in a stream gravel is identical with that found in situ in a quartz at the head of the valley and in this instance there can be little doubt as to the origin of the gold."

Dr. Eugene Hassel, Director of Mines, a noted authority on mineralogy in a report to the department in 1902, says: "Masses of quartz were seen protruding from the surface all about the locality, and it needed only to wet the surface of the quartz with water to reveal the bright specks of gold adhering to their surface.

"Gay gulch and Victoria gulch, the former a tributary of Eldorado creek, the latter of Bonanza creeks, limit Victoria Hill toward the sources of Bonanza and Eldorado creeks. Above Victoria and Gay gulches, Bonanza and Eldorado creeks respectively are unproductive, below these gulches the creeks are rich. It seems a reasonable conclusion that the gold in these creeks, at least as far as they flank the side of Victoria Hill, was derived from Victoria Hill."

Mr. R. W. Brock, Director Geological Survey, says: "The district is not glaciated. Gold in the recent gravel freshly derived from its original source is similar to gold in the corresponding White Channel gravel. Many of the gold grains and most of the nuggets, enclose quartz. Quartz pebbles are found containing gold, some at least very rich in gold. The quartz of the boulders is similar to the quartz of the veins, and gold of the veins to gold of the gravels. From the foregoing and other facts, it is obvious that the gold is absolutely local in origin, derived from the basins of the pay gulches and creeks."

Fred. T. Congdon, Member for the Yukon, stated on the floor of the House of Commons last January that some of the richest gold quartz in the world was being mined close to Dawson.

Just stop and think of the immense possibilities of rich returns from the development of the claims of The Victoria Gulch mines, when two miles of the Mother Lode runs through the property from which the $35,000,000 in placer gold has been already won from Eldorado and Bonanza creeks, the one-third the Klondyke's entire output. 100,000 shares of treasury stock of the par value of $1 is now offered for public subscription at 25 cents per share fully paid and non-assessable.

No further issue of treasury stock will have to be made at this price.

STUDY OF THE KING

A Glance at His Personality—Unfailing Devotion to Duty

There is not a more English English man in England; there is not a more ardent or a more understanding Imperialist in the whole length and breadth of the Empire, says Sydney Brooks, in McClure's Magazine. No ruler has yet sat on a British Throne with so deep an appreciation of all that is involved in the consciousness that the Crown he wears is the symbol of unity and kinship to one-fifth of mankind, or so true and sympathetic an insight into the sentiments of the British dominions over-seas. A constant, at times, perhaps, almost a morbid, sense of duty is one of the qualities King George owes to, or that was at any rate confirmed by, his naval training. He is one of the most conscientious men living. A friend of his, who has travelled with him many thousands of miles and has been thrown in daily and all but hourly contact with him for months at a time, was enlarging to me on this characteristic. "I am speaking," he said, "quite sincerely and without the least exaggeration when I say that there is nothing, absolutely nothing, that the King will not throw overboard at the call of duty." The ordinary amusements and distractions of a "man about town" find him indifferent. Cards and gambling bore him. The pleasures of the table are for the most part closed to him by a poor digestion. For the same reason he hardly touches wine. He is one of the six best shots in the kingdom, and a first-class and enthusiastic amateur. Like most sailors ashore, he has developed a taste for farming, which he diligently cultivates. He is known already as a breeder of Red Poll cattle and Berkshire pigs, and as a careful and attentive manager of his Norfolk estates. He is a fair hand at golf and plays golf a little, has played polo, but has never to my knowledge, followed the hounds, and in his young days was a promising boxer.

He is a straightforward, downright sort of man, rather naive and immature, blunt and voluble of speech, with a boisterously British and literal sense of humour, and with an elemental emotionalism that, unlike most Englishmen, he is at no pains to conceal. It is his nature to speak out, and one of the chief interests of his reign will be to watch the struggle between the man and the Monarch, to see whether King George achieves a caution and reticence that he never compassed as Prince of Wales.

MUSIC FOR FISH

They Bite Better During Sunday Evening Services

Do fish like music? That is a question fishermen at Highland Lake, Conn., are trying to solve, and most of them who have tried their luck fishing while the sunset religious services were in progress on Highland Lake have come to the conclusion that music has charms for the fish. Upwards of 150 cottagers assemble in boats and listen to a sermon on land. Singing is a feature of the services. Outside the anchored boats containing the worshippers fishermen cast their flies for bass and troll for pickerel. It is a very noticeable fact, they declare, that the fish bite better during the period of the services than any other part of the day.

THE INQUISITIVE WORMS

"I am going for worms," the fisherman said, "but I need no spade. This bottle of soapsuds takes its place." Reaching the hollow, he showered the suds upon the ground, moistening a circle five yards in diameter. Then he sat down on a log and filled his pipe. "They'll be up in a minute or so," he said.

Sure enough, by twos and threes the small black worms poked their tiny heads out of the soil and looked inquisitively about. The fisherman gathered them into a bait can.

"It's their curiosity brings them up," he said. "Woodpeckers, knowing this, bring them up by stamping on the soil."

FOR HOMELY GIRL ONLY

"I want a hammock that will not break down," said the fair maid, addressing the floorwalker of the department store.

"I'm sorry, miss," he rejoined, "but we haven't any in stock that we could guarantee in your case."

"What do you mean by my case?" asked the young lady.

"Just this," answered the party of the floorwalking part: "If you were a homely girl we could guarantee any hammock you might select."

KILLED BY A BEE STING

While gathering mushrooms at Kirdford, Sussex, England, where he was spending his holidays, Mr. Wm. Mortimer Rhind, was stung on the forehead by a bee, and in half an hour he was dead. The medical verdict is that death was the result of shock, Mr. Rhind, ever since he was a lad, having had an abnormal dread of bees. He was severely stung by one when at school.

BITTEN

Standing by the entrance of a large estate in the suburbs of Glasgow are two huge dogs carved out of granite. An Englishman, going by in a hack, thought he would have some fun with his Scotch driver.

"How often, Jock, do they feed those two big dogs?"

"Whenever they bark, sir," was the straight-faced reply.

THOSE BALD SPOTS

Customer—"There used to be two or three little bald spots on the crown of my head, away back. Are they there yet?"

Barber—"No, sir; it ain't so bad as all that. Where those spots used to be, sir, there's only one now."

GHOST CONFESSES

The Police Solve the Mystery of a Haunted Farm

It was ten o'clock at night and Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, Uttoxeter, were having supper when they were startled by hearing strange noises, and presently coals and bottles came falling down the stairs, thrown by some invisible hand. Their supper thus rudely disturbed, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson rushed upstairs to find the place in a state of wild confusion. The bedroom had been completely ransacked, mattresses had been carried from one room to another, ornaments had disappeared, and the place was in a condition of chaos.

Convinced some intruder was on the premises, Mr. Wilson called several neighbors, and the premises were systematically searched, but without result. Much perplexed, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson retired to rest, but scarcely had they extinguished the light when all sorts of pranks were commenced by what seemed to be a supernatural visitant. A table was spirited out of the room, all sorts of articles flew in through the door, and when Mr. Wilson got up to investigate he was assaulted by bottles and other missiles. Uncanny noises were heard in different parts of the house, but a search again proved unavailing. This was only the beginning of a series of remarkable incidents during the following days. Mrs. Wilson while at work was made a target for all sorts of missiles, knives, forks, and bottles being hurled at her from an invisible source with great force. On several occasions the knives just missed her head and were deeply embedded in the doors. Twenty-seven window panes were smashed by flying stones. Neighbors who were summoned to the house by the terrified occupants were greeted with such scant courtesy that they soon had to retire. A constable who watched the house one night saw a light extinguished in a room which it was said to be absolutely empty.

Then came the denouement. Rigorous police investigations were set on foot, and as the result it was announced that a girl, aged fourteen, employed on the farm, has confessed that she is the mysterious spook who has been playing these dangerous tricks. How she managed to deceive the household is a mystery. It transpired that several years ago she had sunstroke, and has always been peculiar in her manner since.

STAGE SUPERSTITIONS

A Manager Does Not Like to Hear an Employe Whistle

To whistle in a theatre is a sign of the worst luck in the world, and there is no offence for which a manager will scold an employe more quickly. Vaudeville performers believe it is bad luck to change the costumes in which they have achieved success. Old actors believe the witches song in "Macbeth" to possess the uncanny power of casting evil spells, and the majority of them strongly dislike to play in the piece. Hum the tune in the hearing of an old actor, and he chances are you will lose his friendship.

"Actors," says T. Sharper Knowlson, "will not repeat the last lines of a play at rehearsals, nor will they go on the stage where there is a picture of an ostrich if they can avoid it. Let them try the handle of a wrong door when seeking the manager of a theatre or the offices of an agent, and they regard it as an omen of failure. The looping of a drop curtain, the upsetting of a make-up box, are the certain forerunners of evil, just as certain shades of yellow in a tie, or vest, or hat are thought to exert an injurious influence.

"Even the orchestra leader would not allow a musician to play a yellow clarionet; everything would go wrong if he did. Faults of memory are also attributed by an actor to the costume he may be wearing. Certain wigs bring luck, and some actors will wear one even though the part does not need one."

WHEN A MAN IS "DOWN"

Difficulties Which Beset the Path of an Ex-Convict

How difficult it is for an ex-convict to get honest employment was illustrated at Marylebone Police Court, when a man who had served a term of imprisonment applied to Mr. Paul Taylor for assistance. The applicant has an invalid wife and five children under fifteen years of age, four of whom are in a Roman Catholic home. He had tried to get work, but had failed. In the meantime, the applicant added, he and his wife had pawned almost everything they possessed, with the result that they had a load of pawntickets, and he had nothing staring him in the face but to plunge into crime again. Mr. Paul Taylor referred him to Mr. Alfred Kirby, the missionary, to see what could be done for him, adding that he preferred to assist old convicts rather than young ones, as they often had less chance in life.

LOCKJAW FROM A CUT

The danger in little accidents was illustrated at a London court. Mr. F. Danford Thomas held an inquest upon Arthur Pittman, four years of age, son of a potato salesman. The child was playing in the garden with his brother, a few years older, and saw a worm and got excited about it. The elder boy took up a fork and dug around the worm, but accidentally struck his baby brother with one of the prongs between the ankle and the toes of the left foot, making a slight wound. The child was at first treated at home, but symptoms of lockjaw appearing, he was removed to Guy's Hospital, where he died.

FATHER OF TWENTY-FIVE

A man whose son was sent from the Lynn Police Court to an industrial school was said to be the father of twenty-five children.

G.T.R. Receipts.

The Grand Trunk October statement shows that gross receipts of Grand Trunk proper increased £25,000; working expenses increased £30,000. BEFORE TREATMENT

AFTER TREATMENT

He was surprised at how the sores healed—"I took your NEW METHOD TREATMENT for a serious blood disease with which I had been afflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 6 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the NEW METHOD TREATMENT for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. My boy, three years old, is sound and healthy. I certainly can recommend your treatment with all my heart. You can refer any person to me privately, but you can use this testimonial as you wish. W. H. S.

Sale of Useful and Fancy Articles.

A sale of useful and fancy articles and also home-made cake and candy will be held in St. Paul's schoolroom, Saturday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock.

Quebec Heaters For Sale.

On account of the installing of the heating system in The Times' building, the four Quebec heaters, so well known, are for sale. These stoves are as good as new, and will be sold at less than half price. Also about 100 lengths of pipe, also practically as good as new, at four cents per length.

Ice Racing.

The Lindsay ice meet will be held on Wednesday and Thursday, Jan. 11 and 12, and promises to be the best yet. The committee have gone to considerable pains to make this season's meet a decided success. Best of accomodation for the public.

Might Cause Accident.

Although as a rule the sidewalks are in fairly good condition, there are many small icy spots on which pedestrians are likely to slip upon and perhaps injure themselves. It would be no great trouble for those in front of whose premises these slippery spots exist, to sprinkle a little ashes, sand or sawdust on them and maybe save a broken bone.

PUT YOUR SAVINGS TO WORK

No Matter how great or how small your savings may be you want them to be earning something for you. If you are saving your money you are doing well. If you are saving your money and placing it at small interest you are doing better. IF YOU ARE SAVING YOUR MONEY AND SENDING IT OUT TO EARN MORE MONEY, YOU ARE DOING THE VERY BEST AND WISEST THING YOU POSSIBLY COULD DO.

The Combination of Opportunity and Capital

Is one that is sure to win. You want to combine your capital with this opportunity and secure a share of the profits that we intend to earn for the partners of this splendid enterprise.

Gold - Silver - Copper

The Gold Queen is mining all three. We want a mill to treat our ore. We want you to come in with us and help build this mill. We offer you a limited number of shares of stock in this big company at a price so low that you cannot afford to let the opportunity pass by. We fully expect Gold Queen shares to be selling at five times as much as we are now offering them to you for, just as soon as the mill is ready to handle the rich ore that we have blocked out in our mines.

THE OFFICERS OF OUR COMPANY

Are a sufficient guarantee that we mean business. They are all good, substantial and successful business men. Men who have clear sighted business judgment and rare executive ability. Men who will exert their every effort to make the Gold Queen Mines big producers and who will safeguard the interests of their partners in this money making enterprise at every turn.

THESE ARE THE KIND OF MEN YOU WANT TO BE ASSOCIATED WITH.

The Gold Queen on Baron Mountain, just above St. Elmo, is to the front with a good strike, made recently in their new tunnel, the lore running assays of $50 in gold, silver and copper to the ton. This has hastened work on the various buildings and the machinery is being placed in position as fast as it arrives and can be taken to the mines from the railroad.

The vein is an exceedingly large one and at the time this is being sent out, the miner has not yet penetrated it, indicating that it is one of those bonanzas the camp is becoming so famous for. The exact width of the vein will not be known for some time. While it is not believed that the entire vein will give high assays, yet all of it will be of a good grade of milling and smelting ore. The mine has been under the personal direction of A. J. Stark for some time past, and it is to him that the company owes so much, for it was his thorough knowledge of the country that led them to the present rich vein. The company owns eight claims on Baron Mountain, which are intersect with a large number of tunnels and crosscut workings, all of which show excellent indications of high grade ore. The company held their annual meeting in St. Elmo recently, a large number of stockholders being present, and every one to a man, are highly elated over the bright future of the mine, and will push work on the property as fast as men and machinery can do it. The mine has shipped some ore in the past, but now they will block out ore and have it ready for their mill which they expect to erect in the very near future.

VOL XXXIII NO. 282 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO MONDAY DECEMBER 12 1910 PRICE TWO CENT

Opening of New Knox Presbyterian Church

LARGE CONGREGATIONS ATTENDED DEDICATION SERVICES YESTERDAY.

Before the dedication ceremonies a brief thanksgiving service was held in the old building.

At 10 a.m. the congregation proceeded to Rubidge Street and entered by the main door for the dedication service.

The service was conducted by Rev Dr. Marsh, Moderator of the Presbytery, assisted by Rev. Dr. Johnson. The dedication service was well attended by the members of the congregation.

The opening message was delivered at the morning service by the Rev. Dr. Johnson, from Paul's word to the city of Rome, "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one who believeth." Romans 1-16.

The sermon was an eloquent unfolding of the message of Paul and a most suitable one for the opening message in a new church.

Large offerings were received morning and night, and the choir assisted greatly in the services.

The new building was crowded to its utmost capacity at the evening service.

Dr. Johnson made a very simple, but strong and eloquent appeal to all present to enter into allegiance with Christ. He used three texts: 1st II. Kings 10-15, "Is thine heart right, as my heart is with thy heart?" 2nd—"He that is not against us is for us." Luke 9-50. 3rd "Come ye after me." Mark 1-17.

In the afternoon Dr. Johnson gave an address at the Sunday school that left a deep impression on all present. Referring to the boy with the loaves and fishes, he showed how boy or girl might give their life to Christ and have their usefulness multiplied many fold.

He also referred to Dr. Grenfell and Dwight L. Moody and stated that these men would not likely have achieved their great work were it not for the multiplying power of Christ's influence.

The large school listened most attentively. The history of this church from small beginning in 1872 shows continued and marked progress from that time to the present.

At first only a non-denominational Sunday school was opened with Mr. T. W. Nisbet, of the Bank of Commerce, as superintendent and a roll of nine scholars. In 1892 the average attendance had risen to one hundred and larger premises had to be found. For many years the building was used for divine service by different denominations, but the Presbyterians so largely predominated in numbers that finally the church became solely Presbyterian.

Another Instructive Lecture to Boy Scouts

Another instructive lecture was given the Boy Scouts by Dr. A. W. McPherson on Saturday night. The subject taken up was the human frame and as he had not a skeleton at hand he called for the thinnest boy in the room, which caused much amusement. Securing a slim subject the doctor explained the formation and uses of the spinal column and illustrated the form of the vertibrae and their position and explained why they were so formed and placed. He next took up the bones of the arms and legs, explained the different kinds of fracture and how to treat them until expert medical aid was available.

Mr Neal, the Scout Master, made a few remarks with regard to the boy scouts convention to be held at Ottawa, and stated that the seven boys to visit the capital would be selected on account of merit above.

Mr. Hughes, assistant scout master, gave a short description of the Military Semaphore System and how and for what purposes it was employed.

A branch of the Boy Scouts was organized on Saturday afternoon at Warsaw by Scout Master Neal of this city. The number enrolled was 16 and they will be under the charge of Mr. Clevate.

WILL TURKEY DECLARE WAR?

LIVELIEST FEAR FELT IN OFFICIAL CIRCLES IN GREECE THAT THERE IS DANGER OF Immediate Hostilities—Large Bodies of Irregular Turkish Troops Concentrating On Grecian Border.

Athens, Greece, Dec. 10.—The liveliest fear is felt in official circles here that Turkey, following the example of Japan in beginning war with Russia without notice, is about to begin open hostilities against Greece without formality.

Large bodies of irregular Turkish troops are concentrating along the Greek frontier, the anti-Greek boycott is increasing in stringency all over Turkey, Greek merchants are being expelled from Turkey in greater numbers from the interior cities, and severities are being practiced in connection with the disarmament of the Greek population of Turkey. The Greeks are satisfied it all means war.

Ostensibly the prosecution of the Greeks is due to the popular feeling in Turkey over the Cretan situation, but the truth is that the vast majority of the Turks neither know nor care about Crete. The fact is that the trouble is being stirred up by irresponsible Young Turkish army officers, eager for military distinction and bent on enhancing their party prestige by a successful campaign.

The meekness with which the naturally excitable Greeks are submitting is, of course, due to the consciousness that their country is too weak to repel a military invasion. Hitherto the Turks were held back by fears of an attack from Bulgaria. Having formed an alliance with Roumania of a nature calculated to keep Bulgaria in check, there is no further reason for delaying operations against Greece.

BURNED HIS OWN FATHER'S BARNS

Lloyd Smelser Found Guilty of Writing Threatening Letters and Terrorizing Parents.

Cayuga, Dec. 10.—Lloyd Smelser came up for trial yesterday before Judge Douglas on a charge of burning his father's barn, and was found guilty. R. S. Colter conducted the defence, and Crown Attorney J. A. Murphy prosecuted. The chain of evidence was connected up by two detectives from Noble's Agency. The judge deferred sentence until December 20.

The charge against Mrs. Amelia Smelser, of issuing threatening letters was withdrawn at the request of the Crown Attorney. Lloyd pleaded guilty previously to issuing threatening letters, and will be sentenced on both charges on December 20.

Unionists Pleased With Results in Scotland—Liberal Organisers Dismayed at Their Failure to Capture More Seats.

London, Dec. 10.—With nearly all the constituencies heard from, the polling yesterday shows three turnovers in favor of the Liberals.

In the Saffron seat of Essex, the Unionist majority of 272 was turned over to the Liberals by 49 majority. The seat was Liberal previous to the January election.

The lord advocate for Scotland, Hon. Alex Ure, was returned in Linlithgow.

NO CHANGE IN SCOTIA.

The Unionises are shaking hands with themselves over the results of the elections in Scotland. Although no Radical seats have been won, no Unionist has lost, but the Radical majorities of last January have been cut down and the Unionist majorities increased.

Liberal organizers confidently anticipated recapturing some county seats lost in January, and are greatly chagrined at their failure. But with Liberal and Labor members in the majority of English boroughs, the Liberals are hoping that their predominance will be maintained, and with a fair amount of good fortune they are looking for ward to a clear majority on the whole representation of England and Wales. Today's returns already show two Liberal gains.

Business men, both Tories and Liberals, are vigorously kicking against the long drawn-out battle. They complain of too many rounds, considering that a decision might be arrived at in one or at most two rounds.

TOO LONG.

This election is probably the last that will be prolonged over three weeks. Changes that will be proposed are that borough elections be one week after the issue of writs, and the county in a fortnight.

Lord Milner, speaking at Bodmin, said he was prepared to stake a good deal that tariff reform would be the policy of the nation before a decade.

Balfour at Hyde complained of Asquith's silence as to details of the home rule bill. All desired to see purely local affairs locally managed. His personal conviction was that the government meant to do as little for home rule as they found they could without quarreling with Redmond.

Bonar Law, at Radcliffe, said if the final results showed the government had lost ground, he did not think even Asquith or any member of the government could go to the sovereign and ask him to upset the constitution of the country.

RIOTS IN IRELAND.

Riotous scenes are taking place in many of the Irish towns. As the result of a riot at Thurles to-night, John Dillon was unable to leave town and had to remain hidden as a crowd waited in the road leading to the railway station to waylay him. The trouble began at a meeting addressed by Mr. Dillon, which the O'Brienites tried to break up, the police had to make several charges to quell the fighting.

The Times declares a "serial" coalition majority could have no moral authority to fundamentally change the constitution.

PRINCE DEPOSED ANOTHER REPUBLIC

Monaco Has Been Proclaimed a Republic, Says a Report.

London, Dec. 10.—Prince Albert of Monaco has been deposed, and the little Mediterranean principality has been proclaimed a republic, according to a report published in The Pall Mall Gazette.

Washington, D.C., Dec. 10.—The United States population is 93,402,151, according to the latest census returns made public to-day.

POSTPONED HIS DARING TRIP

Bobby Leach Must Have Boat Altered Before He Goes over Falls.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Dec. 10.—Jas. Mitchell, owner of the specially designed lifeboat in which "Bobby" Leach intends to make a trip over the Horseshoe Falls, arrived here today from Rivers, Man., to complete the arrangements for the proposed voyage.

Leach originally fixes to-morrow afternoon for the trip, but after the craft was unloaded from the freight car he found that there must be considerable alterations made to the interior, so he put the trip off after Mr. Mitchell's arrival. It will take a first-class boat builder several days to complete the alterations, so the trip is indefinitely postponed.

PRINCESS CHIMAY SACKS HUSBAND

Is Now Seeking to Have Marriage of Third Husband Annulled.

London, Dec. 10.—Clara Ward of Detroit, Mich., the divorced wife of Prince Chimay, who afterwards married her gypsy lover, Rigo, divorced him and became the wife of an Italian named Richardi, is now seeking to have her marriage with the latter annulled. Her reason for taking this step is she says, because of her husband's insane jealousy and unjust accusations of being infatuated with her chauffeur.

MUMPS CLOSES O. A. COLLEGE

Students Sent Away To-day for the Christmas Holidays.

An epidemic of "mumps" has broken out at the Ontario Agricultural College Guelph, and in consequence the Macdonald institute closed a week earlier than is the custom. Pupils were therefore instructed to begin their Christmas vacation at once, and nearly all are leaving the college.

SHAVE SELF? HAIR CUT 50 CENTS

Jersey City Barbers' Union Boosts Price on Some Customers.

New York, Dec. 10. The Italian American barbers of Jersey City organized a union to-day and in framing a schedule of prices agreed to charge 50 cents for every hair cut, when the customers shave themselves.

Cardinal Merry Del Val Still Right Hand Man

The Rumors That Papal Secretary of State is in Disgrace, Discounted by Known Facts.

London, Dec. 10.—Rumors have been frequent in Catholic circles here as well as on the continent that the papal secretary of state is in disgrace because of the many disasters that have befallen the church as a result of his politics.

From the lips of the Archbishop of Westminster himself, I know that there is absolutely no truth in those rumors and that Cardinal Merry Del Val's position is as firm as ever. Only a very few weeks ago the Pope sent him a very costly present and a letter assuring him of His Holiness' absolute confidence in him.

Another thing is that the Pope has recently very often asked the advice of Cardinal Rampolla, but this has only been because the cardinal, as former papal nuncio to Spain, is more familiar with conditions in that country than anyone else in Rome. Cardinal Del Val is as much as ever Pope Pius' right hand.

MUTINY AGAIN AT CITY OF RIO

This Time It Is the Naval Battalion On Cobra Island—May be taken by Storm.

Rio Janeiro, Dec. 10.—The naval battalion in the barracks on Codelbra Island, situated in the bay a short distance from the city, mutinied last night.

The mutineers, were supported by the scout ship Rio Grande de Sul, which took part in the naval revolt of last month.

KING GEORGE'S VISIT TO INDIA

Has Caused Much Stir in Mercantile Houses.

London, Dec. 10.—The recent announcement that King George and Queen Mary contemplate a visit to India to attend a great coronation celebration has caused some stir in mercantile houses affiliated with the Indian trade, as it is expected that the ceremonies, preparations for which are already under way will prove one of the greatest events of next year.

Eighteen Were Taken Alive from Mine---Forty-Five Were Entombed

TWENTY BODIES HAVE BEEN RECOVERED FROM THE BRITISH COLUMBIA COLLERIES.

Of the Men Still Entombed, Four May be Saved—Twenty Dead Bodies Have Been Recovered—Trying to Prevent Spread of Gas.

Fernie, B.C., Dec. 10.—Foty-five miners were entombed last night about eight o'clock in the Bellevue colleries, situated a short distance from Frank, Alberta. Of these eighteen have been rescued alive, twenty dead bodies were recovered.

Of the remaining seven in the gas-crammed pits, four are believed to be alive. These four are in the upper workings, which they succeeded in walling off, to prevent the spread of the gas. The other three may be alive, but the supposition is they are dead. The four may not be rescued for a couple of days, but they should have no difficulty in remaining alive until help reaches them. By midnight the mine was sufficiently cleared of smoke so that workmen could enter to rescue their friends.

When the shock occurred, hundreds of members of the miners' families rushed to the pitmouth, where great excitement occurred. Appeals for help were sent to Fernie, where the Provincial Government of British Columbia have recently installed a splendid rescue apparatus. A special train was immediately made up by Uren, superintendent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, whose lieutenant in charge of the expedition was Cline, Chief Dispatcher. With the doctors and nurses, this train made record time to Frank, where the oxygen helmets and other special rescue apparatus were in great demand.

Two bodies were first found by the rescue party. It looked very black indeed for the fate of the others. Then ten men alive, but some of them in fearful shape, were found at about the same time that two more bodies were recovered. The ten reported that others were still living, and the searchers penetrated further into the workings, where eight more were found in the early hours of this morning. By six o'clock this morning eighteen in all had been taken out alive, and all will have a good chance of recovery, though many are badly burned. To these the nurses and doctors from this city rendered valuable assistance. There is great anxiety around the colliery now for the seven men still known to be inside.

You are not experimenting on your self when you take Chamberlain a Cough Remedy for a cold as that preparation has won for itself a great reputation and extensive sale by its remarkable cure of colds, and can always be depended on. It is equally valuable for adults and children and may be given to young children with implicit confidence as it contains no harmful drug. Sold by all dealers.

A London Syndicate recently purchased 100 lots in Wainwright, Alberta, on the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific, the consideration being about $15,000. This is claimed to be the biggest single real estate transaction in the history of the town.

THE EVIDENCE IS CONCLUDED

Winnipeg Police Deny Charge of Failing to Protect Respectable Citizens.

Winnipeg, Dec. 10.—Evidence was concluded in the Shearer commission this morning, and City Solicitor Theo Hunt began the summing up. Some surprises was manifested when Justice Robson gave his sanction to Prof. Osborne summing up for the Moral and Reform Association, instead of their counsel. The last evidence was that of the police.

GRUESOME PICTURES OF CONVICT LIFE

Berlin, Dec. 10.—One of the musical novelties of the early winter season in Berlin is a troupe of Russian singers who are introducing the songs of Siberian prisoners. They appear in convict garb, with realistic balls and chains, and give a convincing exhibition of what their programme suggestively describe as "Siberia's Sorrow and Joy." The "Chains March" is a particularly gruesome, but appealing number with weird accompaniment effects produced by rattling of chains; and "My Bucket," a plaintiff song interpreting the life of convicts who work in the mines, makes a strong impression.

The Vatican to Have A Year of Mourning

Berlin, Dec. 10. The Vatican will, on January 1, enter upon a year of mourning, during which time every member of the papal household, from the Pope down, will mourn the loss of temporal power by the Holy See.

The German Catholic Workmen's League had requested the Pope to receive a delegation of their members on June 1 of next year. Replying to the request the Pope declared that the Italian citizens would celebrate the year 1911 as the fourtieth anniversary of the abolition of the Pope's temporal power, and that for that reason the Vatican would observe a year of mourning, holding the fewest number of functions possible.

The request of the German workmen was therefore refused.

The Starving People Flee From the Flood

Cardiff, Wales, Dec. 10.—Six thousand persons are homeless and threatened with starvation as the result of disastrous floods which are prevailing in the Aberdare Valley. The families of striking coal miners are the worst sufferers and many of them, already on the brink of starvation, were compelled to flee from their homes, leaving all behind them.

There are whole villages of tents and temporary shelters for refugees but food is scarce.

The River Taff and its tributaries are out of their banks. Villages are deserted and whole communities cut off. The racing waters are washing away railroad tracks. Houses have been washed away and the turbulant streams are filled with wreckage. Fields are inundated for many miles. Torrential rains have prevailed for a week. The loss will go into millions.

KINGSTON GIRL CONFESSED TO CRIME

Rochester, N.Y., Dec. 10.—The police of Rochester today started a widespread search for a pretty 19 year-old girl, who say she is Gertrude Enright, of Kingston, Ont., who is said by the police to have dismembered the body of a baby, stuffing some of the parts in a drain pipe and burning others.

The crime was discovered yesterday in the rooming house conducted by Mrs. Van Duren at 99 Broadway. An investigation to find what was clogging the bath room drain pipe disclosed the arms, legs and trunks of the infant.

CONFESSED CRIME.

The Enright girl broke down and confessed as soon as the discovery was made, the police charge although she disappeared before she could be taken into custody. Mrs. Van Duren told the authorities today that the girl had rented a room from her some time ago, saying that she had come from Kingston.

"She was a handsome girl, not more than 19 years and quiet and "I cannot believe that she could be demure," declared Mrs. Van Duren, responsible for such a tragedy."

The police allege that the girl probably carried the dead body of the infant into the house, dismembered it with a razor. They declare that the head was burned and that the trunk and legs and arms were stuffed into the bath room drain pipe in the Van Duren house.

A suitcase containing the tiny little undergarments of the child soaked in blood, were found which the authorities say belonged to the girl.

The Enright girl was not married, according to the officers and came to the United States in September. The Kingston police were asked today to watch for her.

WONDERED WHY.

Found the Answer was "Coffee."

Many pale, sickly persons wonder for years why they have to suffer so, and eventually discover that the drug—caffeine—in coffee is the main cause of the trouble.

"I was always very fond of coffee and drank it every day. I never had much flesh and often wondered why I was always so pale, thin and weak.

"About five years ago my health completely broke down and I was confined to my bed. My stomach was in such condition that I could hardly take sufficient nourishment to sustain life.

"During this time I was drinking coffee, didn't think I could do without it.

"After awhile I came to the conclusion that coffee was hurting me, and decided to give it up and try Postum. I didn't like the taste of it at first, but when it was made right—boiled until dark and rich—I soon became very fond of it.

"In one week I began to feel better. I could eat more and sleep better. My sick headaches were less frequent, and within five months I looked and felt like a new being, headache spells entirely gone.

"My health continued to improve and today I am well and strong, weigh 148 pounds. I attribute my present health to the life-giving qualities of Postum."

KILLED FATHER THEN HIMSELF

YOUNG MAN WHO HAS RETURNED HOME FROM B.C., MURDERED HIS PARENTS.

Struck with Hammer—James Houston, Jr., Then But His Own Throat and Hacked His Body.

Sherbrooke, Que., Dec. 10.—One of the worst tragedies ever enacted in the Eastern Townships occurred last evening at Danville, resulting in the death of a father and son.

It appears that James Houston, a grocer, and his son James, were at work in the furnace room and the son was using a hammer. It is surmised that the latter struck his father with the hammer, as when found dead, the indications pointed to death resulting from a blow on the head.

The son then took his own life, hacking his throat and body in a shocking manner. He had but recently returned from Victoria, B.C., where he had invested in real estate. He was in poor health.

MURDERS WOMAN FOR SAKE OF ROSE

Vienna, Dec. 10.—A young man of 20, refused a rose by a nursemaid from whom he had demanded the flower, shot her dead on the spot in a street in a suburb of Vienna. At his trial yesterday it was related that he came of good family, and a commission of doctors pronounced him to be insane.

The young man met the nursemaid who was only fifteen years of age, in the street, with a child, and wearing a bunch of roses. On her refusal to give him one he took the revolver from his coat pocket and shot her four times.

At his trial the man said he had decided to adopt the profession of a distinguished criminal. He was completely cool and cynical. He was sentenced to ten years' penal servitude. On each anniversary of his crime he will be confined in a dark underground cell.

Don't trifle with a cold is good advice for prudent men and women. It may be vital in case of a child. There is nothing better than Chamberlains Cough Remedy for coughs and colds in children. It is safe and sure. For sale by all dealers.

ONE LAW FOR ALL.

In a discussion on the loyalty of public men it is remarked that Sir Georges Cartier ought not to be too severely condemned because he as a young man fell under the spell of Papineau. Nevertheless the Mail and Empire is always asking its readers to condemn Sir Wilfrid Laurier because forty four years ago he belonged to a party of young French Canadians who opposed Confederation. It was treason for Laurier to express his opinion against a great constitutional way, but quite excuseable for Cartier to take up arms against British Government.

Cartier lived to take an important and useful part in the government of his country. Laurier has been at the head of the Canadian Confederation during a period of remarkable development. What either of them said or did in his twenties does not lessen the value of his public service. Both were sincere, and were actuated in youth as well as maturity, by genuine patriotism. The rebels of 1837-8 had a good deal of justice on their side. There were many wise and patriotic men who opposed Confederation, including Joseph Howe in Nova Scotia and John Sandfield Macdonald in Ontario. Sir John Macdonald himself was a very tardy convert. But even if they were wrong, they do not deserve condemnation. It is not expected of a statesman that he shall be infallible at every stage of his career, that he shall never change his mind, or that at twenty-five he shall habe the mature wisdom of sixty.

THE DESCENDANTS OF KINGS

Some years ago a book bound in royal purple and containing the names of happy Americans who "validly" might lay claim to royal descent was published and given to a waiting and eager market. Now a volume in red has come which gives a restricted list of Americans who pridefully may say that they spring from the scepter bearers who ruled well or ruled ill, generally ill, in ancient days.

In the purple book there will be found the names of thousands of Americans, each a king in his own right, as we good democrats say, one of whose ancestors at least wore the royal garments. The book in red contains only 160 names. It is far better to one of 160 than one of thousands.

If we are not wrong on paternal statistics one of the earliest English kings had twelve children, all of whom married and had large if not interesting families. Other kings of the early days had just as numerous offspring. Under the natural law of increase the descendants of the kings of the earth are to be counted by millions.

The truly exclusive society of today would be formed of Americans who are not of royal descent. It would be hard work to find enough qualified members to fill the offices of president, secretary and treasurer. Such an organization however, would be the real thing, and the book of membership should be bound in red, white and blue.

THE RED YEAR

—By—
LOUIS TRACY.

At the Flagstaff Tower the 74th and the remainder of the 38th suddenly told their officers that they would obey them no longer. When this last shred of hope was gone, the Brigadier reluctantly gave the order to retreat. The women and children were placed in carriages and a mournful procession began to straggle through the deserted cantonment along the Alipur Road.

Soon the fugitives saw their bungalows on fire. "Then," says that accurate and impartial historian of the Mutiny, Mr. T. R. E. Holmes, "began that piteous flight, the first of many such incidents which hardened the hearts of the British to inflict a terrible revenge. . . . Driven to hide in jungles or morasses from despicable vagrants robbed, and scourged, and derided by villagers who had entrapped them with promises of help, scorched by the blazing sun, blistered by burning winds, half-drowned in rivers which they had to ford or swim across, foiled, weary and starving, they wandered on; while some fell dead by the wayside, and others, unable to move farther, were abandoned by their terror-stricken friends to die on the road."

In such wise did the British leave Imperial Delhi. They came back later, but many things had to happen meanwhile.

The volcanic outburst in the Delhi district might have been paralleled farther north were not the Punjab fortunate in its rulers. Sir John Lawrence was Chief Commissioner at Lahore. When that fateful telegram from Delhi was received in the capital of the Punjab he was on his way to Murree, a charming and secluded hill station, for the benefit of his health. But, like most great men, Lawrence had the faculty of surrounding himself with able lieutenants.

His deputy, Robert Montgomery, whose singularly benevolent aspect concealed an iron will, saw at once that if the Punjab followed the lead of Meerut and Delhi, India would be lost. Lahore had a mixed population of a hundred thousand Sikhs and Mohammedans, hard soldiers every man and ready, so take any side that proposed to settle disputes by cold steel rather than legal codes. If these hot spirits, with their millions of co-religionists in the land of the Five Rivers, were allowed to gain the upper hand, they would sweep through the country from the mountains to the sea.

The troops British and native, were stationed in the cantonment of Mianmir, some five miles from Lahore. There were one native cavalry regiment and three native infantry battalions whose loyalty might be measured by minutes as soon as they learnt that the standard of Bahadur Shah was floating over the palace at Delhi. To quell them the authorities had the 81st Foot and two batteries of horse artillery, or, proportionately, far less a force than that at Meerut the Britons being outnumbered eight times by the natives.

Montgomery coolly drove to Mianmir on the morning of the 12th, took counsel with the Brigadier Setuart Corbett, and made his plans. A ball was fixed for that night. All society attended it, and men who knew that the morrow's sun might set on a scene of bloodshed and desolation danced gaily with the ladies of Lahore. Surely those few who were in the secret of the scheme arranged by Montgomery and Corbett must have thought of a more famous ball at Brussels on a June night in 1815.

Next morning the garrison fell in for a general parade of all arms. The artillery and 81st were on the right of the line, the native infantry in the centre, and the sowars on the left. A proclamation by Government announcing the disbandment of the 34th at Barrackpore was read, and may have given some inkling of coming events to the more thoughtful among the sepoys. But they had no time for secret murmurings. Manoeuvers began instantly. In a few minutes the native troops found themselves confronted by the 81st and the two batteries of artillery.

Riding between the opposing lines the Brigadier told the would-be mutineers that he meant to save them from temptation by disarming them.

"File arms!" came the resolute command.

They hesitated. The intervening space was small. By sheer weight of numbers they could have borne down the British.

"Eighty-first load!" rang out the ominous order.

At the ears of the startled men caught the ring of the ramrods in the Enfield rifles their eyes saw the light of port fires of the gunners. They were trapped, and they knew it. They threw down their weapons with sullen obedience and the first great step towards the reconquest of India was taken.

Inspired by Montgomery the district officers at Umritsar, Moultan, Phillour and many another European centre in the midst of warlike and impetuous races, followed his example and prevent. Brigadier Innes at Firozpore hesitated. He tried half measures. He separated his two native regiments and thought to disarm them on the *morrow. That night one of them en*deavored to storm the magazine, burnt and plundered the station, and marched off towards Delhi. But in ten then made amends. He pursued and dispersed them. Only a shattered remnants of the corps reached the Mogul capital.

Thus Robert Montgomery the ever tempered, suave, smooth-spoken Deputy Commissioner of Lahore! In the far north, at Peshawur, four other men of action gathered in conclave. The gay, imaginative, earnest-minded Herbert Edwardes, the hard-headed veteran, Sydney Cotton, the dashing soldier, Neville Chamberlain, and the lustrous-eyed, black-bearded, impetuous giant, John Nicholson—that genius who at thirty-five had already been deified by a brotherhood of Indian fakirs and placed by Mohammedans among the legendary heroes of their faith—these four sat in council and asked, "How best shall we serve England?"

They answered that question with their swords.

"THE KLONDYKE'S MOTHER LODE"

The storehouse from which the famous placer creeks, Bonanza and Eldorado, receive their fabulous wealth, have been uncovered on the claims of The Victoria Gulch Mines, situated on the ridge at the head of Victoria and Gay gulches. The company's holdings consist of four quartz claims and about 200 acres 14 miles from Dawson, on a good wagon road and two miles from the Klondyke Mines R.R. There are two true quartz veins, between perfect walls 6 and 10 feet wide on the property, the free milling ore from which is literally encrusted with the yellow metal. Read what some of the world's greatest authorities say:

R. G. McConnell, B.A., of the Geological Survey, says in his report on the Klondyke Goldfields,

"A sample in which no free gold could be detected with the naked eye, or an ordinary magnifying glass, was assayed in the laboratory of the survey and gave 2.625 oz. of gold and 3.267 oz. of silver to the ton."

Pro. Henry A. Meirs, D. Sc. F.R.S., Wayflete, Professor of Mineralogy in the University of Oxford, in collaboration with Professor A. P. Coleman in a report to the Minister of the Interior, says: "At the head of Victoria Gulch which runs into Bonanza, a creek opposite Gay Gulch, a tributary of Eldorado, and at a height of about 2,300 feet above Dawson, has been opened, what appears to be a true quartz vein, showing nuggety gold in abundance. The gold is distinctly crystalline in character, and the crystals are of a peculiar form having a triangular outline due to the fact that they are octahedra, and in particular a remarkable variety known as "spinel twins." Now it is significant that the gold found in Victoria gulch is also crystalline and has the same characteristic outline, here then we have fairly convincing evidence that the gold found in a stream gravel is identical with that found in situ in a quartz at the head of the valley and in this instance there can be little doubt as to the origin of the gold."

Dr. Eugene Haanel, Director of Mines, a noted authority on mineralogy in a report to the department in 1902, says: "Masses of quartz were seen protruding from the surface all about the locality, and it needed only to wet the surface of the quartz with water to reveal the bright specks of gold adhering to their surface.

"Gay gulch and Victoria gulch, the former a tributary of Eldorado creek, the latter of Bonanza creeks, limit Victoria Hill toward the sources of Bonanza and Eldorado creeks. Above Victoria and Gay gulches, Bonanza and Eldorado creeks respectively are unproductive, below these gulches the creeks are rich. It seems a reasonable conclusion that the gold in these creeks, at least as far as they flank the side of Victoria Hill, was derived from Victoria Hill."

Mr. R. W. Brock, Director Geological Survey, says: "The district is not glaciated. Gold in the recent gravel freshly derived from its original source is similar to gold in the corresponding White Channel gravel.. Many of the gold grains and most of the nuggets, enclose quartz. Quartz pebbles are found containing gold, some at least very rich in gold. The quartz of the boulders is similar to the quartz of the veins, and gold of the veins to gold of the gravels. From the foregoing and other facts, it is obvious that the gold is absolutely local in origin, derived from the basins of the pay gulches and creeks."

Fred. T. Congdon, Member for the Yukon, stated on the floor of the House of Commons last January that some of the richest gold quartz in the world was being mined close to Dawson.

Just stop and think of the immense possibilities of rich returns from the development of the claims of The Victoria Gulch mines, when two miles of the Mother Lode runs through the property from which the $55,000,000 in placer gold has been already won from Eldorado and Bonanza creeks, the one third the Klondyke's entire output. 100,000 shares of treasury stock of the par value of $1 is now offered for public subscription at 25 cents per share fully paid and non-assessable.

No further issue of treasury stock will have to be made at this price.

THE FRENCH ANGLER

He Takes Sport Seriously and Reads Up in Advance

The Frenchman out on a sporting expedition is, says a writer in the Country Gentleman, like a schoolboy out for a holiday. He is enthusiastic over all he does, and is most anxious to look and act the part he is playing. "Le sport" is a serious business, and must be undertaken in as serious a spirit as a holiday will permit. And so the Frenchman follows whatever sport he takes up according to the proper rules and regulations.

The average French sportsman announces himself and his business long before he has spoken to you, for he invariably dresses the part. He has read up the subject in advance, and he knows what to do and how to do it. The first item is dress; every sport has its proper uniform, and no Frenchman worthy the name would think of starting out in inappropriate garb.

Most anglers attire themselves in gaiters or wading boots, and carry a mackintosh and a sou'wester hat, even though they may be going to the tiniest stream in the finest of weather. They carry a weird assortment of rods and bait-cans and larding nets, and have a habit of leaving some of their property behind. Having arrived at their favorite spot, they laboriously unnumber, and carefully arrange their paraphernalia around them. They will converse gaily to any one with them, and if you are a friend will relate all their sporting adventures. If the fish refuse to bite they will contentedly go to sleep on the bank. Then, if they have caught nothing, they will, gullelike as a child, purchase some fish in order to show their wives. Of course there are other anglers as there are men who know as much about sport as any Englishman, but the [illegible] in France will see about one of the former to one of the

POULTRY FOR MARKET

J. C. Gunn of Montreal Gives Farmers a Few Hints

[illegible] the question why we should be willing to pay one man 17c. per lb. for poultry and to another man only 10c., says John A. Gunn, Montreal. The difference is so great that there must be some reason for it. The reason lies in that the one is properly fattened, killed and prepared for market in the correct manner, whereas the other is simply taken from the flock, killed and marketed in any old way, without any intelligent regard as to what is desired or what is required.

How easy it is for the farmer with his skim milk and other rough products of the farm to fatten up his chickens in crates and feed them for a while before marketing; he then would be able to realize the increased prices that the superior article brings.

Now it is necessary, in order to obtain the best results, that we have the same intelligent co-operation in regard to poultry that we referred to in marketing eggs. The birds would require to be selected for killing and afterwards to be carefully taken care of, and the same care expended on them until they arrive at our warehouse.

It is much better to kill and market fowls of a standard quality, in other words, if anyone brought a dozen fowls to market and two of them were inferior, the buyer would naturally base his standard on the inferior birds. Birds of a uniform quality and weight also command a higher price than when they are otherwise offered for sale.

ROYAL MAIDS

Interesting Chat About the Servants at Buckingham

All the maids at Buckingham Palace wear pink frocks in the morning and must put on a fresh frock every day. In the afternoon the regulation black dress with cap and apron is worn, and the cap and apron must not be worn more than once.

Each maid is allowed, if she desires it, two days in the month when she can be out from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., and she also gets a fortnight's holiday every year.

There are a certain number of maid servants who are put on what is called the travelling staff. It is the special duty of these maids to attend to the packing of the personal luggage of the Queen, and they receive a special training in this work. At least two of these maids always travel with the Royal suite whenever Her Majesty moves from one Royal residence to another, though, of course, at each Royal residence there is a separate permanent staff of maids, says Home Chat.

Whenever Her Majesty pays a visit to any country house two travelling maids accompany the Royal suite, which is generally a small one, consisting of two Ladies-in-Waiting and one or two other members of the household.

HOW TO SECURE A FARM

The Various Methods Available to Alberta Settlers

He may homestead 160 acres;

In certain parts of the province he may in addition to his homestead secure 160 acres through preemption by ultimately paying $3 an acre and complying with certain regulations;

He may buy land from the C.P.R., the only railway company that was given land in this province.

He may buy at auction school lands or Indian lands when such are offered by the Government;

Occasionally he may get Hudson's Bay land;

He may buy improved land from $15 to $25 per acre.

THRILLING TIME IN THE JUNGLE

A Dog's Plucky Fight With a Lion—A Camera Man's Narrow Escape

Simba, the pluckiest fox-terrier in the world, and the only dog of its breed which has ever tackled a full-grown lion "single-handed," has returned to London, her birthplace, from British East Africa. The story of how Simba fought the lion was told by Mr. Cherry Kearton, the dog's master, who has just returned from the Kenia district of British East Africa with a number of cinematograph pictures of wild animals.

Simba's fight with the lion took place when Mr. Kearton was trying to obtain pictures of the killing of a lion by native spearmen. Two lions had been located in some scrub, and twenty Masai warriors, with spears, were ready to attack. The lioness, however, escaped, and the male lion, after appearing for a moment, bolted into a dried river bed and refused to budge.

"Simba," said Mr Kearton, "darted into the donga, and within a few seconds we heard a tremendous roar which seemed to shake the ground, and the bushes within twelve yards of us were violently agitated. The lion roared again and again, and in the brief intervals we heard the weak but very furious yapping of the dog. The Masai stood, every nerve tingling, with spears poised.

Biting the Lion's Tail

"Suddenly the lion dashed through a little clearing, and we were amazed to see Simba hanging on with her teeth embedded in its tail. Three spears were hurled at the screaming beast, with such accuracy that they all transfixed the heart, and the lion fell dead. You must know that the skin of the lion belongs, according to local custom, not to the warrior whose spear inflicts the fatal wound, but to the man who first rushes in and cuts off the black tip from the tail.

"Two of the three spearmen dashed into the donga, but they found Simba with the black tip still between her teeth, resolutely determined to oppose any hostile claim. The spearmen, who were lost in admiration, agreed that the skin belonged by right of seizure to Simba, and they handed it over later to my wife as trustee for the dog."

Mr. Kearton also relates the following stories of his adventures during a very adventurous journey:

"Whilst I was in the Kenia district getting cinematograph pictures I was attacked by fever, and for some days my temperature ranged from 102 to 103 degrees.

"It was while I was in this state that the Somali horsemen told me that they had rounded up four lions. What would I do? I told them that at all costs we would have the fight, and that I and my machine must be carried to the spot, some fifteen miles distant. By the time I arrived three of the lions had escaped, but the fourth was still held up.

"We had with us six Somali horsemen (unarmed) and eighteen Masai spearmen, who were to do the killing, while, as I was unarmed, two spearmen stood guard over me and the camera. The lion made a running fight for about a mile, and again and again charged the horsemen. Then he made a stand.

"The spearmen rushed forward, and at a distance of ten yards six spears were hurled into his body. I was within thirty yards of the beast with my hand on the handle of the machine, but just as the charge was made I fell forward unconscious through weakness. I have no films of that fight."

A Successful Hunt

"But my business was to get pictures, and I relied upon my two spearmen guardians, in whom I had great confidence. So I went on turning the handle. The lioness then seemed to realise that I was not the danger, and she darted back and lay down, awaiting the attack of the advancing Masai.

"Then her heart failed her, but as she turned to bolt, one of the men hurled a short sword, which transfixed her mouth. Turning again, she charged the Masai, bit through three of the shields which the warriors carry, and wounded three of the men before she fell under the spear thrusts. That was a successful hunt with satisfactory results."

Mr. Kearton then related particulars of a "close shave" with a rhinoceros which he had last year in the same district. On this occasion he did not succeed in obtaining any pictures.

"One morning my friend Clark, of the New York Natural History Museum, and I, went to look for a troupe of fourteen lions of which we had heard. We both carried rifles, and our spearmen and some porters accompanied us. Suddenly my camera boy shouted something which I did not catch, and bolted past me.

A Narrow Escape

"Sharply turning, I saw the two spearmen and Clark making with all haste for the only tree in sight. I thought the troupe of lions was on us, but in a second or two I heard the unmistakable puffing noise made by the rhinoceros, and then I saw two coming toward me at full speed. I, too, made a dash for the tree.

"But the tree was too thick to climb. The Masai hid behind the trunk. Clark was five yards away with rifle levelled. The two rhinoceroses came on in a cloud of dust at a speed of about twenty miles an hour.

"When they were within four yards, Clark, whose rifle had jammed, shouted, 'Fire, Kearton. I fired and dropped one. His head as he fell almost touched my feet. Within a few seconds he rose, made as though he would charge Clark, and then bolted.

"I thought the second rhinoceros had followed the wounded animal, but it had gone in another direction, and as I dashed round the tree I ran shoulder to shoulder into it. I suffered most in the collision.

"This rhinoceros escaped, but the one I had shot dropped dead within a hundred yards."—London Daily Mail.

G.T.R. Receipts.

The Grand Trunk October statement shows that gross receipts of Grand Trunk proper increased £25,000; working expenses increased £30,000. Canada Atlantic net profits decreased £1,550, Grand Trunk Western net profits decreased £5,450, and Detroit, Grand Haven net profits increased £1,500. The total net profits for the whole system showed a decrease of £11,300.

St. Michael's May Play Here.

It is likely that St. Michael's Hockey team of Toronto may be induced to come down to play a city team on New Years night.

Chimney Afire.

At 11:30 yesterday morning the firemen were called to 182 Hunter street, where a chimney was ablaze. A couple of chemicals extinguished the fire and no damage was done.

To Be Tried On Friday.

Alfred Meakins, who was committed for trial by Magistrate Dumble on Friday morning, will be placed on trial before Judge Huycke on Friday next at 3 o'clock.

Sale of Useful and Fancy Articles.

A sale of useful and fancy articles and also home-made cake and candy will be held in St. Paul's schoolroom, Saturday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock.

Junior Hockey.

There does not appear that there is much enthusiasm with regard to the formation of a junior hockey league for this city. So far only one club has taken any action and there is not much time to spare.

Quebec Heaters For Sale.

On account of the installing of the heating system in The Times' building, the four Quebec heaters, so well known, are for sale. These stoves are as good as new, and will be sold at less than half price. Also about 100 lengths of pipe, also practically as good as new, at four cents per length.

"Soop Her Up."

The first curling of the season was enjoyed on Saturday night, when two sheets of ice were in fine condition at the Charlotte Street rink, and many players took advantage of it. It is expected that additional rinks will be in good shape by to-night and give many more a chance at the "roarin game."

NOTICE!

All persons having in their possession books belonging to the Public Library which have been retained for a month or over are requested to kindly return them as soon as possible to the Library, Water Street, for purposes of cataloging and classification.

By order,
FRANK ADAMS,
Sec.-Treas. Library Board.

The Twilight Musicale.

The Twilight Musicale given in the Conservatory of Music Hall on Saturday afternoon was a pronounced success. Every number on the programme was loudly applauded by the large and appreciative audience. The Imperial Male Quartette from London England, gave four selections and as usual, carried the audience with them.

Upset By Runaway.

On Saturday morning as the Misses Switzer, who reside near Omemee were driving along Hunter street, the horse became frightened and bolted. Opposite Roy's studio, the cutter struck the curb and the two young ladies were thrown out, but fortunately escaped unhurt. The horse, who was evidently in a hurry to get home, ran up Aylmer street, and turned on to McDonnell being caught near Jackson Park.

The Grain Route.

The plans for the proposed C.P.R. grain route south of Lindsay were filed at the local registry office at Lindsay. The plans show the railway commencing at the G.T.R. iron bridge and running southeast, going within half a mile of the village of Reaboro and thence southeast through Manvers, crossing the west branch of Pigeon Creek a little south of the boundary line.

A Park at Lakefield.

A By-law to declare it expedient in the interests of the Corporation of the Village of Lakefield to purchase Block S as shown on Registered plan number 15 for the said Village of Lakefield and known as "Hague's Point" for Park Purposes, and to authorize the issue of Debentures of the Village of Lakefield to the amount of $3000 for the purpose of raising the sum required therefor, is to be voted on in January.

Canadian Pacific Railway.

Single fare to Toronto and return Dec. 12 and 13th, on account of Fat Stock Show. Tickets to Toronto and return will be sold at all C.P.R. offices and stations good going afternoon trains Saturday, December 10th and all trains Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, December 11, 12, and 13th. Good returning up to and including Wednesday, December 14th. Secure tickets at City Office, W. McIlroy, Agent.

SATURDAY'S MARKET.

A Fair Attendance and Prices Were High.

There was not as large an attendance at the market on Saturday as usual, but there was a good supply of beef and other meets. The upstairs market was crowded and the demand for fowl, butter and eggs far exceeded the supply. The prices asked were:

Potatoes—80c bag.
Apples—$5.00 bbl.
Beef—7½c and 8½c.
Pork—11c and 12c
Turkeys—$2.60 to $3.50, according to size.
Tamarack—$5.00 cord.
Butter—25c lb.
Hardwood—$5.50 cord.
Eggs—35c per doz.
Geese—$1.25 each.
Chickens—80c pair.
Loose Hay—$10.00 ton
Baled Hay—$17.00 per ton
Farmers' Hides—7c.
Butchers' Hides—8c.
Dressed Hogs—$8.50
Live Hogs—$6.40.

The supply of live and dressed hogs were heavy. Hay was also in abundance. No change in the price of hay. Dressed hogs are gone up 50c during the week, and live hogs dropped 10c. The supply of potatoes was small. No ducks were offered and eggs were in small quantities. A larger attendance is looked for next Saturday.

PUT YOUR SAVINGS TO WORK

No Matter how great or how small your savings may be you want them to be earning something for you. If you are saving your money you are doing well. If you are saving your money and placing it at small interest you are doing better. IF YOU ARE SAVING YOUR MONEY AND SENDING IT OUT TO EARN MORE MONEY, YOU ARE DOING THE VERY BEST AND WISEST THING YOU POSSIBLY COULD DO.

Combination of Opportunity and Capital

Is one that is sure to win. You want to combine your capital with this opportunity and secure a share of the profits that we intend to earn for the partners of this splendid enterprise.

Gold-Silver-Copper

The Gold Queen is mining all three. We want a mill to treat our ore. We want you to come in with us and help build this mill. We offer you a limited number of shares of stock in this big company at a price so low that you cannot afford to let the opportunity pass by. We fully expect Gold Queen shares to be selling at five times as much as we are now offering them to you for, just as soon as the mill is ready to handle the rich ore that we have blocked out in our mines.

THE OFFICERS OF OUR COMPANY

Are a sufficient guarantee that we mean business. They are all good, substantial and successful business men. Men who have clear sighted business judgment and rare executive ability. Men who will exert their every effort to make the Gold Queen Mines big producers and who will safeguard the interests of their partners in this money making enterprise at every turn.

THESE ARE THE KIND OF MEN YOU WANT TO BE ASSOCIATED WITH.

The Gold Queen on Baron Mountain, just above St. Elmo, is to the front with a good strike, made recently in their new tunnel, the lore running assays of $50 in gold, silver and copper to the ton. This has hastened work on the various buildings and the machinery is being placed in position as fast as it arrives and can be taken to the mines from the railroad.

The vein is an exceedingly large one and at the time this is being sent out, the miner has not yet penetrated it, indicating that it is one of those bonanzas the camp is becoming so famous for. The exact width of the vein will not be known for some time. While it is not believed that the entire vein will give high assays, yet all of it will be of a good grade of milling and smelting ore. The mine has been under the personal direction of A. J. Stark for some time past, and it is to him that the company owes so much, for it was his thorough knowledge of the country that led them to the present rich vein. The company owns eight claims on Baron Mountain, which are intersect with a large number of tunnels and crosscut workings, all of which show excellent indications of high grade ore. The company held their annual meeting in St. Elmo recently, a large number of stockholders being present, and every one to a man, are highly elated over the bright future of the mine, and will push work on the property as fast as men and machinery can do it. The mine has shipped some ore in the past, but now they will block out ore and have it ready for their mill which they expect to erect in the very near future.

Thirty-Five Dead in Mining Disaster

ONLY FIFTEEN MINERS SAVED FROM THE EXPLOSION AT BELLEVUE.

Rescuers Imprisoned—Two Were Brought Out Dead—Many Bodies Mutilated Beyond Recognition—A Black Christmas.

Fernie, B.C., Dec. 12. The mine explosion in the Bellevue coal mine on Friday night has turned out more disastrous than was expected, and thirty three men, it is now known, are dead, besides two of the rescuing party. Only fifteen out of forty-two men on the shift were rescued. Many of the miners leave families behind, to whom will come a sorrowful Christmas. Fred Aulderson, a brave fire boss from Hosmer, who lost his life in the heroic efforts to save others, leaves a wife and four children in Ireland.

The rescue party were equipped with helmets and oxygen apparatus, and entered the mine, but as the charges lasted only thirty minutes and there were not enough to form sufficient relays they were not as effective as expected. Superintendents and fire bosses from almost every mine along the line were present, and at the front assisting the local miners in their dangerous work were Managers Ashworth, Whitesides, Brown and others, offering any kind of aid required.

MR. J. H. BURNHAM ON CHURCH AND STATE

Public Meeting in Keene Addressed by Several Speakers.

A public meeting took place in Keene last night, at which Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.A., delivered an address on "Church and State," to a large and appreciative audience.

The chair was taken at 8 o'clock by Rev. Mr. Johnson, who introduced the speaker in a few well chosen words.

Mr. Burnham said that some people prefer the rule of the Catholic Church out of religion as well as on it they must not take it hard that others do not. It is not very far-seeing but it is very selfish for some people to be so intolerant and dictational as to think because they themselves want to be at the unquestioned beck and call of somebody else, that others must do the same. It is such unreasoning attitudes as that which lead to trouble. How can they do otherwise? Rev. Father McColl is reported in the Examiner of Dec. 10 as having replied to the various "attacks" on the Catholic Church in relation to Democracy, as follows:

"There is a right democracy and a wrong democracy, and when they were told the Catholic Church were opposed to democracy let them understand it was the false democracy she combatted." Then again, he says "There was a something superior to the will of the people—a something that was superior to all rulers and all law. That was the law of eternal right and justice. The temporal power is not excused from the observance of this law and a Christian state should be governed by religion . . . ."

Now the intent and meaning of this is that the state must submit itself to the Catholic Church. Beyond this bold, and I may say, awful fact, there is little that concerns men it is only this that relates to their liberties. The rest is rivalry. It is true also that that the Catholic Church does not wish this matter brought to the attention of the people lest anger and a spirit of resistance should be aroused—which would hinder it in the accomplishment of its great scheme of upsetting modernism (defined by Professor Watson) to be the liberation of the mind from the weight of authority and tradition, and re-establishing itself as the absolute ruler over mankind. Some people are inclined to treat this matter lightly. It can only be said in answer to this that what has thrown the whole world into chaos and alarm is not to be treated lightly. Why has the Pope decreed a year of mourning? To call the attention of the faithful to the fact that the temporal power must be restored. Is that not significant of the increased energy of the Church? What was the pomp and parade of the Eucharistic Congress for? to show (and it did show) that the state was the servant of the Church. Finally, it may be said that democracy often errs. We all know that. But democracy nevertheless denies the right of the Church to rule it. The Church argues that it alone does not err and that to be right, democracy must hearken to it, and be ruled by it. Democracy denies any such right in the Church or in other portion of mankind. Democracy must rule itself. The people to be free must rule themselves as best they can. The Church is determined to rule them in all things. What can possibly be the result but that frightful conflict which is now rapidly developing the world over.

Several other speakers also addressed themeeting, after wh ch the meeting broke up, not, however, before cheers for the King.

ORDER FROM A BRITISH FIRM

Japanese Newspapers Do Not Like Cruiser Being Built Abroad.

Victoria, Dec. 12.—The news that the Japanese Navy Department had ordered a 27,000-ton cruiser from a British firm came as a surprise to the Japanese public, according to information received here. The Japanese newspapers declare that it is an acknowledgement of Japanese inferiority in warship construction and in direct opposition to the policy of constructing all war vessels at home.

ANOTHER BIG SENSATION IN THE GLOVER MURDER CASE

One the Fateful Night—Wife of Murdered Man Did Not Speak to Former Employee of Laundry as They Passed.

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 12.—The second week of Hattie LeBlanc's fight for life in her trial for the murder of Clarence F. Glover, opened with the biggest sensation of the case. Attorney Melvin M. Johnson rose as soon as court convened and announced that he had found a new and important witness. He moved that the defence be allowed to re-open the case.

The appeal was granted after a half hour argument and Nellie Walsh, formerly an employe in Glover's family and now a cook in the home of Judge Bond, the magistrate presiding in the trial, was called to the stand. The move took the state lawyers entirely by surprise.

The testimony given by Miss Walsh under the clever questioning of Attorney Johnson was aimed at Mrs. Lillian M. Glover, the widow of the murdered man. Her testimony was the most startling in reference to Mrs. Glover that has yet been brought out.

Miss Walsh testified that she met Mrs. Glover on Morely street, Waltham, near the scene of the murder on the night when the crime was committed.

Two other witnesses had testified that they saw a woman, not Hattie LeBlanc near the laundry on the murder, but Miss Walsh is the only one called who testified that Mrs. Glover was seen there.

The testimony of Miss Walsh caused a stir in court, particularly when she declared that she in her own mind, had connected Mrs. Glover with the case. Miss Walsh, who is a middle-aged woman, made a good witness and her testimony was unshaken on cross-examination.

WINNIPEG SICK OF MUCKRAKING

Heaviest Vote in the City's History to Turn Out on Segregation Issue To-day.

Winnipeg, Man., Dec. 12.—With the municipal campaign closed, both parties are completing the organization for getting out of what it is expected will prove the heaviest vote ever cast in a civic elections here. Interest is apparently as keen as if a Federal contest were in progress.

While both of the Shearerites and the supporters of Mayor Evans and the Police Commission profess themselves confident of the result, it depends almost entirely on how the silent vote will go.

The citizens are unanimous in expressions of belief at the close of what necessarily has been a loathsome campaign, with both sides muckraking to strengthen their case.

McNULTY MOANS OVER HIS FATE

"Cruel, Cruel," He Says; "I am Innocent"—Mary Dolan Collapses.

Barrie, Dec. 12.—There was a tragic scene in the Barrie jail this morning when Governor Sissons showed the condemned prisoners, Thos. McNulty and Mary Dolan, whose executions were to take place on Wednesday, that their sentences had been commuted to life imprisonment.

"That's cruel, cruel, cruel," moaned McNulty. "I don't deserve it. I was foolish, but I never committed the crime of writing that letter, telling her to destroy the child. I'm innocent of that. I cannot live with such a cloud over me."

His wife visited the jail later in the day, and was greatly relieved.

Mary Dolan collapsed on learning that her life was doomed to be spent behind prison bars. Her mother, who was in the cell at the time, displayed no emotion, but was nevertheless devoutly thankful. No instructions have yet been received for the transfer of the prisoners to Kingston.

An Open Conflict is Feared in Ireland

London, Dec. 12.—Black clouds, freighted with thunder and lightning of revolt and civil war, are discerned on the political horizon of Great Britain to some observers, who, be it noted, are not usually prone to take a pessimistic view of the future of their country. I do not wish to suggest that definite predictions of such disastrous eventualities are made by any responsible person. On the contrary, it is hoped and believed that the dangers and difficulties of the present situation will be surmounted, but men of light and leading in both the great English parties recognize that these dangers exist and also that the difficulties in the way of averting them are exceedingly great. I have listened to one of the chief advisers of the Unionist party, declaring that the first shot fired in Ulster might be the Fort Sumter of a civil war in these islands, but he added these words: "I hope and believe that the danger will be avoided."

At noon today the Government coalition forces had a lead of 52 in balloting.

Voting was in progress today in twenty-six constituencies, and six results from Saturday's polling were held over until to day.

As the polling progresses in Ireland the sitdation becomes more and more menacing. Radical and Conservative leaders have become fully aroused to the gravity of conditions, and it is tacitly admitted that concerted violence and particularly in Ulster Province might result in bloodshed.

S.O.E. BANQUET.

To be Held on Wednesday.

The annual banquet of Lansdowne Lodge, Sons of England, will be held on Wednesday, Dec. 14th, in the S.O.E. Hall, Hunter street, at 7 p.m.

Messrs. Coleman Bros. are the caterers and a sumptuous repast is assured. The programme is in the hands of a strong committee and they have already filled out an excellent programme.

The lodge has initiated during the past year 35 new members, and this has been achieved without the assistance of any canvasser or any special campaign. This should stimulate the members to even greater efforts, and it is hoped that all the new members, too, who are in the city will make a special effort to be present at the banquet.

This invitation is also extended to every Englishman in the city who can still appreciate an evening spent in the company of fellow-Englishmen.

Quarter Billion Tons of Coal Raised in Britain

London, Dec. 10.—The total value of minerals raised in the United Kingdom in 1909 was £457,577,900, a decrease of £42,436,736 on 1908, mainly to be accounted for by the decreased value of coal.

The actual output of coal was 263,774,312 tons, an increase of 2,245,517 tons, but the average price was only 8s 7d. per ton compared with 8s. 11d in 1906.

Coal was exported to the extent of 63,076,799 tons, France being our best customer with over 25 million tons, and Germany coming next with over nine and two-thirds. Our home consumption of coal was nearly four tons per head of population.

RELIGIOUS FACTIONS START SMALL WAR

A Maxim Gun Had to be Trained on Them Before They Gave Up.

Calcutta, Dec. 10.—Serious fighting between rival religious factions, which began last night, was continued this morning. Several of the combatants were killed and many were injured.

Troops were finally called out and a Maxim gun trained on the fighters, but the fanatics were not dismayed, and were only routed after several charges by the soldiers.

The trouble began when the Hindus protested against the approaching Mohammedan religious festival, at which it is customary to sacrifice cows, animals sacred to the Hindu mind.

WEALTHY CLUBMAN SHOT BY HIS WIFE

His Beautiful Wife Locked Up Charged With the Crime.

Philadelphia, Dec. 12.—Herbert Mason Clapp, a wealthy clubman, of this city is in a hospital with a bullet in his head and likely to die, and his beautiful young wife is locked up charged with having shot him. According to the police, the couple quarreled in their bedroom at 8.30 this morning and Mrs. Clapp jumped out of bed, secured a 44-calibre pistol and shot twice at her husband. One bullet went wild, smashing a mirror but the other crashed through the man's mouth emerging near the left ear.

106 PERSONS IN PERIL ON SHIP

S.S. Olympia Was Pounding on the Rocks When Last Wireless Was Received.

—106 Persons in Peril on Ship—

Valdez, Alaska, Dec. 12.—The steamers June and Dora and the U.S. Government launch Fort Liscum reached the wreck of the Alaska Steamship Company's steamer Olympia shortly before 6 a.m. today, and immediately made an attempt to take off the fifty passengers and fifty-four members of the vessel's crew. A brief wireless despatch from the relief vessels this morning made the announcement, but failed to give any details. The passengers will be brought here.

MEN ARE ON STRIKE THE STORK IS NOT

Five Hundred Babies Born Since the Garment Workers Strike Started.

Chicago, Dec. 12.—Since the beginning of the strike of 40,000 garment workers a month ago, 500 babies have been born among the strikers, according to records kept by the relief committee. The committee now furnishes a supply of milk daily to 7,500 babies, whose parents are on strike.

Every day there are 9,500 loaves of bread and 4,500 pounds of pancake flour distributed to the hungry idle. Because of the different nationalities of the strikers the rations at the various relief stations differ according to their location.

Liberals Make Gain of One Seat So Far

CHAOTIC CONDITION PREVAILS IN IRELAND AND OPEN CONFLICT MAY RESULT.

Premier Asquith's Government Has a Gain of One Seat at the End of First Week's Polling—Interest Centres in Ireland.

London, Dec. 12.—Six belated returns announced today complete the election results of Saturday and bring the coalit on aggregate up to 283 as against 227 Unionist seats in the new Parliament. The Liberals secured again in the Cricklade division of Wiltshire, giving Premier Asquith and his associates a net gain of one seat on the week's polling.

STANDING OF THE PARTIES.

This afternoon the Government's ranks were made up as follows:

Liberals 187.
Independent Nationalists 7.
Labor Members 33.
Unionists elected 227.
Coalitionist majority 52.

INTEREST CENTRES IN IRELAND.

While polling went on in the English election today interest centred in Ireland, where a chaotic condition prevails, and where an open conflict between armed forces may begin a civil war.

The magnitude of the crisis is being realized and Ireland is the centre of this dissension.

DOG THAT KNOWS HOW TO TALK

A Setter Near Hamburg With the Capacity of Human Speech.

A dog story is going round Germany, and will doubtless go round the world. It is to the effect that a setter has been discovered near Hamburg with the capacity of human speech. He literally answers to the name of "Don," and has known how to talk for the last five years. Certainly his vocabulary is not large, as it embraces only six words, but these he is said to use to the point.

Five years ago, the story runs, his master, one of the Kaiser's forest officers named Ebers, seeing Don, as usual, hanging about the table at mealtime, inquired, "What do you want, Don?" whereupon Don promptly replied with the German word for have (haben). His astonished owner set about training the newly-discovered faculty of his dog, and is said to have got so far as to have taught him the German words for hunger, cake, his own name, Don, and yes and no.

The authenticity of the story is vouched for by the owner, and Don has even been "interviewed." It is added that Hagenbeck, the well-known animal collector, has offered £5,000 for the dog for purposes of exhibition.

THE HOMELIKE ROYAL COUPLE

King George and Queen Mary Live Quietly.

It has not been publicly noticed how completely the late Kings' set have dropped out of notice. The people about whom, in the last reign everyone gossiped and chatted, have sunk into complete insignificance. No one notices them in print, and the odd thing is most of them seem to have faded off race courses and other such places where they used to be snapshotted. Meanwhile, the domesticity of the new sovereigns is such that at Balmoral the royal pair invariably went to bed at half-past ten; whilst the Queen used to take her knitting out with her when she went for a walk, and pulled it out of her pocket whenever she sat down. There will be a fresh development of the revival of needlework for ladies. The Duchess of Marborough is a skilled votary of the art.

A Terrific Gale Sweeps Spain, France and Italy.

Marseilles, Dec. 12.—All of Northern Spain and Southern France and the northwest coast of Italy is being swept by a terrific gale of wind and which has already caused a loss estimated at $10,000,000 and fully 150 persons have lost their lives in disaster on land and sea.

The conditions are worse in northern Spain where rivers are out of their banks. While villages have been swept away and thousands are homeless.

A Fierce Bombardment—The Treasury, Foreign Office, and Other Government Buildings Damaged.

Rio Janeiro, Dec. 12.—The Government troops are again in control of the garrison on Cobra Island, and the second mutiny of the Brazilian naval forces has ended with a heavy casualty list, but in a way that will probably prevent further risings for some time to come.

The mutineers in the garrison, who composed a battalion of the marine corps, numbered about six hundred men. Of these, 200 were either killed or wounded. The others were taken prisoners by the destroyers while attempting to escape from the island during the night.

Two hundred citizens were either killed or wounded while watching the bombardment from the streets of the city or along the waterfront. Many Government buildings were damaged including the Treasury, the Foreign Office, and the Department of Public Works and Telegraphs, all handsome structures.

TROUSERS WERE STOLEN FROM CAR

Detroit, Dec. 12—Carlton L. Norton of Adrian began suit to-day in federal court against the Pullman Car Company for $5,000 damage because a pair of trousers belonging to him was stolen from the birth in which he slept. The theft occurred three years ago, while Mr. and Mrs. Norton were en route to Daytona, Fla. In the stolen trousers were a watch and $400 in cash, but Norton estimates the cold he caught and other inconveniences make the damages more than ten times the amount lost.

Letters to The Editor

TAX EXEMPTION.

Strong Letter Dealing With the Very Important Subject.

To the Editor of the Times:

Sir,—A certain portion of this community seems to be greatly exercised over the refusal of the Council to extend the exemption of houses of entertainment, for "houses of entertainment" those in question certainly are. But the Council nor the Legislature either, has no moral right, even if it had a legal right, to saddle the taxpayers with exemption without their consent. Let the whole question, therefore, go to the taxpayers in January, worded say in this way,—"Do you wish houses of entertainment, under private control, to be exempted from taxes?". If they say "No," then the whole question of the exemption of such houses in the past as well as in the present will be provided for, and the course of exemption will have to be retraced and cut out, instead of extended. As the matter stands at present, it is a crisis not a settlement, but that settlement must be looked for without delay. Let enthusiasts for exemption remember, that the taxpayers of this city are saying that this business has gone too far already. If the whole course, with regard to houses of entertainment, is retraced and we are put back where we were at the beginning, then we shall have peace and the only peace possible, viz: peace with justice to all. Let there be no mistake made about the matter, purposely or otherwise. It is wholly a question of exemption. It may appear to be, and for the moment is, a question of discrimination. The good sense of the community may be thoroughly depended upon to settle the question of discrimination, but not until the question of saddling the unfortunate taxpayers with exemptions, is duly and properly settled.

Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

Opportunity is offered to Canadian business men, manufacturers, trust importers, capitalists, etc., to personally investigate business conditions and opportunities for investment in the West Indies and British South America. H. C. MacKenzie, Cornish, managing editor Canada West and India Magazine, has arranged with the Canadian Pacific Railway, Company to secure the S.S. Manitoba, a roomy, comfortable ship provided a hundred and twenty five persons signify their intention to take the cruise. It is proposed the steamship will leave St. John, N.B., January 14, 1911, for a six weeks cruise, returning on or about February 24, which will permit a visit to Cuba and Havana, the various ports in Jamaica, Trinidad, Georgetown, Demerara, St. Kitts, St. Louis, St. Vincent, Antigua, Grenada, Barbadoes, Martinique, Port Rico, San Domingo, and Bermuda, returning to St. John. This ship will be especially equipped with electric fans, orchestra for dancing, etc., a fine motor launch for special shore trips, a darkroom for the convenience of photographers, deck awnings, hammocks for those who desire to sleep on deck etc. The well-known high-class service of the Canadian Pacific Empress steamships will be provided. It is the desire to give Canadians an opportunity for the expansion of commerce between these various countries, and nothing will be left undone to assure the maximum of comfort for the minimum of expense. The number will be limited to 150 passengers, and the fare for the round trip will be from $200 to $300 according to accommodation. This trip has received the endorsement of the Department of Trade and Commerce of Canada.

POLITICAL REFORMS.

Political Reforms come slowly. Prophets of the election platform who have intimated that a change in government would mean an immediate and complete cure for all the ills that the body politic is heir to have seldom been justified by the course of events. There are Democrats who believe that their party's supremacy in Congress will at once be followed by a betterment in living conditions. Tariff reduction will give relief, but it is as well not to expect too much. The Baltimore American has published a sarastic but thoroughly effective cartoon, in which it pictures a sudden and Utopian transformation of the United States by reason of the Democratic triumph. The merchant is inviting his customers to "Come in and select what you want, and pay what you like." The housewife's market basket is overflowing with beefsteak at six cents a pound, eggs at eight cents a dozen, and champagne at seventy cents a quart. The cook has a silk dress, and the poor man's dog is full of quail. The high cost of living under a Republic regime was a live issue during the recent contest, but any who believe that a Democratic victory has assured an immediate lowering of prices may shortly be undeceived. Let it be said again, political reforms are a matter not of days but of years.

There has been uneasiness in some quarters over Canadian negotiations which look towards the final achievement of free trade. The government's critics have credited it with the intention of blowing its trumpets and destroying the country's tariff walls with Jericho-like suddenness. It is in progress at Ottawa, and which safe to say that no such radical and immediate change is to be expected. The negotiations which have been will be later resumed at Washington, have in view the gradual demolition of the tariff, but there is no proposal to use dynamite on it. The reduction will be such as to give the financial interests of both nations a chance to meet them as they occur. To dam the channels of trade without warning, and to at once divert the commerce of two great countries into new channels is foreign to the thoughts of the negotiators.

PLEASE EXPLAIN.

Will the City Fathers please tell the ratepayers their reasons for taking a hand in the agitation, having for its object the deepening of the Welland Canal. Surely they have not lost faith in their own dearly beloved and long suffering Trent Waterway?

PEACE MUST PREVAIL.

Germany will launch six dread noughts and four armoured cruisers next year. This will be the largest number of war ships ever launched by any nation in a single year, but we may expect England to launch at least twenty during the ensuing year. Peace must and shall prevail.

IS THE WORLD GETTING BETTER

The United States has just passed through a banner year for drinks and smokes and oleomargarine. The nation's record for the twelve months ended June 30 shows—That 163,000,000 gallons of distilled spirits were produced 30,000,000 gallons more than the year before. That 59,945,117 barrels of fermented liquors were produced, an increase of 3,000,000. That 7,600,000 cigars were produced, 160,000,000 more than in 1909. That 6,830,000,000 cigarettes were made, an increase of a solid billion. That 402,000,000 pounds of plug, fine cut, cube cut, granulated or sliced smoking or chewing tobacco or snuff were produced; 4,000,000 pounds of oleomargarine were made, 50,000,000 pounds increase.

CHAPTER IV.

On the Way to Cawnpore

In Meerut reigned that blessed thing, Pax Britannica, otherwise known as the British bulldog. But the bulldog was kept on the chain and peace obtained only within his kennel. Malcolm, deprived of his regiment, gathered under his command a few young civilians who were eager to act as volunteer cavalry, and was given a grudging permission to ride out to the isolated bungalows of some indigo planters, on the chance that the occupants might have defended themselves successfully against the rioters.

In each case the tiny detachment discovered blackened walls and unburied corpses. The Meerut district abounded with Goojers, the hereditary thieves of India, and these untamed savages had lost none of their wild-beast ferocity under fifty years of British rule. They killed and robbed with an impartiality that was worthy of a better cause. When Europeans, native travelers and mails were swept out of existence they fought each other. Village boundaries which had been determined under Wellesley's strong government at the beginning of the century were re-arranged now with matchlock, spear and tulwar. Old feuds were settled in the old way and six inches of steel were more potent than the longest Order in Council. Yet these goonds fled at the sight of the smallest white force, and Malcolm and his irregulars rode unopposed through a blood stained and deserted land.

On the 21st of May, eleven days after the outbreak of the Mutiny, though never a dragoon or horse gunner had left Meerut cantonment since they marched back to their quarters from the ever-memorable bivouac, Malcolm led his light horsemen north, along the Grand Trunk Road in the direction of Mazuffernugger.

A native brought news that a collector and his wife were hiding in a swamp near the road. Happily, in this instance, the two were rescued, more dead than alive. The man, ruler of a territory as big as the North Riding of Yorkshire, his wife, a young and well-born Englishwoman, were in the last stage of misery. The unhappy lady, half demented, was nursing a dead baby. When the child was taken from her she fell unconscious and had to be carried to Meerut on a rough litter.

The little cavalcade was returning slowly to the station when one of the troopers caught the hoof beats of a galloping horse behind them. Malcolm reined up, and soon a British officer appeared round a bend in the road. Mounted on a hardy country-bred, and wearing the semi-native uniform of the Company's regiments, the aspect of the stranger was sufficiently remarkable to attract attention apart from the fact that he came absolutely alone from a quarter where it was courting death to travel without an escort. He was tall and spare of build, with reddish brown hair and beard, blue eyes that gleamed with the cold fire of steel, close set lips, firm chin, and the slightly-hooked nose with thin nostrils that seems to be one of nature's tokens of the man born to command his fellows when the strong arm and clear brain are needed in the battle-field.

He rode easily, with a loose rein, and he waved his disengaged hand the instant he caught sight of the white faces.

"Are you from Meerut?" he asked, his voice and manner conveying a curious blend of brusqueness and gentility, as his tired horse willingly pulled up alongside Nejdl.

"Yes. And you?" said Malcolm, trying to conceal his amazement at this apparition.

"I am Lieutenant Hodson of the 1st Bengal Fusiliers. I have ridden from Kurnaul, where the Commander-in-Chief is waiting until communication is opened with Meerut. Where is General Hewitt?"

"I will take you to him? From Kurnaul, did you say? When did you start?"

"About this hour yesterday."

Malcolm knew then that this curt-spoken cavalier had ridden nearly a hundred miles through an enemy's country in twenty-four hours.

"Is your horse equal to another hour's canter?" he inquired.

"He ought to be. I took him from a bunniah when my own fell dead in a village about ten miles in the rear."

Bidding a young bank manager take charge of the detachment, Frank led the newcomer rapidly to headquarters. Hodson asked a few questions and made his companion's blood boil by the unveiled contempt he displayed on hearing of the inaction at Meerut.

"You want Nicholson here," said he, laughing with grim mirth. "By all the gods, he would horse-whip your general into the saddle."

"Hewitt is an old man, and cautious, therefore," explained Frank, in loyal defense of his chief. "Perhaps he deems it right to await the orders you are now bringing."

"An old man! You mean an old woman, perhaps". I come from one. I had to go on my knees almost before I could persuade Anson to let me start."

"Nonsense! Why is one a soldier! I would cross the infernal regions if the need arose. If I had been in Meerut on that Sunday evening, no general that ever lived could have kept me out of Delhi before daybreak. The way to stop this mutiny was to capture that doddering old king and hold him as a hostage, and twenty determined men could have done it easily in the confusion."

That was William Hodson's way. Men who met him began by disliking his hectoring, supercilious bearing. They soon learn to forget his gruffness and think only of his gallantry and good-comradeship.

At any rate his stirring advice and the dispatches he brought roused the military authorities at Meerut into activity. Carrying with him a letter to the Commander-in-Chief he quitted Meerut again that night, and dismounted outside Anson's tent at Kurnaul at dawn on the second day!

On the 27th, Archdale Wilson led the garrison towards the rendezvous fixed on by the force hurriedly collected in the Punjab for the relief of Delhi. On the afternoon of the 30th, cavalry vedettes reported the presence of a

Real Mining Pays Better Than Anything Else

Here is an opportunity to invest in a Real Mine. Property developed. Plenty of pay ore in sight to guarantee the success of the enterprise. Mill and equipment are all paid for in full. Small amount still needed to install the equipment for which

This is a bonafide gold mine and will yield big returns on the investment and can be put on a paying basis immediately.

For a short time we will offer this stock at the following prices and terms:

$35.00 buys	100 shares.	$10.00 cash,	$5.00 per mo.	for 5 months
50.00 buys	150 shares.	15.00 cash,	7.00 per mo.	for 5 months
100.00 buys	325 shares.	25.00 cash,	15.00 per mo.	for 5 months
275.00 buys	1000 shares.	50.000 cash	32.00 per mo.	for 5 months
200.00 buys	700 shares.	40.00 cash,	40.00 per mo.	for 5 months
500.00 buys	2000 shares.	80,000 cash,	64.00 per mo.	for 5 months

An additional discount of 5 per cent. where all cash accompanies the order. Certificates issued when final payment is made. The above prices are very low when the small capitalization is considered. Stock is all one class. Issued fully paid and non-assessable.

Capital stock, $400,000. Shares 400,000. Capacity of the mill, 50 tons per day. Average value of ore, $15.00 per ton. Cost of mining and milling, less than $4.75 per ton. Net profits per ton, $10.25.

Property consists of three mining claims or 62 acres, over three-quarters of a mile in length, with a vein running the entire length; with an average width of from 3½ to 4 ft. Vein proven to a depth of from 75 to 200 ft. at different points and no indication of the vein running out, but grows deeper with depth.

Don't let this opportunity go by.

"THE KLONDYKE'S MOTHER LODE"

The storehouse from which the famous placer creeks, Bonanza and Eldorado, receive their fabulous wealth, have been uncovered on the claims of The Victoria Gulch Mines, situated on the ridge at the head of Victoria and Gay gulches. The company's holdings consist of four quartz claims and about 200 acres 14 miles from Dawson, on a good wagon road and two miles from the Klondyke Mines R.R. There are two true quartz veins, between perfect walls 6 and 10 feet wide on the property, the free milling ore from which is literally encrusted with the yellow metal. Read what some of the world's greatest authorities say:

R. G. McConnell, B.A., of the Geological Survey, says in his report on the Klondyke Goldfields.

"A sample in which no free gold could be detected with the naked eye, or an ordinary magnifying glass, was assayed in the laboratory of the survey and gave 2.625 oz. of gold and 3.267 oz. of silver to the ton."

Pro. Henry A. Meirs, D. Sc. F.R.S., Waynflete, Professor of Mineralogy in the University of Oxford, in collaboration with Professor A. P. Coleman in a report to the Minister of the Interior, says: "At the head of Victoria Gulch which runs into Bonanza, a creek opposite Gay Gulch, a tributary of Eldorado, and at a height of about 2,300 feet above Dawson, has been opened, what appears to be a true quartz vein, showing nuggety gold in abundance. The gold is distinctly crystalline in character, and the crystals are of a peculiar form having a triangular outline due to the fact that they are octahedra, and in particular a remarkable variety known as "spinel twins." Now it is significant that the gold found in Victoria gulch is also crystalline and has the same characteristic outline, here then we have fairly convincing evidence that the gold found in a stream gravel is identical with that found in situ in a quartz at the head of the valley and in this instance there can be little doubt as to the origin of the gold."

Dr. Eugene Haanel, Director of Mines, a noted authority on mineralogy in a report to the department in 1902, says: "Masses of quartz were seen protruding from the surface all about the locality, and it needed only to wet the surface of the quartz with water to reveal the bright specks of gold adhering to their surface.

"Gay gulch and Victoria gulch, the former a tributary of Eldorado creek, the latter of Bonanza creeks, limit Victoria Hill toward the sources of Bonanza and Eldorado creeks. Above Victoria and Gay gulches, Bonanza and Eldorado creeks respectively are unproductive, below these gulches the creeks are rich. It seems a reasonable conclusion that the gold in these creeks, at least as far as they flank the side of Victoria Hill, was derived from Victoria Hill."

Mr. R. W. Brock, Director Geological Survey, says: "The district is not glaciated. Gold in the recent gravel freshly derived from its original source is similar to gold in the corresponding White Channel gravel. Many of the gold grains and most of the nuggets, enclose quartz. Quartz pebbles are found containing gold, some at least very rich in gold. The quartz of the boulders is similar to the quartz of the veins, and gold of the veins to gold of the gravels. From the foregoing and other facts, it is obvious that the gold is absolutely local in origin, derived from the basins of the pay gulches and creeks."

Fred. T. Congdon, Member for the Yukon, stated on the floor of the House of Commons last January that some of the richest gold quartz in the world was being mined close to Dawson.

Just stop and think of the immense possibilities of rich returns from the development of the claims of The Victoria Gulch mines, when two miles of the Mother Lode runs through the property from which the $55,000,000 in placer gold has been already won from Eldorado and Bonanza creeks, the one-third the Klondyke's entire output. 100,000 shares of treasury stock of the par value of $1 is now offered for public subscription at 25 cents per share fully paid and non-assessable.

No further issue of treasury stock will have to be made at this price.

KAISER FAVORS SWORD DUELS

Germany's Versatile Emperor Has Given a Fresh Impetus to the Art of Fencing.

After discussing politics with his eastern and western neighbors, represented by the Czar and the King of Belgium, the Kaiser has now found time to deal with a less important subject by way of recreation, and has just issued an article on fencing. As every one knows, Emperor William is a strong partizan of the duel, once the court of honor has decided that in the given circumstances it should take place, and he has laid it down that "every honorable man, no matter what his rank or position, must be ready to give satisfaction."

The rescript gives preference to the sword over the pistol as a duelling weapon, and, consequently, one result of the rescript has been to greatly encourage the study of the art of fencing in the German army.

The Royal Military Gymnasium in Berlin, which has two classes yearly in the art, each embracing more than a hundred officers from all parts of the empire, has increased the number of hours devoted to practice. The courses include instruction in the use of the sabre, rapier, foil and bayonet.

It is said that a close observer in Berlin can identify many officers as constant attendants at the fencing schools by the blue marks on their finger nails, which testify to the vigor of their attack and defence.

ATE ANCIENT HEN FRUIT TOO

Li Hung Chang's Commissariat Carried Century-Old Product of Hens.

When Li Hung Chang made his tour of the world his commissariat carried with it a supply of Chinese preserved eggs for the venerable ambassador's special use. Some of these eggs were exhibited in New York while he was staying there, and a few experts had the temerity to sample them. "They were not so bad after all," was the verdict of one American connoisseur "although by their looks you would think they would come under the ban of the pure food law."

The eggs were encased in clay, and when unpacked looked like pieces of pumice stone. They are preserved in this way by Chinese for a century or more, and Li Hung Chang admitted that the hen which laid the eggs for this morning meal might have been decapitated anywhere from a quarter to a half century before he was born. The process of keeping is very primitive, but effective as it is simple. The eggs are first boiled hard, and then while they are hot they are wrapped in soft clay and packed away.

AGE IMPROVES THE FLAVOR

In this connection the Chinese claim they will keep forever, and not lose their flavor or wholesomeness, indeed, they consider that age improves the flavor. Li Hung Chang's commissariat brought the eggs for his personal use in bags, packed away in rice husks, but as the clay was hard there was nit much danger of breaking them. When opened the "white" was found to be almost black and the yolks green. The flavor, however, was preserved. The Chinese chop these preserved boiled eggs and decorate most of their viands with them

Duck eggs are also preserved by the Chinese in somewhat similar fashion. There is a considerable trade in duck eggs of the Peking and Muscovy breed, and many Chinese in this country import them from China in the preserved condition. The duck eggs are boiled and preserved in a paste of charcoal instead of clay.—Harper's Weekly.

HATTIE WILL NOT GO ON STAND

Evidence for Defence in Glover Murder Mystery Will End Today.

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 12.—Hattie LeBlanc will be spared the ordeal of going upon the stand in her trial for the murder of Clarence F. Glover. This announcement was made by her lawyer today. Every indication is that the testimony of the defence will end today, and then a few witnesses that the prosecution had held for rebuttal will probably be heard. Mrs. Glover may be questioned further by Attorney M. M. Johnson.

The fate of Hattie LeBlanc will be in the hands of the jury late Tuesday afternoon.

Hattie's own story of what happened in the laundry the night of Glover's shooting will go before the jury only through the statement Hattie made to the Waltham police the night she was dragged from beneath the bed in the Glover home, where she had been in hiding for three days. The testimony against the admission of which Attorney Johnson fought, will be the 17-year-old girl's defence coming from her own lips.

Mrs. Alma Roche, of Somerset, assumed the stand at the opening of court, and she said, she heard Mrs. Glover say, "She would never end her days with Glover."

WRITER OF "KELLY"

The Author, a Glasgow Man, Died in Tragic Circumstances

The author and composer of "Kelly" has just died in tragic circumstances. His name was Will Letters, and he was known throughout the music hall profession as a man of many admirable traits. He started his career on the stage at the modest end of the business, and attained some eminence as a comedian.

For several years he has appeared with the Pierrots at various summer resorts, and he was thus engaged when attacked with a fatal hemorrhage of the lungs. It occurred last week when he was at work in his white suit and painted face. He lurched forward, and was carried out to await the arrival of the doctor. He became delirious at a later stage, and rambled furiously about songs he was to write.

Letters was one of a school of comedians who had their first successes in the singing rooms—"sing-songs" they were called—of the North of England. Possessed of a good, strong voice says the Daily Sketch, he first of all made descriptive songs his specialty, but in later years he developed low comedy.

He was engaged successfully in various pantomime productions in England, Ireland, and Scotland, and for a time played the part of Sergeant Lightning in Fred Karno's "Dandy Thieves." He also appeared in succession to Fred Kitchen, as John Willie Jaggs in "Saturday to Monday."

With a certain gift of melody he put together a number of music hall song successes and provided Willie Bard with one of his greatest pantomime hits, "Put me on an Island where the girls are few," which was wedded to a garbled version of Mendelssohn's "Spring Song."

Later he wrote "Has anybody here seen Kelly?" a song which became so popular as to be a nuisance. The song was taken to Canada and the United States and was the rage of the last song season. His latest success was "Flanagan," which Miss Florrie Forde sang at the Isle of Man. He was engaged on other numbers at the time of his sudden and fatal indisposition.

He was a Glasgow man, and something of a favorite in that city. Following upon several years' approved appearances in pantomime, he had been re-engaged as chief comedian at one of the Birmingham theatres next season.

MILLIONAIRES' DISPLAY

Ten Thousand Pounds Spent Ove Grouse Shooting

Mr. Harry Payne Whitney, the millionaire, who derives his wealth from banking and railway enterprise, is illustrating the pitch of costliness to which sport in England may attain. Mr. Whitney has laid out about $50,000 upon the grouse shooting over the Holwick Moors.

Mr. Whitney left New York on August 13th by the White Star liner Celtic, and disembarked at Holyhead With him travelled Mrs. Whitney, their two children, and a number of sportsmen he has brought over for the grouse shooting, a party.

Mr. H. Burden, Mr. Payne Thompson, and several other well-known "New Yorkers" travelled in luxuriant style and occupied the private suites specially fitted, and for which a charge of $700 each is reported to have been made. The sitting rooms in the suites were decorated daily with choice flowers, for which Mrs. Whitney paid $200 before leaving New York.

During the early part of the voyage the millionaires' party kept to their own rooms, but later on dined in the saloon and entered upon an exchange of socialities with other passengers.

Mrs. Whitney, who is a daughter of Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt, and is said to be worth a couple of millions in her own right, appeared in a number of magnificent costumes during the voyage, and on one occasion wore a diamond necklace worth $50,000. Mr. Harry Payne Whitney, like his father, the late Mr. Charles Whitney, one time Secretary to the American Navy, during the Administration of President Cleveland, is a keen sportsman, and keeps the best racing stable in the States.

SHOULD DOCTORS SHAVE?

A Question Which Has been Discussed for 300 Years

The question, which has been discussed for some three hundred years, as to whether the doctor, and more especially the surgeon, should sacrifice that playground of microbes—his beard—is once more to the fore, especially in France, says The Hospital. It is more than probable that everyone interested will act according to his own particular fancy in this matter, and it will probably be a long time before our Gallic confreres will be forced to sacrifice the glories of their facial decorations on the altar of hygiene. Those who have embarked upon the present crusade attack the problem from a somewhat different standpoint, and although the bacteriology of the beard has not as yet been the object of very profound study, their ideas are not unreasonable. Still, without being as radical as they would like, is it not possible that the sanctity of the laws of hygiene can be respected by the use of ordinary measures of cleanliness, or, at most, an antiseptic beard-bath?

PIGEON'S LONG TRAVELS

A homing pigeon liberated from Stafford on July 23, alighted on the liner Laurentic soon after it got out to sea on its last outward passage, and the bird was taken to Montreal, returning with the vessel to Liverpool. It was then thrown into the air with a label attached to its leg by the ship's officers, and it was found by its owner in the loft at Sowerby Bridge.

Smokers' Presents

BUSINESS FIRMS:

You may desire to give your good dealers some token of your appreciation for the year's orders received, or make the Heads of your department a Christmas Gift in recognition of their services for the past twelve months. There is nothing that pleases more than a gift of Cigars, Pipes or Tobaccos. If you feel favorably inclined, will send samples cigars and pay delivery charges upon any cigars ordered of our own manufacture.

From Facory to Smokers

We give better value than any ordinary dealers, the reason, being cigar and tobacco manufacturers, we sell just above cost, without the usual jobber's profit. I buy my tobacco in Havana personally, and am enabled to give you better value.

We put up cigars ten in a Box. Prices range from 75c, 85c, 95c, $1.10.

PUT YOUR SAVINGS TO WORK

No Matter how great or how small your savings may be you want them to be earning something for you. If you are saving your money you are doing well. If you are saving your money and placing it at small interest you are doing better. IF YOU ARE SAVING YOUR MONEY AND SENDING IT OUT TO EARN MORE MONEY, YOU ARE DOING THE VERY BEST AND WISEST THING YOU POSSIBLY COULD DO.

The Combination of Opportunity and Capital

Is one that is sure to win. You want to combine your capital with this opportunity and secure a share of the profits that we intend to earn for the partners of this splendid enterprise.

Gold-Silver-Copper

The Gold Queen is mining all three. We want a mill to treat our ore. We want you to come in with us and help build this mill. We offer you a limited number of shares of stock in this big company at a price so low that you cannot afford to let the opportunity pass by. We fully expect Gold Queen shares to be selling at five times as much as we are now offering them to you for, just as soon as the mill is ready to handle the rich ore that we have blocked out in our mines.

THE OFFICERS OF OUR COMPANY

Are a sufficient guarantee that we mean business. They are all good, substantial and successful business men. Men who have clear sighted business judgment and rare executive ability. Men who will exert their every effort to make the Gold Queen Mines big producers and who will safeguard the interests of their partners in this money making enterprise at every turn.

THESE ARE THE KIND OF MEN YOU WANT TO BE ASSOCIATED WITH.

The Gold Queen on Baron Mountain, just above St. Elmo, is to the front with a good strike, made recently in their new tunnel, the lore running assays of $50 in gold, silver and copper to the ton. This has hastened work on the various buildings and the machinery is being placed in position as fast as it arrives and can be taken to the mines from the railroad.

The vein is an exceedingly large one and at the time this is being sent out, the miner has not yet penetrated it, indicating that it is one of those bonanzas the camp is becoming so famous for. The exact width of the vein will not be known for some time. While it is not believed that the entire vein will give high assays, yet all of it will be of a good grade of milling and smelting ore. The mine has been under the personal direction of A. J. Stark for some time past, and it is to him that the company owes so much, for it was his thorough knowledge of the country that led them to the present rich vein. The company owns eight claims on Baron Mountain, which are intersect with a large number of tunnels and crosscut workings, all of which show excellent indications of high grade ore. The company held their annual meeting in St. Elmo recently, a large number of stockholders being present, and every one to a man, are highly elated over the bright future of the mine, and will push work on the property as fast as men and machinery can do it. The mine has shipped some ore in the past, but now they will block out ore and have it ready for their mill which they expect to erect in the very near future.

A RELIABLE REPRESENTATIVE WANTED TO REPRESENT US IN ONTARIO.

Reason Ultimately Rules!

Be it known that "caffeine"—the drug in coffee—is a poison that works directly on nerves, stomach and heart.

It is hardly as quick in destruction as whiskey, but in time, quite as certain.

Our duty ends with telling the facts. Individuals are, of course free to follow their own inclination. They can continue the drug and pay the cost in physical suffering or quit and return to comfortable health, provided the disease (stomach, bowels, kidneys, nerves or heart) has not become chronic.

It is our work to narrate the facts and offer an easy way to slip off the coffee habit and not feel it.

If a good, hot, well-made cup of Postum is served instead of the coffee, it furnishes the deep seal brown beverage which turns to a rich golden brown when creamis added and all the comfort of the morning cup is there, with this increased and never-to-be-forgotten advantage.

The drug-poison and its effect on stomach, nerves, bowels and heart is gone. In its place day by day can be plainly seen the effects of the change. The killing work of the drug has been stopped, Nature begins to repair, and is helped tremendously by supplying the needed elements Dame Nature requires to do her rebuilding.

These elements are in Postum. It is not necessary to take anyone's word for it. Try it yourself. Quit the coffee 10 days. Use Postum (well made according to easy directions on package). Then at the end of the ten days take account of your gain toward health. If it shows well (and it will) keep on the good comfortable road.

There's no joy on earth equal to the joy (24 hours in the day) of perfect health. If you have been a coffee victim, you'll appreciate it. Besides, health gives you power to make money, and money rightly used brings comfort.

Wake Up!

THE CANADIAN CLUB.

A Large Attendance Expected to be Present.

As previously announced in The Times, Principal Falconer of Toronto University, will address the Canadian Club on Thursday evening next, the 15th inst., at the National Hotel, on which occasion a large turnout is expected.

On January 9th, Hon. Clifford Sifton has been secured to address the Club, and on January 19th, Rev. Dr. Symonds of Christ Church Cathedral Montreal will speak.

These are all noted and scholarly lecturers and their addresses should be exceedingly interesting.

Obituary.

FINLAY WILSON.

An old and respected resident of Peterborough passed away on Sunday, in the person of Mr. Finlay Wilson, aged 82 years, at his residence, 550 Chamberlain street. Deceased was born in Donegal, Ireland, and came to Canada as a boy. The death occurred at 8.30 a.m., the cause being his advanced age. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 to Little Lake cemetery, the services to be conducted by Rev. H. J. Keith, at 2 p.m.

Mr. Wilson was an uncle to Mr. John Mervin of this city, and of Mrs. T. J. Lee, of Gilbert Plains.

CHAS. F. RAYMOND.

Word was received in the city from Guelph yesterday of the death in that town at the home of his mother of Chas. F. Raymond, formerly editor of the Peterborough Review. Mr. Raymond left here for his home in Guelph about three weeks ago. He was widely known throughout Canada as a newspaperman and has a host of friends who will be shocked to learn of his death.

BROCK ST. RINK.

A deal was closed yesterday afternoon by which the Brock street rink, which has been owned and operated by the Peterborough Hockey Club, Limited, was purchased by a syndicate of local gentlemen. As far as the general public is concerned there will be practically no change as the rink will be carried on and operated as usual.

Weedmark will Pay Penalty This Morning

HIS FOUR LITTLE GIRLS PAY LAST VISIT TO THE FATHER.

Death Watch Guards Little Group as They say the Last Words of Farewell.

Perth, Ont. Dec. 14.—Encased in a cheap little coffin interred in Smith's Falls cemetery lies the body of the murdered Catharine Weedmark. Incarcerated in the death cell of Perth jail, calmly watching the sands of his life ebb away is her husband, Rufus Weedmark, who choked his wife to death on April 30th of this year.

Four little golden haired girls and their eldest sister recently married, who, with fitful sobs and weeping eyes, watch the hurrying minutes and seconds that *bring*s their father nearer the rope and eternity, are survivers of the grim tragedy.

Early last week the four little girls ranging from 12 to 5 years of age, accompanied by their aunt, journeyed from Smith's Falls to pay their last visit to their condemned father.

LAST VISIT TO FATHER.

They were received by the death watch in the corrider set aside for the exclusive use of the doomed man. A table was especially prepared by the authorities for the interview, and the fair little visitors were forced to sit on one side of the structure while their father occupied a seat just across. Accustomed as the jail guards were, to scenes of misery and sorrow, the pitiful spectacle presented that afternoon was one unequalled in their memory. On one side sat the fair innocent girls with their childish eyes filled with tears, while every now and then a tiny hand would steal across a chubby dimpled cheek and wipe away a tear.

GUARDED BY DEATH WATCH.

On the other hand the father sat with eyes dimmed with emotion looking longingly and eagerly at his loved ones whom he would never see on earth again. And in the shadow of the plain limestone corridor, with its low whitened and arched roof, stood the death watch, his presence over-looking all and constantly reminding the sorrowful family gathering of the grim hereafter. At the close of ten minutes' interview Rufus Weedmark was softly touched on the shoulder and in this mute manner notified that his last talk with his children must be concluded.

GOOD-BYE FOREVER.

The man slowly arose and with a quick passage of his hands across his face huskily said, "Good bye, my darlings, forever." Slowly staggering down the passage, but without looking at the retreating forms of his dear ones, he again reiterated huskily "Good-bye," but his last words to his family were drowned by the clang of the prison doors.

HEAD BATTERED BY A CROWBAR

Well-Known Lawyer Murdered in His Room in a Chicago Lodging House.

Chicago, Dec. 14.—Nathaniel B. Hyde, former United States Commissioner for the southern district of Wisconsin, grandson of former governor Baldwin of Massachusetts, and a member of the New York and Wisconsin bars, was murdered in his room at his lodging house last night. His head was battered in by a crowbar.

The death was discovered when Hyde's life's blood had trickled through a crack in the floor to the room beneath.

A letter which he was in the midst of writing is the only clew the police have and through it they hope to trace a Mexican, who became a tenant of Hyde several days ago. Hyde was 76 years old.

ATTORNEY MELVIN JOHNSTON CONCLUDED HIS ADDRESS

HATTIE LE BLANC'S FRIENDS ARE CONFIDENT OF HER ACQUITTAL, PLAN A RECEPTION.

Will Go to Her Home—Women Stand for Hours in the Cold to Secure an Entrance to the Court Room.

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 14.—Hattie LeBlanc who has been on trial for her life, charged with the murder of Clarence F. Glover, may know her fate this afternoon or to-night. So confident are her friends that she will be acquitted that they have planned a reception upon her return to freedom after a year in jail. If she is freed she will go back to her birth place at West Arichat, Cape Breton, with the family priest.

THE DEFENCE CONCLUDES.

Attorney Melvin M. Johnson, council for the defence, concluded his address to-day. He renewed his arrangements of Mrs. Lillian M. Glover, widow of the murdered man, referring to her again and again as a vampire, and spoke of Hattie LeBlanc's experience in the Glover home as "white slavery."

He referred to Hattie LeBlanc as an innocent girl of 14 who had been brought from West Afichat and ruined in the Glover household. He said that the reason that the defendant was not put on the stand was to avoid such an exhibition as was afforded Evelyn Thaw.

WOMEN STRIVE FOR ENTRANCE

A great crowd sought admittance to the court room for the last day of the trial. Women stood for hours in the cold to secure a place in line. Hundreds stood in line and then found that they could not get into the court room at all.

Hattie LeBlanc appeared cheerful and confident as she passed on her way from the jail to the court house on the journey which was to mean that she might be condemned to die in the electric chair or that she might walk from the court house a free girl, declared forever innocent of the crime of murder that she had been charged with.

STRIKERS ARE VOTING IN CHICAGO

To-Day's Balloting May End Garment Workers' Labor Troubles.

Chicago, Dec. 14.—Forty thousand striking garment workers will vote today on an arbitration agreement, through which the strike may be ended. It was the expressed opinion of garment workers' officials that the agreement would be accepted, although strong opposition is expected. The ballots have been printed in nine languages, and the vote will be taken by nationalities.

MANY FARMERS INVADE CAPITAL

Will Meet Premier and Members of Government.

Ottawa, Dec. 14.—Much public interest is manifested in the arrival in the capital of the great delegation of farmers who are coming from Western Canada to present their views to the Government on the tariff, reciprocity and other public questions in which they are vitally interested. Tomorrow the delegation from the West will confer with a similar delegation representing the farmers of Ontario and the Eastern Provinces. The formal conference with the Premier and his cabinet is set for Friday. It is to take place in the chamber of the House of Commons and is expected to consume nearly the entire day.

Alarming Rumors of a Political Revolt

Army and Navy Reforms—The President Fears Continuation of the Trouble Will Intimidate Foreign Capital.

Rio Janeiro, Dec. 14.—Alarming rumors of a political revolt against the Fonseca Government were current today. With martial law prevailing in a large district, the soldiers patrolling the danger zone and occupying strategic positions and secret agents at work, it is understood that warrants have been prepared against some of the most powerful politicians in the republic.

DOES NOT TRUST MEN.

All the vessels of the Brazilian fleet except the Sao Paulo and the Minas Gereas were at sea today under sealed orders and their whereabouts unknown to the public. That the Government does not trust the men on board was evidenced by the removal of the breech locks of the Dreadnoughts, so that the guns cannot be fired.

REPAIRS TO FORTRESS.

More Federal troops were sent to Cobras Island today and repairs were started upon the fortress there which was riddled with shells from the loyal warships and shore batteries.

At the offices of the war and naval ministries information was refused as to the sending of the Sao Paulo and Minas Gerea to the Island of Villegainon. They were under heavy guard.

Biliousness is due to a disordered condition of the stomach. Chamberlain's Tablets are essentially a stomach medicine, intended especially to act on that organ; to cleanse it, strengthen it, tone and invigorate it, to regulate the liver and to banish biliousness positively and effectually. For sale by all dealers.

GIRL RAN AWAY WHEN SIXTEEN

London, Ont., Dec. 14.—Katherine Devine, who was murdered in Detroit by her paramour, ran away from her home here when she was 16 years old. Her father, despite her entreaties, never forgave her, and she was absolutely forbidden to return home. She felt this deeply and frequently mentioned at in letters to her stepmother, to whom she wrote regularly and kept in touch with her home. Miss Devine was in London six weeks ago.

Since learning of the shooting her father has consented to allow the remains to be brought to London.

The girl's mother died 26 years ago leaving Katherine, aged 2, and a brother John, now in New York.

LOCAL OPTION LOST IN SIXTEEN PLACES

Won the Day in Seven Places and as Defeated in Sixteen.

Regina, Dec. 14.—The latest returns give no doubt but that local option has been defeated in Saskatchewan. Out of twenty-six places heard from the by-law was carried in seven and defeated in sixteen.

The only city to go dry was Moose Jaw, while Regina only defeated the measure by 89 votes and Saskatoon by 200, while Prince Albert defeated it by 321 of a majority.

Generally speaking the by-law has been defeated in the cities and towns, only one town out of eleven going dry and one city.

In the rural districts the measure received the greatest support.

Both sides express satisfaction, the temperance people taking the vote as a sign that the movement has made great progress and will be successful next time.

THE WEATHER.

Two Gains Each in Yesterday's Elections

BOTH PARTIES KEEP JOGGING ALONG AT THE SAME OLD PACE.

McGee, Winner of the Mid-Division for Nationalists is Protestant, Put up by John Redmond to Show That Ulster Fears of Religious Persecutions are Groundless.

London, Dec. 14. The standing of the parties now is:

Count on—Liberals 193, Nationalists 58, Ind. Nationalists 9, Laborites 36 296

Unionists 240

Two gains each in yesterday's elections, the result of which were announced to-day, leaves the Coalitionists with an advantage still of one in the total of seats gained.

The Liberals captured the Newmarket division of Cambridgeshire, and the Nationalists the mid-division of Tyrone, while the Unionists ousted the Liberals from the Torquay division of Devonshire and the Bodmin division of Cornwall.

McGee, winner in the mid-division of Tyrone for Nationalists, is a Protestant who was put up by John Redmond to show that the Ulsterites fears of religious persecution were groundless.

POPULAR RACING MAN.

Sir C. D. Rose, who brought the Newmarket division of Cambridgeshire back into the Liberal fold, is a popular racing man with a big following at the racing headquarters. The victories of the Unionists, Sir Reginald Pole-Carew, in the Torquay division of Cornwall, respectively, were anticipated.

Alleged Bigamists.

Mr. F. D. Kerr, counsel for the prisoners who appeared before Magistrate Edmison Monday afternoon entered no plea. They were taken into custody in connection with the recent investigation by the Children's Aid Society, east of here. His Worship fixed Monday next as the day for the preliminary hearing and it will be held in Havelock, in the vicinity of which the majority of witnesses reside.

SPENCELY BENEFIT CONCERT A SUCCESS.

Receipts of the Concert Will Total About $30.

It was a large and thoroughly pleased attendance that listened to the splendid concert given at the Salvation Army Temple on Monday night and a handsome sum was realized. This will be presented to Mr Mark Spencely, one of the now few pioneer members of the Army in this city.

Ensign Merritt was in the chair.

Every member of the band was at his post and led by Bandmaster Perryer, contributed a number of selections which were highly enjoyable. The Songster Brigade too was out in force there being only one absentee, and that through sickness. Each number on the programme was up to the usual standard of merit found at the Temple and the affair was in every detail a great success.

The receipts of the concert will total in the neighborhood of $30.

Following was the programme:

Opening song—"Diadem" .....
Prayer
March—"Blackpool" Temple Band
Song—"Happy, Glad and Free"—
..... Songsters
Selection—"Happy Days" ..... Band
Recitation—"The Two Paths"—
..... Pandsman F. Gray
Selection—"The Rock" (No. 2) Band
Anthem—"Jerusalem" ..... Songsters
Trombone solo—"Village Blacksmith"
Songster Leader Moynes, with organ accompaniment .....
Vocal Quartette—"Swanee River"—
..... Band Quartette
Selection—"Battle Strains" ..... Band
Hymn—(Warham) ..... United Doxology .....
March "Victory" ..... Band

"I am pleased to recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as the best thing I know of and safest remedy for coughs, colds and bronchial trouble," writes Mrs. L. B. Arnold, of Denver, Colo. "We have used it repeatedly and it has never failed to give relief." Sold by all dealers.

A London Syndicate recently purchased 100 lots in Wainwright, Alberta, on the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific, the consideration being about $15,000. This is claimed to be the biggest single real estate transaction in the history of the town.

Uncle Sam Almost Wholly Unprepared for War—Is at the Mercy of Powers

REGULAR ARMY OF THE UNITED STATES INADEQUATE AND MILITIA NOT EFFECTIVE

Report of War Department Suppressed Owing to Fear of Business Depression and Alarm.

Washington, Dec. 14.—The United States is almost wholly unprepared for war, and the Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf coasts would be at the mercy of any of the powers should the navy be defeated. The regular army is inadequate, and the militia not effective.

This startling information was prepared by the War Department in answer to a resolution adopted by the House last session. The resolution was offered by Representative Jas. McLachlan, of California, and called on the Secretary of War to furnish the House with a detailed statement of the preparedness of the United States to repel a foreign invasion, protect our coast and to the state the condition of the armed forces of the United States. This was carefully done by the War Department, and would have been forwarded to the House to-day but for the interference of Representative Tawney of Minnesota, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee. He learned of the War Department's answer and at once sought Secretary of War Dickinson. He told the secretary that to send the information to the House would be like exploding a bomb. It would cause a big stir, and might result in business depression. Congress, he said, would largely augment the army and navy.

Members of the House say no time is to be lost in providing for an adequate, naval defence, and that Congress will have to act at once.

MOTHER DIES AFTER KILLING HER CHILD

Woman Who Cut the Throat of Her Three-Year-Old Son Expired To-Day in Hamilton.

Hamilton, Dec. 14.—With the expected death of Mrs. Harry Patience who, in a fit of insanity, yesterday afternoon murdered her three-year-old son Harry with a razor, the horrible crime today developed into a double tragedy. At noon Mrs. Patience died.

Early in the morning there was a decided improvement in her condition and the doctors who, last night held out no hope for her recovery, were somewhat surprised. Toward noon, however, she became worse and gradually sank.

Death relieved the woman of facing the terrible ordeal of going on trial for her life and of any realization of the terrible crime that she committed.

VIGOROUS FIGHT WITH THE POLICE

Demented Man Objected to Being Arrested.

Lindsay, Dec. 14.—Sunday evening High County Constable Thornbury and Chief Vincent went to South Ops to arrest a demented man who was acting in a peculiar manner. When they arrived at the residence, the unfortunate man put up a terrible battle. So stubborn was his resistance that the assistance of the neighbors had to be secured, and even then the man fought vigorously. He was placed in a sleigh and on the journey to town he fought and prayed at intervals. When the jail was reached he again offered strong resistance and it was with great difficulty that he was placed in a cell.

Leach's Boat Went Over Falls Yesterday

Niagara Falls, Ont., Dec. 14.—The odd-looking cigar-shaped craft, in which Bobby Leach was to go over the Niagara Falls, made a trial trip this afternoon, otherwise the reckless adventurer of Whirlpool fame would have been a dead man ere this.

The vessel was launched at Slater's Point above Chippewa, about four miles above the Falls, at 1.30 o'clock and headed down stream. It was soon being tossed about, and at 1.45 p.m. it reached the first ledge on the rapids above the cataract. Here it caught and held by the rocks, and turned over on its side.

The craft was then in mid-stream in the current, leading to the Horseshoe Falls. Leach declared that had he been inside he could have released the boat. The placing of the 150 of ballast all at one end was blamed for the accident.

Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

Opportunity is offered to Canadian business men, manufacturers, fruit importers, capitalists, etc., to personally investigate business conditions and opportunities for investment in the West Indies and British South America. H. C. MacKenzie, Cornish, managing editor Canada West and India Magazine, has arranged with the Canadian Pacific Railway Company to secure the S.S. Manitoba, a roomy, comfortable ship provided a hundred and twenty-five persons signify their intention to take the cruise. It is proposed the steamship will leave St. John, N.B., January 14, 1911, for a six weeks cruise, returning on or about February 24, which will permit a visit to Cuba and Havana, the various ports in Jamaica, Trinidad, Georgetown, Demerara, St. Kitts, St. Louis, St. Vincint, Antigua, Grenada, Barbadoes, Martinique, Port Rico, San Domingo, and Bermuda, returning to St. John. This ship will be especially equipped with electric fans, orchestra for dancing, etc., a fine motor launch for special shore trips, a darkroom for the convenience of photographers, deck awnings, hammocks for those who desire to sleep on deck etc. The well-known high-class service of the Canadian Pacific Empress steamships will be provided. It is the desire to give Canadians an opportunity for the expansion of commerce between these various countries, and nothing will be left undone to assure the maximum of comfort for the minimum of expense. The number will be limited to 150 passengers, and the fare for the round trip will be from $200 to $300 according to accommodation. This trip has received the endorsement of the Department of Trade and Commerce of Canada.

Advices received at the Grand Trunk Pacific offices state that there is an excellent opening at Wainwright, Alberta for a flour mill. The local consumption of flour is a carload a week. There is plenty of water and cheap fuel, and the district produces the best hard wheat.

To show the growth of a town in Western Canada it is stated that Wainwright, Alberta, which is not more than two years old, are negotiating for $5,000 steam fire engine. They have also authorized the employment of an engineer to run the level of the entire town preparatory to the installation of a complete drainage system.

ONTARIO'S FIELD CROPS.

Statistics of Ontario field crops for 1909 show the acreage under crop to tallied 9,578,323 acres, as compared with 9,621,683 acres in 1908. While this is a reduction in acreage, the 1909 crop was valued at $167,960,577, and the 1908 crop at $164,075,282. Hay and clover grown last year were valued at $49,754,078, and 3,228,445 acres were devoted to its culture. The oat crop was valued at $45,612,676, and 2,605,585 acres were given up to it. Of the 4,101 acres devoted to tobacco, 3,208 were in Essex.

THE SENATE.

A Senate composed of men each of whom has been appointed for life by the prime minister of the day when the vacancy occurred is conceded to be unworkable. What the Liberals thought of such an Upper Chamber fourteen years ago, the Conservatives think of it now.

The Senators themselves have discussed their own existence with disapproval. They do not defend, they scarcely excuse, their House as it is. But the remedies they have offered from time to time—such as Sir George Ross' plan for making the Senate partly elective and partly appointive—have failed to create much enthusiasm outside their own plushed apartment. In fact, we have no right to expect any adequate remedy to originate there.

The suggestion offered by the Globe and several other Liberal papers appears to be that we should have a senate whose members should be elected for a term of about eight years, each to represent a large district, in an Upper Chamber, with a membership much reduced from what it now is, and the elections to occur at another time than the elections to the Commons.

In such a system there would be several weaknesses. We should probably find that only men of wealth or men backed by wealthy interests, could contest these large senatorial districts. At present the Senate is a House of secondary importance. So elected it would almost certainly become of first importance, and with its eight years of life, frustrate the will of the country as expressed at the end of five years in the election of the Commons. We would have two competent elective houses, controlled by rival parties, playing politics to the gallery to the country's damage. While we might provide that the Senate should not appeal to the country at the same time as the Commons, we could not safeguard the restriction as to prevent its being broken in spirit and intention. Nor could we prevent the Provincial elections, where this might serve a partisan purpose, from being conducted concurrently with a senatorial election. We might thus see the Senate and the legislatures join hands against the House of Commons, which should be the real Parliament of the country.

The whole scheme, then, might convert a useless Senate into a dangerous one, or one that could be troublesome.

Why not abolish the Senate and have done with it? In any form it is bound to be an entrenchment for special interests. In any form it will be designed to restrain public opinion, which Parliament can always sufficiently obstruct. From a complicated governing machine, only one man in a thousand knows enough about its intricate workings to make it serve him.

THE RED YEAR

—By—

LOUIS TRACY.

(CONLINUED.)

strong body of mutineers on the right bank of the river Hindun, near the village of Ghazi-ud-din Nuggur and at a place where a high ridge commanded an iron suspension bridge. It was found afterwards that the rebels meant to fight the two British forces in detail before they could effect a junction. The generalship of the idea was good, but the sepoys did not count on the pent-up wrath of the British soldiers, who were burning to avenge their murdered countrymen and dishonored countrywomen, for it was now becoming known that many a fair English lady had met a fate worse than death ere sword or bullet stilled her anguish.

A company of the 60th Rifles dashed forward to seize the bridge, Lieutenant Light and his men took up the enemy's challenge with their heavy eighteen pounders, and Colonel MacKenzie and Major Tombs, at the head of two battalions of horse artillery, crossed the river and turned the left flank of the sepoy force. Then the Rifles extended and charged, the mutineers yielded, and Colonel Chevasse with his dragoons sabred them mercilessly for some miles.

Next morning, Whit Sunday, while the chaplains were conducting the burial services over those who had fallen, the mutineers came out of Delhi again. A severe action began forthwith. Tombs had two horses shot under him, and thirteen out of fifty men in his battery were killed or wounded. But the issue was never in doubt. After three hours' hard fighting the rebels broke and fled. So those men in Meerut could give a good account of themselves when permitted! Actually, they won the first two battles of the campaign.

Exhausted by two days' strenuous warfare in the burning sun, they could not take up the pursuit. The men were resting on the field when a battalion of Ghoorkahs, the little fighting men of Nepaul, arrived under the command of Colonel Reid. They had marched by way of Bulandshahr, and Malcolm heard to his dismay that the native infantry detachment stationed there aided by the whole population of the district, had committed the wildest excesses.

Yet Winifred and her uncle had passed through that town on the road to Cawnpore. Aligarh, too, was in flames, said Reid, and there was no communication open with Agra, the seat of Government for the North-West Provinces. There was a bare possibility that the Maynes might have reached Agra, or that Nana Sahib had protected them for his own sake. Such slender hopes brought no comfort. Black despair sat in Malcolm's heart until the Brigadier sent for him and ordered him to take charge of the guard that would escort the records and treasure from Meerut to Agra. He hailed this dangerous mission with gloomy joy. Love had no place in a soldier's life, he told himself. Henceforth he must remember Winifred only when his sword was at the throat of some wretched mutineer appealing for mercy.

He went to his tent to supervise the packing of his few belongings. His bearer, a Punjabi Mohammedan, who cursed the sepoys fluently for disturbing the country during the hot weather, handed him a note which had been brought by a camp follower.

It was written in Persi-Arabic script, a sort of Arabic shorthand that demands the exercise of time and patience ere it can be deciphered by one not thoroughly acquainted with it. Thinking it was a request for employment which he could not offer, Malcolm stuffed it carelessly into a pocket. He rode to Meerut placed himself at the head of the 8th Irregular Cavalry, a detachment whose extraordinary fidelity has already been narrated, and set forth next morning with his train of bullock carts and their escort.

He called the first halt in the village where he had parted from Winifred. The headman professed himself unable to give any information, but the application of a stirrup leather to his bare back while his wrists were tied to a cart wheel soon loosened his tongue.

The king's hunting lodge was empty, he whined; and the Roshinara Begum had gone to Delhi. Nana Sahib's cavalcade went south soon after the Begum's departure, and a moullah had told him, the headman, that the Nana had hastened through Aligarh on his way to Cawnpore, not turning aside to visit Agra, which was fifty miles down the Bombay branch of the Grand Trunk Road.

Malcolm drew a negative comfort from the moullah's tale. That might be encamped near a fair-sized village which was ominously denuded of men. Approaching a native hut to ask for a piece of charcoal wherewith to light a cigar, he happened to look inside. To his very great surprise he saw, standing in a corner, a complete suit of European armor, made of tin. It is true, but a sufficiently bewildering "find" in a Coojer hovel.

A woman came running from a neighbor's house. While giving him the charcoal she hastily closed the rude door. She pretended not to understand him when he sought an explanation of the armor, whereupon he seized her and led her, shrieking, among his own men. The commotion brought other villagers on the scene, as he guessed it would. A few fierce threats, backed by a liberal display of naked steel, quickly evoked the curious act that nearly all the able-bodied inhabitants "had gone to see the sahib dog dance."

Even Malcolm's native troops were puzzled by this story, but a further string of terrifying words and more saber flourishing led to a direct statement that the white people who were to "dance" had been captured near the village quite a week earlier and imprisoned in a ruined tomb about a mile from the road. It was risky work to leave the valuable convoy for an instant, but Malcolm felt that he must probe this mystery. Taking half a dozen men with him, and compelling the woman to act as guide, he went to the tomb in the dark.

The building a mosque-like structure of considerable size, was situated in the midst of a grove of mango trees. A clear space in front of the tomb was lighted with oil lamps and bonfires. It was packed with uproarious natives, and Malcolm's astonished gaze rested

The storehouse from which the famous placer creeks, Bonanza and Eldorado, receive their fabulous wealth, have been uncovered on the claims of The Victoria Gulch Mines, situated on the ridge at the head of Victoria and Gay gulches. The company's holdings consist of four quartz claims and about 200 acres 14 miles from Dawson, on a good wagon road and two miles from the Klondyke Mines R.R. There are two true quartz veins, between perfect walls 6 and 10 feet wide on the property, the free milling ore from which is literally encrusted with the yellow metal. Read what some of the world's greatest authorities say:

R. G. McConnell, B.A., of the Geological Survey, says in his report on the Klondyke Goldfields.

"A sample in which no free gold could be detected with the naked eye, or an ordinary magnifying glass, was assayed in the laboratory of the survey and gave 2.625 oz. of gold and 3.267 oz. of silver to the ton."

Pro. Henry A. Meirs, D. Sc. F.R.S., Waynflete, Professor of Mineralogy in the University of Oxford, in collaboration with Professor A. P. Coleman in a report to the Minister of the Interior, says: "At the head of Victoria Gulch which runs into Bonanza, a creek opposite Gay Gulch, a tributary of Eldorado, and at a height of about 2,300 feet above Dawson, has been opened, what appears to be a true quartz vein, showing nuggety gold in abundance. The gold is distinctly crystalline in character, and the crystals are of a peculiar form having a triangular outline due to the fact that they are octahedra, and in particular a remarkable variety known as "spinel twins." Now it is significant that the gold found in Victoria gulch is also crystalline and has the same characteristic outline, here then we have fairly convincing evidence that the gold found in a stream gravel is identical with that found in situ in a quartz at the head of the valley and in this instance there can be little doubt as to the origin of the gold."

Dr. Eugene Haanel, Director of Mines, a noted authority on mineralogy in a report to the department in 1902, says: "Masses of quartz were seen protruding from the surface all about the locality, and it needed only to wet the surface of the quartz with water to reveal the bright specks of gold adhering to their surface.

"Gay gulch and Victoria gulch, the former a tributary of Eldorado creek, the latter of Bonanza creeks, limit Victoria Hill toward the sources of Bonanza and Eldorado creeks. Above Victoria and Gay gulches, Bonanza and Eldorado creeks respectively are unproductive, below these gulches the creeks are rich. It seems a reasonable conclusion that the gold in these creeks, at least as far as they flank the side of Victoria Hill, was derived from Victoria Hill."

Mr. R. W. Brock, Director Geological Survey, says: "The district is not glaciated. Gold in the recent gravel freshly derived from its original source is similar to gold in the corresponding White Channel gravel. Many of the gold grains and most of the nuggets, enclose quartz. Quartz pebbles are found containing gold, some at least very rich in gold. The quartz of the boulders is similar to the quartz of the veins, and gold of the veins to gold of the gravels. From the foregoing and other facts, it is obvious that the gold is absolutely local in origin, derived from the basins of the pay gulches and creeks."

Fred. T. Congdon, Member for the Yukon, stated on the floor of the House of Commons last January that some of the richest gold quartz in the world was being mined close to Dawson.

Just stop and think of the immense possibilities of rich returns from the development of the claims of The Victoria Gulch Mines, when two miles of the Mother Lode runs through the property from which the $55,000,000 in placer gold has been already won from Eldorado and Bonanza creeks, the one-third the Klondyke's entire output. 100,000 shares of treasury stock of the par value of $1 is now offered for public subscription at 25 cents per share fully paid and non-assessable.

No further issue of treasury stock will have to be made at this price.

COPPER JOHNNY

Ottawa Can Boast of the Oldest Newsboy in Canada

Ottawa may lay just claim to having the oldest newsboy in Canada, and perhaps on the Continent. His name is John McDowell, but everywhere he goes in Ottawa he is familiarly known as "Copper Johnny," than whom there is no more interesting street character.

"Copper Johnny" has a faculty of bursting into the limelight. Just the other day he was brought up in court on a charge of assault. John's eyesight is failing, but he thought he detected a man who had borrowed some money from him in the distant past. With his cane aloft in a threatening manner, John accosted the man and broke loose with a terrific tirade if the money were not forthcoming at once.

When Johnny appeared in court he admitted to the magistrate he had made a mistake, and he was most profuse in his apology. A fine of $1c was imposed, at which Johnny nearly collapsed, because John has an extremely high estimation of such a sum as a "ten case" note, but he suddenly revived when the magistrate announced that he would suspend payment.

Johnny was born in Kingston 63 years ago. At eleven years of age he came to Ottawa and has sold papers [illegible] almost continuously since that time, being about over a half century in harness.

If there is one thing that has made Johnny famous as a newsboy it is his voice. He has a stentorian call that sounds like a cross between a foghorn and a cow bell of the bass variety. He is heard shouting his wares for blocks along the street.

Having battled with the world since early life and emerged triumphant over the many vicissitudes that come to a newsboy, John has a soft spot in his heart for the little paper merchants who are his rivals in business, but friends nevertheless. It not infrequently occurs that on a stormy night John runs across some wee [illegible] who has been unfortunate in the sale of his papers and has "got stuck" on some of them.

"Well, sonny, how many have you left?" asks Johnny, who counts out enough pennies to reimburse the lad and then sends him on his way with a happy confidence that soon dries his tears.

LINKS WITH THE PAST

Some remarkable Instances of Associations with Historic Events

Several newspapers have recently been collecting interesting records of living people who form links with the past. Says a writer in The Daily Mail. The most striking instance I have seen is that of Mrs. Forde, who was ninety-one last birthday. Her father was sixty nine years old she was born, he being born in [illegible]. That is to say that their joint lives have extended 160 years. One writer states that his father as a boy knew an old gentleman who as a boy had danced with an old lady who as a little girl had danced with Charles II. The Rev. Daniel Radford says that his great grandfather was born in the reign of Charles II. This is partly accounted for by the fact that he is more than half through his eighty-third year, the youngest child but one of his father, who had ten children, and he was himself the youngest but one of twenty-five children by the younger of two wives. There is another case of a Peer who died only a quarter of a century ago, who as a lad sat in the lap of another Peer who knew the officer at the execution of Charles I.

WHO ARE THE RICH?

Rev. Charles Stezle has this capital definition of riches and poverty:

After all, poverty is an individual matter. It does not belong to any particular class. Some people tell us that ou rcountry is divided into two great classes—the wealthy class and the working class. There are really four kinds of people in the world to-day:

The poor poor—those who have no money, and nothing else.

The rich poor—those who have no money, but who have many other things.

The poor rich—those who have money, but nothing else.

The rich rich—those who have money as well as the other things.

This last class as a rule, ought to be the happiest people but if I had to choose between being a "rich poor" man or a "poor rich" man, I would rather be a "rich poor" man—and anybody may be a rich poor man.

A CHILD'S ADVENTURE

A little six-year-old girl, residing with her parents in Dumbartonshire, had a strange adventure the other day. She made the acquaintance of an Edinburgh lady visitor, and after the visitor had left the girl determined to pay her a visit in Edinburgh. Without telling her parents she boarded an express train for Glasgow, and at Queen Street Station joined an Edinburgh train. Arrived at Edinburgh she proceeded along Princes Street inquiring her way to her friend's house, and ultimately reached her destination in the west end of the city. The lady, who was greatly astonished to see her, communicated with the police, who wired to her people in Dumbartonshire, with the result that the little wanderer was sent home.

WRITES WITHOUT GLASSES

The Windsor Record received a letter from Joseph N. Jordon, who, a few days ago, celebrated the anniversary of his 80th birthday. The letter was written without the aid of glasses and with a quill pen. The letter would have done credit to and outclassed many of our business men's handwriting of half the age. Mr. Jordan has been a resident of Windsor for 27 years now and next month will celebrate the anniversary of 60 years of married life.

KING EDWARD'S MEMORY

His Life and Reign to Be Commemorated in London

The Prime Minister, Mr. Asquith, has addressed to the Lord Mayor a letter in which he says that the Government have been considering the question as to the best method of commemorating the life and reign of King Edward VII. As a result of their inquiries they are disposed to think that the object in view would best be secured by local rather than national memorials. They feel that the memory of a King who showed so keen a desire to become acquainted with all classes of his subjects in every part of the United Kingdom would more appropriately be honored and preserved by each county or large city marking specially for itself, and in a manner most suitable to the local conditions, the love and veneration in which he was held. The Prime Minister suggests that the Lord Mayor should take the initiative in carrying out the project of a London memorial. The Lord Mayor has replied, expressing the gratification it will give him to inaugurate such a movement, and stating that he is taking steps to form an influential Mansion House Committee to make the necessary preparations.

SEAT IN THE TRAIN

Railway Company Not Bound to Provide One

An important case to the travelling public has been decided in Scotland. Some time ago William Penney, superintendent, Local Government Board, and residing at Boatland, Perth, raised an action against the Caledonian Railway Company for $10 50, as compensation for damages for breach of contract in respect that on July 22, 1909, the defenders issued to him a first-class ticket for a seat in the 8.10 a.m. train from Perth to Edinburgh via Stirling, and that he was occasioned inconvenience, annoyance, and fatigue by having to stand in the corridor of the train.

The defence was that Perth was an intermediate station between Aberdeen and Edinburgh and that the day in question, being a particular day owing to the Highland Show at Stirling, the carriages were filled up prior to the pursuer's arrival at the train, and that the defenders' servants had done everything in their power to provide pursuer with a seat.

Sheriff-Substitute Sym, after hearing proof and parties' agents, found that the day was one of exceptional crowding of trains owing to its being the cheap day of the Highland and Agricultural Society's show at Stirling; that pursuer, unable to get a seat, had to stand in the corridor between Perth and Stirling; that defenders had made all reasonable and proper arrangements to accommodate the traffic; and that the defenders had tendered to the pursuer the difference between first and third-class fare. His Lordship found in law that in the circumstances the defenders were not liable in damages.

YEARNED FOR A KIND WORD

Strange Farewell Letter of Young Woman Suicide

An extraordinary letter was read at the inquest at Portsmouth on Margaret Gillard aged twenty-nine, who hanged herself. In the letter she said:—

"By committing myself to a suicide's grave I shall die as I have lived—Godforsaken and friendless. Many a time my soul has yearned for a kind word or action, but my whole life seemed cursed. Of course, the world's opinion will be 'insane.' My verdict will be, 'Too sane, too sensitive.' Rake up all your condemnation against me—deceiver, fool and miser. Bury them all with me, to be forgotten in a silent and lonely grave. Trample the earth over me, as you all have my life. . . ."

The girl's father, a naval pensioner, said his daughter was a single woman and a dressmaker. There was nothing to justify the suggestion of ill-treatment made in the letter. She had no love troubles, and had never walked out with young men. Her Post Office banking book (produced) showed that she had a credit balance of £40. She did not make friends. Her business was very successful and it was all her own. Witness knew of no reason whatever why she should take her own life.

A MARK TWAIN PREFACE

Why Candy Stores Do Not Sell Hardware

There is a characteristic bit of the old-time Mark Twain in the volume, "Mark Twain's Speeches," which the Harpers have just published. The preface, scarcely half a page long, was written by Mark Twain himself, and is a confidential note to the reader:

"If I were to sell the reader a barrel of molasses, and he, instead of sweetening his substantial dinner with the same at judicious intervals, should eat the entire barrel at one sitting, and then abuse me for making him sick, I would say that he deserved to be made sick for not knowing any better how to utilize the blessings this world affords.

"And if I sell to the reader this volume of nonsense, and he, instead of seasoning his graver reading with a chapter of it now and then, when his mind demands such relaxation, unwisely overdoses himself with several chapters of it at a single sitting, he will deserve to be nauseated, and he will have nobody to blame but himself.

"There is no more sin in publishing an entire volume of nonsense than there is in keeping a candy store with no hardware in it. It lies wholly with the customer whether he will derive from them the benefits which they will afford him if he uses their possibilities judiciously."

G.T.R. Receipts.

The Grand Trunk October statement shows that gross receipts of Grand Trunk proper increased £25,000; working expenses increased £30,000. Canada Atlantic net profits decreased £1,550, Grand Trunk Western net profits decreased £5,450, and Detroit, Grand Haven net profits increased £1,500. The total net profits for the whole system showed a decrease of £11,300.

The photo is that of a boy of about fifteen years of age in short trousers and with short hair and a full face.

Rev. Mr. Riddiford on Protestantism. Rib Broken.

Rev. W. C. Riddiford delivered a most stirring appeal to the people of Otonabee, to rally to the support of Protestantism. "Become members or adherents of some church," he said, "Fall in somewhere." If the Protestant ranks are thinning it is due to the carelessness and apathy of those who are too indolent to show their colors, and stand by the old flag of religious liberty. Let every man go to some church and register his name, and take part in the support of it."

Obituary.

The death occurred on Wednesday, of one of the oldest and best known residents of Cavan, in the person of Mr. David Curtis, aged 71, who passed away at his home, concession 12, lot 12, Cavan township.

The late Mr. Curtis was a native of Wiltshire, England. He came to Peterboro in 1855 and was in partnership with his brother, Mr. Mark Curtis. He retired from the brick business about 25 years ago and bought the farm on which he has resided ever since with the exception of five years spent in Peterborough. Surviving are a son and daughter, both living at home.

Asking for James Gorham's Pardon.

Mr. G. N. Gordon, counsel for James Gorham, has circulated several petitions in the city, asking for Gorham's pardon, and these are being signed by many.

The petitions will be presented to the Department of Justice, together with the jury's strong recommendation for clemency on behalf of the condemned youth.

PRESBYTERY MEET.

Church Union Discussed by the Presbytery.

At the meeting of the Presbytery of Peterborough held yesterday morning in Knox Church the subject of church union was under discussion for some time. The concensus of opinion seemed to be opposed to the project. While favourable to the principles of union the Presbytery was opposed to the basis of union, as laid down to the Presbytery to the General Assembly. The matter was left over until the March meeting, when it is expected there will be a fuller discussion.

Those who took part in the morning's debate upon the subject were: Rev. D. A. Thompson, of Hastings; Rev. Dr. Marsh of Springville, Rev. Mr. Skene of Havelock, School Inspector Lees, Rev. Mr. Currie of Otonabee, and Rev. Mr. Burns, of Campbellford.

Rev. Dr. Marsh was elected Moderator of the Presbytery for the next six months.

A number of reports from different committees were read and received.

Rev. Dr. Marsh reported that he had been in charge of the dedicatory service at the new church and had received the key of the edifice.

Rev. Robert Pogue spoke of the successful efforts of the congregation of Knox church, and the progress they had made and a motion was placed on the records expressing the Presbytery's appreciation of the work done by the congregation of Knox Church.

DECEMBER SESSIONS.

Grand Jurors' Duties Very Light This Term.

His Honor Judge Huycke opened the December Session of the County Court at one o'clock yesterday afternoon. There are only three cases on the docket, one of arson and two of civil action.

The members of the bar present were Crown Attorney R. E. Wood, Messrs. W. H. Moore, K.C., E. L. Goodwill, O. A. Langley, Lakefield, and G. N. Gordon. After the opening of the court, the Grand Jurors were called, as follows: Duncan Drummond (foreman); C. M. Blewett, C. Curtis, J. Clancy, G. Shields, E. B. Clegg, H. B. Collier, F. Dean, R. J. Deck, T. B. Milburn, David A. Lewis, Nelson Redpath, and Fred Stinson.

His Honor, in addressing the Grand Jury, stated that while there were many opinion as to the usefulness of the Grand Jury, personally, he thought it was a very beneficial institution. The only criminal case with which they had to deal was that of a man charged with arson. A resident of Apsley was alleged to have burned down the barn of his neighbor in June last. It was the duty of the Grand Jury, His Honor explained, to find a true bill or not find one, as the case might be, according to the evidence. It was also their privilege to visit public institutions receiving government grants, and report as to their findings.

The Grand Jury then retired and the case of W. R. Morris versus Frost & Wood, to recover an account was proceeded with.

Mr. Alex Gilbes, representing the Northern Paper Mills Company, Montreal, was in the city yesterday on business.

Rev. W. P. Rogers, of Millbrook, was in the city yesterday attending the session of the Sunday school Institute.

The engagement is announced of Miss Francis Boswell, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Boswell, Walamun, Alta., to Mr. Fred J. Whitcroft. Both contracting parties were formerly residents of Peterborough. The wedding will take place on the 27th.

BOYS' WORK CONFERENCE.

Many Local Delegates to go to Ottawa.

Things look bright for the Boys' Work Conference to be held in Ottawa at the end of the year. St. Paul's church will send two boys and two men to represent the Sunday school and Brotherhood of St. Paul. Other churches are falling into line, and also the Boy Scout patrols. It is confidently expected that this city will send a large delegation to this important conference. The delegates will be shown every courtesy while in the capital city. They will be received in the Parliament Buildings by Premier Laurier, who will also address the delegates on "Citizenship." Every organization in the city which is doing for for boys should be represented at this conference. The whole expense to each delegate will not exceed $7.00. Some of the Sunday schools are paying the expenses of their delegates.

HOCKEY PRACTICE.

There was big attendance at the Brock Street Rink, both intermediates and juniors being out in force. There were so many on the ice that they had to work in relays. Notwithstanding the apparent early apathy there will be something doing in hockey this season.

BOYS' CHURCH PARADE.

Y.M.C.A. Boys to Attend Divine Service.

The boys' department of the Y.M.C.A. will meet at their rooms on Sunday morning at 10.15, for parade to Park street Baptist Church, where they will attend morning service at 11 o'clock. As this is the first boys' church parade attempted in Peterborough, it is hoped that fully two hundred boys will turn out to do justice to the occasion. Scouts and Scoutmasters will wear full uniform.

Members of the "Peewit" Scouts are also invited and will be cordially welcomed. Mr. Tait, secretary of the boys' department, earnestly requests that every member be on hand next Sunday morning, December 18th.

That Suit For Libel

Against the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Gave a Splendid Chance to Bring Out Facts

A disagreement about advertising arose with a "Weekly" Journal.

Following it, an attack on us appeared in their editorial columns, sneering at the claims we made, particularly regarding Appendicitis.

e replied through the regular papers and the "Weekly" though we hit back rather too hard and thereupon sued for libel.

The advertisement the "Weekly" attacked us about claimed that in many cases of appendicitis an operation could be avoided by discontinuing indigestible food, washing out the bowels and taking a predigested food Grape-Nuts.

Observe we said MANY cases not all.

Wouldn't that knowledge be a comfort to those who fear a surgeon's knife as they fear death?

The "Weekly" writer said that was a lie.

We replied that he was ignorant of the facts.

He was put on the stand and compelled to admit he was not a Dr. and had no medical knowledge of appendicitis and never investigated to find out if the testimonial letters to our Co. were genuine.

A famous surgeon testified that when an operation was required Grape-Nuts would not obviate it. True.

We never claimed that when an operation was required Grape-Nuts would prevent it.

The surgeon testified bacteria (germs) helped to bring on an attack and bacteria was grown by undigested food frequently.

We claimed and proved by other famous experts that undigested food was largely responsible for appendicitis.

We showed by expert testimony that many cases are healed without a knife, but by stopping the use of food which did not digest, and when food was required again it was helpful to use a predigested food which did not overtax the weakened organs of digestion.

When a pain in the right side appears it is not always necessary to be rushed off to a hospital and at the risk of death, be cut.

Plain common sense shows the better way is to stop food that evidently has not been digested.

Then, when food is required, use an easily digested food. Grape-Nuts or any other if you know it to be predigested (partly digested before taking).

We brought to court analytical chemists from New York, Chicago and Mishawaka, Ind., who swore to the analysis of Grape-Nuts and that part of the starchy part of the wheat and barley had been transformed into sugar, the kind of sugar produced in the human body by digested starch (the large part of food).

Some of the State chemists brought on by the "Weekly" said Grape-Nuts could not be called a "predigested" food because not all of it was digested outside the body.

The other chemists said that any food which had been partly or half digested outside the body was commonly known as "predigested."

Splitting hairs about the meaning of a word.

It is sufficient that if only one-half of the food is "predigested," it is easier on weakened stomach and bowels than food in which no part is predigested.

To show the facts we introduce Dr. Thos. Darlington, former chief of N.Y. Board of Health; Dr. Ralph W. Webster, chief of the Chicago Laboratories, and Dr. B. Sachs, N.Y.

If we were a little severe in our denunciation of a writer, self-confessed ignorant about appendicitis and its cause, it is possible the public will excuse us, in view of the fact that our head, Mr. C. W. Post, has made a lifetime study of food, food digested and effects, and the conclusions are indorsed by many of the best medical authorities of the day.

Is it possible that we are at fault for suggesting, as a Father and Mother might, to one of the family who announced a pain in the side: "Stop using the food, greasy meats, gravies, mince pie, cheese, too much starchy food, &c., &c., which has not been digested, then when again ready for food use Grape-Nuts because it is easy of digestion?"

Or should the child be at once carted off to a hospital and cut?

We have known of many cases wherein the approaching signs of appendicitis have disappeared by the suggestion being followed.

No one better appreciates the value of a skillul physician when a person is in the awful throes of acute appendicitis, but "an ounce of preventative is worth a pound of cure."

It is not always necessary to operate.

It is best to stop all food.

It is palatable and strong in Nourishment.

It will pay fine returns in health to quit the heavy breakfasts and lunches and use less food but select food certainly known to contain the elements nature requires to sustain the body. May we be permitted t suggest a breakfast of fruit, Grape-Nuts and cream, two soft boiled eggs, and some hot toast and cocoa, milk or Postum.

The question of whether Grape-Nuts does or does not contain the elements which natures requires for the nourishment of the brain, also of its purity, will be treated in later newspaper articles.
